FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1904-1905, ENDING 30TH SEPTEMBER 1905.

No. $\frac{795}{\text{XII}-163 \text{ A}-(3)}$ OF 1906.

FROM

R. W. GILLAN, Esq., I.C.S.,
SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

TO

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 1st March 1906.

Present :
THE HON'BLE
MR. R. G.
HARDY, C.S.I.,
THE HON'BLE
MR. J. HOOPER,
C.S.I.
AND
A. W. CRUICK-
SHANK, Esq.,
C.S.I.

I AM desired by the Board to submit their report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces of Agra and Oudh for the year ending 30th September 1905.

§§ 1-3.—Introductory.

2. Mr. Thomson, who was 3rd Member of the Board at the beginning of the year, proceeded on leave in April 1905, when Mr. Cruickshank became 3rd Member. Later, in July, Mr. Hardy, Senior Member, went on leave, and Mr. Hooper then became Senior Member, Mr. Cruickshank Junior Member, and Mr. Porter 3rd Member. This arrangement continued up to the close of the year.

3. The divisional reports were received with commendable punctuality, except those from the Rohilkhand and Allahabad divisions. The Rohilkhand report, which is dated the 12th December 1905, was delayed by the late submission of the Moradabad settlement report and the Pilibhit report. The Allahabad report was received on the 22nd December.

4. Except in Kumaun the monsoon of 1904 was earlier than it had been for several years. It reached the more eastern submontane districts about the 12th of June, and on the 22nd and 23rd of that month there was general rain throughout the provinces. The rainfall for the month was somewhat below the normal except in Oudh and in Gorakhpur, but it was everywhere sufficient to give a good start to the operations of the kharif. After a short break, rain began about the 8th of July, and continued with little intermission till nearly the end of August. The characteristic of this period was the steadiness of the rainfall, the average number of rainy days in July being 16, and in August 13; and although there were few heavy falls, the rainfall was generally in excess of the normal. But the storms which brought up the rain appear to have passed to the south of the provinces, with the result that in both months the excess was large in the Allahabad division: it was considerable also in Benares in July and in Agra it amounted to 69 per cent. during August. Towards the end of August the character of the season abruptly changed, the bursts of rain being more local and separated by long periods of dry weather. Generally, however, it came at opportune intervals. A storm which passed through Central India about the 8th of September reached only the south of these provinces; but another which followed in the same track about the 15th of that month, turned north to Jhānsi, recurved through Agra and filled up near Meerut, giving general rain to the west and central tracts. The last storm of the season was one that went north into Nepal about the 17th of October, and reached only Benares, Gorakhpur, Fyzabad, the east of Allahabad and part of Lucknow; but there were showers in the hills and submontane districts on the 29th and 30th of the month. The rainfall in September and October was thus generally below the normal. In September it was in defect everywhere except in Meerut and Rohilkhand, and the defect was large in the three most eastern divisions. In October, on the other hand, the divisions that received more than the normal were Gorakhpur and Benares, while in the west of the provinces and in Kumaun the rainfall was in large defect.

5. The vicissitudes on which, in the cold weather, the provinces entered, have been detailed in a special report to Government, but for the sake of continuity in the history of the year much that was said in that report must now be repeated.

The season began most hopefully. The moisture in the ground was ample for sowings, and an unusually early cold weather storm, which brought general rain to the provinces in November, supplied any possible deficiency due to the early disappearance of the monsoon. Throughout the cold weather the amount of rain received was exceptional. In December it was in all divisions much above the normal. In January it was again in large excess to the west, but in the east of the provinces there was a slight to moderate defect. All other climatic influences however are of insignificant interest compared with the frost which fell on the nights between 31st January and 3rd February, destroyed the crops over large tracts of country and dealt a serious blow at the prosperity of the provinces. As already noted, meteorological data regarding this great frost are defective, but it is known that on the 2nd of February the ground temperature at Allahabad fell to 18° , the minimum recorded since 1891 between 31st January and 5th February having been 23.5° . Ice was formed in tanks and ponds, and even in vessels under cover, and hoar frost was seen, for the first time, it is said, in the Benares division. Happily, however, for the country cool damp weather continued after the frost and appreciably mitigated its effects. The rainfall in February was considerably or largely above the normal in all divisions except Benares, and there was further rain in March.

6. It is unfortunately the business of this report to record the cessation of the period of prosperity described in the reports of recent years. The degree of that prosperity and the generally favourable character of the seasons up till the time of the frost may perhaps be gauged by an examination of the area figures. For the fifth year in succession, the cultivated area extended; in the year under report it amounted to 35,347,913 acres, being 195,879 acres or one-half of 1 per cent. above that of the previous year, and was again the largest on record. The increase was largest in the divisions of Benares, Meerut and Rohilkhand. Excluding Gorakhpur, where some land has been transferred to Azamgarh, five districts only showed a decrease, and the decrease was considerable only in Sitapur, Kheri and Bahraich. Why cultivation should have declined in these three adjoining districts is not very clear. Possibly the rainfall was unusually defective, since in Kheri, for example, there was no rain whatever in October; but the matter is unimportant, and in all three districts the cultivated area of 1904-1905 was still considerably above the area of 1902-1903. For Bundelkhand, owing to settlement operations, the figures of only eight parganas are available: these show a decline of 2 per cent. in the cultivated area. The parganas are not wholly representative and the Director thinks the real decrease in Bundelkhand was somewhat larger, but in any case the result is probably no more than a reduction to the cultivated area of 1902-1903.

The total crop area also showed an advance of 222,170 acres. Owing to a decline in the rabi area there was a large decrease in Fyzabad of 174,484 acres, and in Gorakhpur of 92,772 acres. In other divisions there was an increase which amounted to no less than 142,789 acres in Meerut, and was between 60,000 to 100,000 acres in Rohilkhand, Lucknow, Allahabad and Benares. To some extent these variations are explained by the results last year, when there was an exceptionally large increase in Oudh, Gorakhpur and Benares, while in Meerut there was a substantial decrease.

7. Similarly the variations in the areas of individual crops are accounted for on a comparison of the seasons. In 1903 the rains were late and the kharif area decreased 5 per cent. In 1904, the rainfall in Bundelkhand was so excessive as to reduce sowings to a considerable extent, but generally the early arrival of the monsoon led to an extension in the kharif area of 515,830 acres or about 2 per cent., and the Director notes that exclusive of districts under settlement, for which previous figures must be repeated, the increase is nearly 4 per cent. The same circumstance explains a large expansion of the area under the early kharif crops which fell last year considerably, and a decrease in the area under those later sown: thus there was an increase of $10\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of acres under rice, the decline in which had been for some time continuous, of $3\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs under small millets, and of $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs under cotton. The area of jwar, on the other hand, declined by $2\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of acres, and of bajra by 5 lakhs. The growth of cotton was favoured both by climatic conditions and by high prices in the earlier part of the year: compared with the exceptionally low figure of the preceding year the area showed an increase of 40 per cent., but it was not above the average of 1900-1903. Indigo again declined 25 per cent. It is satisfactory to find on the other hand that the area under sugarcane, which last year fell by 62,000 acres and was then the lowest on record since 1889-1890, increased by no less than 122,984 acres: the sowing season was not unusually favourable, and the increase which occurred in all cane tracts must be attributed to the hope of higher prices, which fortunately was realized.

As regards the rabi in the preceding year, an exceptional storm in October had rendered available much land of an inferior kind which can be sown only in a wet autumn. In the year under report the character of the season was not so exceptionally favourable, and the rabi area declined by 448,036 acres which is 2 per cent. on the total, or if assumed figures are excluded, by 4 per cent. The fall was merely a reaction from the enormous area of 1904, the maintenance of which could scarcely be expected, and it occurred almost entirely in the inferior crops, which in the preceding year were favoured by the unusual character of the season.

The hot weather crops are seldom of sufficient importance to require notice, but they have been brought into prominence by the events of the past year. They consist chiefly of a small millet which is sown for the most part by cultivators whose stock is not sufficient to carry them over to the kharif, and an increase of 154,376 acres or 68 per cent. is a clear indication, therefore, of the disastrous results of the frost. In six of the Oudh districts, in which these crops are most largely grown, the increase was no less than 112 per cent.

8. The continuous and excessive rain in July and August did some damage in lowlying land, while generally it retarded growth and interfered with weeding. The dry weather in September, on the other hand, was injurious to some districts. On the whole the outturn of the kharif cannot have been much below normal. The Director notes that it was very unequal, and estimating was even more difficult than usual. It is not desirable therefore to lay too much stress on the figures given in Appendix III of the Director's Crop and Season Report, according to which the yield from the kharif, in the case of all crops except til, which was a partial failure, was from 80 to 85 per cent. of the normal. The figures are sufficient however to show that the crop, if somewhat inferior to the crop of 1902, was better than the crop in 1903; rice, bajra, maize and cotton all improved, and the outturn of the autumn pulses increased from 60 to 85 per cent. For the provinces as a whole the yield of one crop did not differ much from the yield of another, but between divisions the variations were considerable. The abnormality of the rainfall for the season, i.e., the sum of the monthly departures from normal, may be put roughly at 15 inches in the Allahabad division, 12 inches in Agra, Benares and Gorakhpur, 9 inches in Fyzabad, and 5 inches in Lucknow, Rohilkhand and Meerut. Generally speaking the divisional outturns bear a relation to these figures. Thus in the Allahabad division though the rice and maize were good, jwar, bajra and cotton were inferior, and in Bundelkhand not only was the area greatly restricted, but the outturn was so poor that large remissions of revenue were found to be necessary. The outturn of late rice, again, was only 70 or 75 per cent. of a normal crop in Benares and Gorakhpur while in Oudh it was 85 per cent. Maize and bajra were also inferior in the two most eastern divisions, and juar and cotton were bad in Gorakhpur. The crops were distinctly better in the three western divisions and in Oudh, and for the third year in succession the advantage lay with the west of the provinces.

9. "For the rabi," to quote from the special report submitted to Government, "the conditions at first were highly favourable. The winter rains were ample and well distributed, and cultivators were spared much of the ordinary expense of irrigation. The Director wrote, indeed that excessive damp had begun to cause anxiety; rape was attacked generally by aphis, and rust was spreading on wheat, barley and linseed. On the whole, however, the damage cannot have been serious. It appears from the reports received that rust had spread more widely in Jalaun than in any other district, and even in Jalaun the promise of the rabi was generally good. Elsewhere the reports were unanimously favourable. In one division after another it was stated that there was every hope of a harvest much above the normal. In Sultanpur the crops were said to have been the finest within living memory. In Benares the Commissioner was told that very old men said they had never seen such crops. For the provinces as a whole there was every expectation of a bumper harvest. A night or two of frost was sufficient to change all this. Trees with their withered leaves looked as though a forest fire had passed through them. Leguminous crops shrivelled up, and the Commissioner of Benares wrote that whole sheets of gram withered, so that there was not a green leaf visible in an entire field. Cereals did not appear for some little time to be damaged. Then they began to whiten. In the distance the fields seemed as though they were ready for harvest, but the colour was dull and unhealthy: the beard contracted, and it was found that the ears were empty. The Commissioner of Agra described the appearance of the country a few days after the frost as appalling."

Judging from its effects on trees, the frost was most severe, as might have been expected, in the west of the provinces. The injury to the crops however depended on the stage of development which they had reached. Arhar no doubt is an exception, being a plant which is, at all times, peculiarly sensitive to frost; and the cane crop suffered very little though in places the seed canes for the ensuing season were injured. But the most important crops are wheat, barley and gram. Now, in the north and west, the cereals had not begun to flower, and escaped with little injury, while in the south and centre, most of the flowers were just forming and these were rendered absolutely sterile. The injury to gram, peas and linseed also depended on the progress which the plants had made. Thus the area affected by the frost was clearly defined. The doab north of Aligarh, the hill districts, the submontane tract and the eastern districts with Fyzabad escaped with little injury except in particular areas: the Agra division and the districts of Aligarh, Azamgarh, Bara Banki, Shahjahanpur and Budaun suffered more: while the loss was most severe in Allahabad, Lucknow (excluding Kheri) and the districts of Partabgarh and Sultanpur.

10. Fortunately the frost was followed by general rain, and a new growth was induced which had time during the abnormal duration of cool weather to mature some grain. Generally the recovery was more marked in the case of gram and peas than of other crops, and it was considerably greater in the west than in the districts most seriously affected. The improvement in gram did much to alleviate the total loss in Bundelkhand where the crop is of special importance. In Meerut and Rohilkhand the recovery was more or less complete, and it was very marked in Agra. At the same time the rain caused some damage to the ripening crops in the eastern districts and the wheat suffered further injury from rust, especially in Bundelkhand. The final result for the provinces as a whole was that while arhar produced only a 25 per cent., and oil-seeds a 50 per cent. crop, and the yields of poppy and sugarcane were 75 and 85 per cent., respectively, the outturn of cereals and other rabi crops was 60 to 70 per cent. of the normal. Meerut and Rohilkhand naturally fared the best. On the whole the rabi of the previous year was excellent, and, so far as the figures show, apart from the loss in arhar and oil-seeds, there was not much difference this year in these divisions: wheat, it is true, fell off some 10 or 15 per cent., but the outturn of barley was the same and gram was actually better. If the average of these divisions be taken as the normal of each crop, then it appears that the damage to cereals was equivalent to a loss of some 20 per cent. of the whole rabi in Lucknow and Allahabad, 14 per cent. in Agra, and 6 or 7 per cent. in Fyzabad, Benares and Gorakhpur. Agra, however, is distinguished from the other divisions where the damage was great, by the marked recovery in peas and gram, which according to the returns gave practically a full outturn: in Allahabad and Lucknow the yield of these crops was only half the normal. Taking both area and outturn into account the Director has attempted a rough comparison of the total yield of the past two years. According to his figures the kharif gave about 7 per cent. more, the rabi about 33 per cent. less than in the previous year, and the bulk of the loss fell on districts which have small resources. Throughout the Allahabad division the rabi loss was probably 60 per cent. and in Bundelkhand this loss was aggravated by the fact that a poor kharif had been gathered on a very restricted area.

11. The monsoon of 1905 was seriously deficient everywhere but in the east of the provinces. For the period 1st June to 30th September the rainfall was in slight excess in Benares and Gorakhpur, and almost normal in Fyzabad: in Lucknow it was two-thirds and in other divisions only one-half or one-third of normal. The results were not everywhere as bad as might have been expected, and in some reports the season is noted as showing how little rain is absolutely necessary, but generally they tended to depress still further the failing prosperity of the provinces, and in certain districts they have been disastrous.

12. Calamities other than the frost require little notice. There were floods in the Karamnasa and Ghogra and hailstorms were common at the end of the cold weather. The injury caused by hail was considerable in Aligarh and Banda, but it was most severe in Rae Bareilly and in the tract of country stretching from Sitapur to Gorakhpur.

13. A marked fall in the price of grain due to a succession of good harvests has been noticed in the last two reports. During the first four months of the year under report a good kharif and favourable prospects of the rabi led to a further fall of 3 or 4 per cent. in the price of gram and barley, and of more than 7 per cent. in the price of the kharif staples, so that in January, when prices were lower than they are likely to be for some time, the average rate at which wheat was selling was 16·4 seers to the rupee, while the rate of barley, maize and jwar was more than 25 seers. The immediate effect of the frost was a sudden rise which may be put at some 25 per cent. all over. The harvesting of the rabi caused a slight fall again in the case of wheat and gram, but other staples were unchanged or even a little dearer in June than in February and the partial failure of the monsoon led to a further general rise. At the end of the year, rice was 14 per cent., wheat, gram and maize 25 per cent., and barley, jwar and bajra 33 per cent. dearer than in September 1904.

Divisional figures reflect very clearly the varying fortunes of different tracts which have already been noticed. Grain was cheapest at the beginning of the year in the Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions and next to them in Oudh. The distinctly poorer outturn of the kharif in the eastern districts accentuated differences, and by January 1905 prices were considerably higher in Gorakhpur and Benares than elsewhere. The rise in February was naturally most marked in Allahabad and Lucknow, and similarly the fall at harvest was greatest in Rohilkhand, Benares, and Meerut. The peculiar distribution of the monsoon of 1905 caused a change, however, and the rise was now most marked in the west of the provinces. In the result prices at the end of the year were still cheapest in Rohilkhand; next to Rohilkhand came the Oudh divisions, and prices were highest in Agra, Allahabad and Benares.

14. These statistics, supplied by the Director of Land Records and Agriculture, are printed as Statements XXXIV-A and XXXIV-B to this report. The distribution of the area among the various classes of holdings was described in last year's report, and is practically unchanged. The only abnormal feature in the return is an increase from 439,470 to 447,885 acres in the area held by under-proprietors in Oudh: this increase is due wholly to the correction of records in the Partabgarh district, where, under a mistaken procedure, large areas of under-proprietary holdings were formerly classed as occupancy land. A slight increase in the occupancy area in the province of Agra is accounted for by the addition of 78,000 acres in Etah due to the recent revision of records, and all divisions except Agra show a slight decrease. In Etah there is a corresponding decrease in the area held by tenants for more than 12 years, but for which the total under this head which now stands at 3,584,036 acres would have shown an increase of nearly a lakh of acres.

15. The subject of rental collections is of special importance as throwing some light on the damage done by frost. The return shows Statements XXXIV-A and XXXIV-B. 84 per cent. of the demand collected in Agra and 82 per cent. in Oudh, the figures for the previous year being 90 and 95. The percentage in Agra cannot be accepted without reservation, for the returns from the Benares Division, which even in 1903-1904 showed only 79 per cent. of the demand as collected, are obviously below the truth, while in several districts under survey or settlement operations the figures entered in the return, which had to be taken from previous years must be much above the actuals. These inaccuracies however balance each other for, when all doubtful figures are excluded, the percentage remains unaltered.

The results accord very closely with the distribution of loss which has already been noted. Thus, excluding districts where the figures are doubtful, collections were worst in Fatehpur (64 per cent.) and in Unao and Lucknow (68 per cent.); in the area where the damage was most severe the collections appear therefore to have been two-thirds of the demand. In the Agra division, excluding Mainpuri under settlement, they were 78. In Partabgarh and Sultanpur, the two districts in the Fyzabad division which were seriously injured, they were 75 and 80 per cent., the percentage for the division as a whole being 87. They are returned as only 75 per cent. in Shahjahanpur and were poor in Budaun (85 per cent.) and Aligarh (81 per cent.); excluding these districts the divisions of Meerut and Rohilkhand show collections of 90 per cent. and 92 per cent. and in Gorakhpur the percentage was 93. The only districts which have higher percentages than in the previous year are Bareilly, Bijnor, Pilibhit and Fyzabad.

The total demand for rent (including income from sayar) was 1333 lakhs. Assuming that suspensions and remissions of rent were 87 lakhs, or double the amount of the suspensions and remissions of revenue, the realizable demand was 1296 lakhs; calculated on this demand the percentage of collections both in Agra and in Oudh was 88. The balance at the end of the year cannot be stated, but it may be assumed to have been in excess of the normal by the difference between the actual and the normal percentage of collections, i.e., by say 10 per cent. of the demand or 138 lakhs. Remissions of 85½ lakhs leave 52½ lakhs which though not remitted were unrealized on account of the frost: only some 1½ lakhs were under suspension. With normal seasons there seems no reason to doubt that the great bulk of this balance would have been collected; but, as Government is aware, prospects are gloomy in many of the districts that were most seriously damaged, and it is probable that the realization of the balance, if attempted, will be very hard on the tenants and in many cases will be impossible.

16. But perhaps the most important conclusions to be drawn from the figures are those which show the general prosperity of the provinces before the frost. Last year the continued expansion of the total area included in holdings was noted, and in the present return there is a further increase of more than 1½ lakhs of acres. Some portion of this increase is apparent only, being due to the receipt of new figures from districts where settlement operations have recently closed, but if these are left out of consideration there is an increase in every district except Gorakhpur, where the decrease is due to the transfer of land to Azamgaon. Even more striking are the figures of rentals. Between 1309 and 1312 fasli the cash rental increased no less than 49¾ lakhs in Agra and 32¼ lakhs in Oudh. It is true that the cash-rented area also increased considerably, but the increase on this account, calculated by applying the cash incidence of 1309 to the difference in area, is less than 14 lakhs in Agra, and about 12 lakhs in Oudh. To go further back the enhancement of cash rents at different periods allowing for variations in area has been as follows:—

Agra, between 1302 and 1307 fasli		2.8 per cent.,		Oudh 2.1 per cent.

Owing to the variations from time to time in the form of the Director's statements, the working out in detail of the enhancement for different classes of tenants would be very difficult and the results uncertain. It may be noted however that in Oudh cash rents of ordinary tenants are available separately for all districts but Gonda, and the figures show that the incidence of these rents has risen in five years between 1307 and 1312 Fasli by 9.5 per cent. If the same rate of increase were continued, the rise in a settlement period of 30 years would be 57 per cent.

The bearing of these figures on the prosperity of the provinces is obvious. Even more important is the fact that the last few years have been a period of exceptional activity in rent enhancements, and the circumstance has to be borne in mind in considering the returns of litigation.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

17. The total demand exclusive of nominal items for all sources of income dealt with in this report was Rs. 8,15,93,084 or 16½ lakhs less than the corresponding demand last year. § 17.—Total demand and collections. The difference is due chiefly to a large falling off in the demand for occupiers' rate and the reduction granted of local rates. The disastrous effects of the frost and to a less extent of other calamities are shown by the fact that collections were only Rs. 7,69,38,588, compared with Rs. 8,30,94,925 in the previous year.

18. The results under land revenue, which is the head most seriously affected, are best shown by exhibiting the real demand and the demand realizable within the year. §§ 18—19.—Land revenue. Statements I, II and III. Statements I and II show a demand on account of areas of Rs. 35,051 and a current demand of Rs. 6,39,66,270. Assessments amounting to Rs. 1,58,292 in Mainpuri, Etah, and Azamgarh were declared after the beginning of the year, and Rs. 11,455 were added for villages annually assessed in Pilibhit. Including small items in other districts and a few arrears the amount of land revenue not on the roll (Statement III) was Rs. 1,82,258 and the gross demand Rs. 6,41,83,579. The ordinary reductions in Bundelkhand having been taken off the roll, the nominal portion of the demand was much smaller than in the previous year. The amount shown as a nominal balance in the first three statements is Rs. 3,05,162. Of this sum Rs. 1,67,268 are due to the "special" reductions in Bundelkhand, which being granted as a concession in favour of the old proprietors and liable to resumption on transfer of their property cannot, like the ordinary reductions, be removed from the roll. Rupees 53,129 are accounted for by reductions at regular settlement declared after the 1st of October and Rs. 33,763 by dilution, chiefly in Ballia and Ghazipur. Under current demand the rest of the nominal balance was on account of acquisition of land and grants for loyal services. Under arrears practically the whole is in Naini Tal where summary reductions granted on account of deterioration were treated as suspensions pending a regular revision of the assessments. There are a few small items also which should be treated as nominal though not included in that head: these amount to Rs. 4,917 under the balance shown as in train of liquidation and to Rs. 12,579 under "irrecoverable." The circumstances have been stated in previous reports. Rupees 3,945 represent in Jhansi progressive revenues falling due under Mr. Impey's settlement, which were not imposed, and are being treated as suspensions. Rupees 12,579 under irrecoverable are accounted for in Bulandshahr, Muttra and Naini Tal. In Bulandshahr the restoration of certain estates has led to a reduction of Rs. 7,702 in the demand. In Muttra when the term of the regular settlement was extended the revenues of deteriorated villages were examined, and in the year under report Rs. 2,985 shown as irrecoverable are due to the reductions that were ordered. In Naini Tal also an item of Rs. 1,566 is on account of deterioration. Adding smaller sums which it is unnecessary to detail the total of the nominal items is Rs. 3,22,658 and the real demand Rs. 6,38,60,921.

19. Out of this total a sum of no less than Rs. 42,79,319 had to be remitted and Rs. 77,004 suspended. Rupees 26,122 were remitted on account of injury caused by hail, Rs. 11,508 in Rae Bareilly, Rs. 8,304 in Gonda and Rs. 3,651 in Sitapur.

Remissions in the kharif of 1904 amounting to Rs. 5,03,106 were confined to Bundelkhand. The distribution of Rs. 37,47,830 remitted on account of the frost has been noted in the special report. Rs. 17,81,875 were remitted in the Allahabad division and Rs. 11,71,425 in Lucknow; next came Partábgarh and Sultánpur in the Fyzabad division, accounting for Rs. 4,93,367, while the proposals for the Agra division came finally to Rs. 1,75,793. In Meerut and Rohilkhand the only districts that required relief were Aligarh (Rs. 93,061), Sháhjahánpur (Rs. 24,290) and Budaun (Rs. 7,209). The suspensions sanctioned on account of frost were Rs. 1,01,541 in the Gorakhpur division and Rs. 2,226 in Benares, but the amount shown as under suspension in Gorakhpur is only Rs. 64,552 and it is explained that many of the landlords did not take advantage of the suspensions granted them. What was done about rents in cases of this kind does not appear, but the powers of the Collector to suspend rents were not affected by the action of the landlords, and in the interests of the tenants it is to be hoped that they were exercised.

The demand reduced in this manner and capable of realization within the year was Rs. 5,95,04,598. The actual collections were Rs. 5,94,38,631, 93·1 per cent. of the real demand but 99·9 per cent. of the realizable demand for collection. In view of the exceptional character of the year this result is certainly remarkable. The columns in the statements that show balances in train of liquidation are misleading. They include for example an item of Rs. 2,261 in Aligarh remitted after the close of the year, and they do not distinguish suspended arrears. As a matter of fact the balances that might have been collected within the year amounted to Rs. 65,967 and were large only in Jalaun (Rs. 17,667), Sultánpur (Rs. 17,128) and Partábgarh (Rs. 18,874). About Jalaun, which has recently been declared a famine district, nothing need be said. In Sultánpur nearly the whole of the balance was in a few taluqdári estates which had been attached. In Partábgarh practically the whole amount was due from a single bankrupt estate, the owner of which had collected the rents in anticipation before attachment was effected. There certainly was considerable delay in the collection of revenue: for even when allowance is made for the diminution in the demand by the amount of the remissions, the monthly return received by the Board for June showed that collections were Rs. 32½ lakhs less than the estimate, and in July the defect was Rs. 10¾ lakhs. The Board thought it undesirable however to press collections unduly. It was natural in fact that revenue-payers should hold back for a time, if only in the hope of establishing the necessity for further remissions. In the end the revenue was realized with remarkably little difficulty, and it is a matter for great satisfaction that the loss was written off and the accounts of the calamity adjusted within the year.

20. The land revenue on the roll increased during the year by Rs. 2,17,021. Of this increase Rs. 2,08,650 were due to regular settlement. The revision in Mainpuri added Rs. 78,381, in Etah, Rs. 50,685 and in Azamgarh, Rs. 61,606, but in Jhánsi, Jalaun and Cawnpore there was a decrease aggregating Rs. 78,032. Progressive revenues came into force amounting to Rs. 96,261 of which Rs. 73,969 were in Oudh. Changes other than those due to regular settlement were unimportant, and resulted only in a net addition of Rs. 8,371 to the revenue on the roll.

21. The real demand was collected in full. Including arrears the amount for disbursement was Rs. 2,32,525, of which Rs. 1,76,911 were paid out, leaving a balance of Rs. 55,614. In Allahabad the balance in hand has increased from Rs. 9,073 to Rs. 25,611.

22. Irrigation was affected by the character of the seasons. In the recent cycle of dry years the irrigated area had increased steadily and in 1903-1904 amounted to 11 million acres. In the year under report the total fell to about eight million acres, and the area irrigated by the canal decreased about 370,000 acres. In Bundelkhand, however, the early cessation of the monsoon led to an exceptional demand for water, and it is gratifying to note that there was a large extension of irrigation from the Betwa canal, which was made use of even in már land, a class of soil that has generally been deemed unsuited to irrigation. The area of 104,826 acres supplied by this canal in the rabi was the largest on record. The Mat branch of the Ganges canal also was of the greatest value in a tract that is very susceptible to drought, and in the two seasons irrigated 100,279 acres.

The demand for occupiers' rate fell $10\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of rupees, or 14 per cent. About half the decrease was in the Meerut division, which thus not only had a fair crop to dispose of at high prices, but was saved a substantial portion of the ordinary expenses of cultivation. The real balance at the close of the year was large in Fatehpur, Aligarh and Jalaun. In Fatehpur a balance of Rs. 3,709 is attributed to the failure of the rabi : Rs. 1,282 have since the close of the year, been realized. In Aligarh Rs. 8,193 were due from a single estate which is in difficulties and Rs. 2,137 were postponed in a village which had been badly damaged by hail and could not have discharged all its liabilities without great hardship. In Jalaun the balance was no less than Rs. 57,870. It is hard to say that any more money should have been taken out of Jalaun, or indeed that more could have been collected, but it is remarkable that with a much smaller demand, the real balance on account of canal rates should be larger than on account of land revenue. The Board have no information regarding the amount of remissions granted beyond the remark of the Commissioner of Allahabad, that the Jalaun balance includes nearly Rs. 3,000 which were to be remitted but for the remission of which formal orders had not been received. But if, as the rules indicate, remissions were allowed in all cases of serious damage, it is difficult to understand why the remainder, being the price of water actually supplied, should not have been paid from the crops, specially valuable by reason of high prices, which the canal had helped to mature.

Owing to revision of settlement the demand for owners' rate decreased very largely in Etah, and to a less extent in Mainpuri. The total demand, which fell from Rs. 2,64,153 in the previous year to Rs. 2,14,542, was collected practically in full.

23. The important facts to be noted under the head of cesses are the reductions that were effected in the demand. Under Notifications Nos. 1545 and 1546/I—478-05, dated 25th May 1905, the further rate under Act III of 1878 and Act V of 1894 was abolished with effect from the 1st April 1905, and by G. O. No. 479/VIII—5 of 2nd May 1905, the rural police rate was reduced in five of the Oudh districts from the 1st October 1904. The effect of these orders is to relieve the revenue-payers to the extent of some Rs. $13\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs per annum in the first case, and nearly Rs. 44,000 in the second. The demand shown in Statements VII, VIII, IX and X, is the demand on the roll, and the large nominal balances represent almost exactly the amounts by which, in consequence of the orders quoted, the demands were reduced. Before the orders issued collections had proceeded so far in many cases as to exceed the demand as modified by those orders. The Board issued instructions that in such cases the revenue-payers should be given refunds in cash if they so desired, but it appears that very few of them availed themselves of this option, and generally the excess payments were treated as advance collections to be credited to subsequent instalments. With insignificant exceptions the whole of the realizable demand was collected, the largest balance being Rs. 1,001 under local rates in Jalaun.

24. Advances under this Act decreased from Rs. 1,24,557 to Rs. 76,462. Of the difference of Rs. 48,095 two-thirds are accounted for in the single district of Allahabad. In this district during the two previous years, Government had sanctioned special advances amounting to Rs. 60,000 free of interest for the construction of masonry wells in tahsil Karchana and repair of embankments in Meja. But the reason for a decrease of Rs. 22,300 in the amount advanced during the year under report is not plain. When the special allotments had been exhausted the Collector reported that he had received applications for advances amounting to Rs. 11,250, and Government signified its willingness to advance Rs. 25,000 more on the same terms : as a matter of fact out of this further allotment only Rs. 2,700 have been utilized. The matter is under inquiry. In Banda also, where during the past two years there has been much activity in the making of embankments, the amount advanced fell off considerably. In Aligarh, where Rs. 13,430 were spent last year, chiefly in the construction of wells in the dry tracts of Iglas and Mursan, advances fell to Rs. 5,880. Elsewhere the changes were slight. As usual the results vary greatly from district to district. Out of the total of Rs. 76,462, more than half was advanced in the Allahabad division. Next, but at a long interval, come the divisions of Agra and Lucknow. In Rohilkhand and the Benares divisions, as for some years past, the only districts in which advances are considerable are Budaun and Gházipur.

Statement XV.

25. Under Act XII of 1884 on the other hand advances increased to Rs. 3,50,477, which is nearly three times the amount advanced in the previous year. In view of the character of the season, the increase was inevitable, as after the frost the cultivators required assistance to sow their hot weather crops and the kharif, and again on the failure of the monsoon it was desirable to help them in sowing the rabi. The amounts advanced in different divisions generally vary, as might have been expected, in proportion to the damage done to the crops; they were largest in the Allahabad division, and indeed the Bundelkhand districts alone account for Rs. 1,13,850 or nearly a third of the provincial total. The next divisions are Lucknow with Rs. 68,875 and Agra with Rs. 52,839. Fyzabad accounts for Rs. 38,100. Of the total of Rs. 31,826 advanced in Rohilkhand, nearly a half was in Budaun, but it is not clear why this district required so much more than Sháhjahánpur, nor why Rs. 7,742 were required in Bareilly and Rs. 5,100 in Pilibhít. In the special conditions of the year the advances in districts similarly situated might have been expected to be more or less the same, but there are in fact variations for which it seems impossible to account. In particular it may be noticed that while Rae Bareli advanced Rs. 22,367, and Sultánpur 14,303, the adjacent district of Partábgarh required only Rs. 630: the Deputy Commissioner says that all genuine applications were granted on necessity being shown, and that in most cases the purpose alleged for the advance, being the purchase of cattle, was merely an excuse. The explanation cannot, however, be accepted without condemning the advances in most other districts as excessive. Similarly in Sítapur the advances run up to Rs. 32,093: in Hardoi where conditions were very similar they were only Rs. 960. In the Meerut division advances were confined practically to Aligarh. In Benares they were very small except in the district of Benares itself, and in Gorakhpur they were actually less than in either of the two preceding years. The administration of these Acts requires the attention of Commissioners who should be prepared to explain and if necessary justify such variations as have been noted.

In Bundelkhand the amount of takávi advances has a special interest as indicating the effects of the Alienation of Land Act on agricultural credit. The subject will be considered more fully in the report on that Act, but may here be briefly noticed. The only Collector who reports an unwillingness on the part of money-lenders to make advances is the Collector of Jalaun, and even in Jalaun this reluctance is described as a temporary effect of the Encumbered Estates Act. The large advances made during the year are in fact sufficiently explained by the character of the seasons, and on the whole the Board consider that the experience of the year shows clearly that the restrictions imposed on alienation have practically no effect on the ordinary financing of agricultural operations.

26. Collections during the year were poor. The demand on account of principal was Rs. 2,13,165 and on account of interest Rs. 45,269. The sums recovered were only Rs. 1,29,283 towards principal and Rs. 19,983 towards interest, and the balances after exclusion of some small remissions were Rs. 83,022 and Rs. 25,176 or a total of Rs. 1,08,198. The accounts do not show suspensions or postponements, but it appears from various district reports that the collection of at least Rs. 70,965 was deferred, and there are other districts in which it is certain that postponements were granted though no figures have been given in the reports. It may be pointed out also that the balances include interest calculated up to 30th September, which was not in fact payable within the year. It is probable therefore the amount actually realizable which was not recovered was not more than some Rs. 20,000.

The following statement shows the result of the transactions under the Land Improvement and Agriculturists' Loans Acts from 1899-1900 to 1904-1905 :—

Including the balances outstanding under both the Acts at the beginning of 1899-1900, the total advances made amount to Rs. 36,22,928. The collections and remissions during the period were Rs. 28,19,269, and the balance unrealized on the 30th September 1905 was Rs. 8,03,659. The total demand for interest during this period was Rs. 3,99,639, of which Rs. 3,74,463 were collected or remitted leaving outstandings of Rs. 25,176. The total amount remitted from the commencement of the year 1899-1900 to the end of 1904-1905 is Rs. 4,15,057 on account of principal and Rs. 60,125 on account of interest. If the sums remitted are deducted from the amount due for interest, the loss to Government on the working of the last six years has been Rs. 75,543. This result is due to the fact that practically the whole of the remissions of advances made during the last famine, which were more or less of the nature of famine relief, fell within the period to which the calculation refers.

27. There were 461 estates under the Board's supervision at the close of the previous year; 26 estates were disposed of and 11 were added during the year under report.

§ 27.—State Properties.
Statement XII.

The total current demand for rent amounted to Rs. 3,08,983 as compared with Rs. 3,31,078 in the previous year. The decrease is due partly to the restoration or lease on easy terms to their original proprietors of certain properties in the Banda and Jhānsi districts, and partly to the unfavourable character of the season, which mainly affected the rent-rolls of the Lucknow and Kheri districts. Including arrears the total demand amounted to Rs. 3,19,019, of which Rs. 2,65,194 or 83·1 per cent. were collected as compared with 97 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Holagarh and Khargapur estates in the Allahabad district 82·6 per cent. of the gross demand was realized against 98 per cent. in the previous year. The short recoveries both in this and in most other districts which show considerable outstandings are due chiefly to remissions necessitated by the damage caused by frost. Of the outstanding balance of Rs. 53,825, Rs. 10,220 are classed as recoverable, Rs. 20,104 as nominal and Rs. 23,501 as irrecoverable, the Allahabad district being responsible for Rs. 21,321 of the irrecoverable outstandings. After credits to land revenue and rates there remained Rs. 1,56,409 of which Rs. 47,813 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a net profit of Rs. 1,08,596 as compared with Rs. 1,44,439 in the previous year. The expenditure on improvements shows a decrease of Rs. 1,719, but the attention of district officers has been invited to the remarks contained in paragraph 5 of the Government review on last year's report, and it is hoped that the funds available for improvements will be utilized more fully during the current year. The figures for special state properties in the Kumaun division and the Dúdhí estate in the south of Mirzapur form the subject of separate reports.

28. The total demand recoverable within the year on account of the price of § 28.—Sale of waste lands, etc. confiscated and escheated lands was Rs. 923, of Statement XIV. which all but Rs. 60 were collected.

29. The current demand was Rs. 1,60,093 as compared with Rs. 1,62,202 § 29.—Miscellaneous land revenue. in the year 1903-1904, the principal cause of the Statement XIII. decrease being a decline in the export of stone from the Mirzapur stone quarries to Bengal, which was due partly to scarcity of labour caused by plague and partly to disputes, which have now been settled, between the exporters and the East Indian Railway Company. The whole of the demand, including arrears was collected.

30. The processes employed during the past two years in the collection of § 30—32.—Coercive processes. land revenue and other dues recoverable as land revenue Statement XVII. are compared in the following statement :—

Writs of demand		20,700	18,721
Citations		6,753	11,837
Warrants		3,437	4,111
Attachments of moveable property...		4,991	6,346
Attachments of immoveable property		70	314
Transfers		29	12
Sales of immoveable property		1	1
Total		35,981	41,342

The use of citations continued to increase rapidly, so much so that even in a year when processes generally increased, there was a fall in the number of writs of demand. It is observed that in certain districts many of the writs are sent through the post, while in other districts the practice is condemned as useless. There is no doubt that citations are the more effective form of process, but the extent to which this fact has been recognised varies considerably. Citations are more numerous than writs in Lucknow and Meerut, and in Rohilkhand they are three times as numerous. In Allahabad and Gorakhpur on the other hand they are in proportion much fewer, and in Benares only 258 were issued while the number of writs was 3,315.

The number of writs and citations taken together was 3,105 more than in the previous year: Rohilkhand, Allahabad, Lucknow and Gorakhpur show increases of 800 to 1,000: in Meerut and Benares the difference was much less, and in Agra and Fyzabad there was actually a decrease. There are variations therefore in each direction, but nearly the whole of the net increase can be accounted for by taking the figures of four districts, Fatchpur, Hardoi, Gorakhpur and Moradabad. The severer processes have generally increased, warrants by 674, attachments of moveable property by 1,355 and attachments of immoveable property by 244; but there were only 12 transfers, and a single sale of immoveable property. The increase was largest in Allahabad, Lucknow and Fyzabad. So far as the first two divisions are concerned this result is explained by the circumstances of the year, but it is surprising to find that the increase in Fyzabad was as large as in Lucknow: it is due to a much more extensive use both of warrants and attachments in Partábgarh and of attachments in Bara Banki. The results in Meerut, Agra and Gorakhpur are very similar. Rohilkhand is peculiar in showing a large decrease of warrants, and a large increase under attachments of immoveable property. Under the latter head Bareilly returns 91 cases and Bijnor 87 out of a provincial total of 314. The Collector of Bareilly explains an increase under processes generally as due to the necessity of taking prompt action in the case of habitual defaulters who hoped to defer payment on the plea of damage from frost, but it is not clear why attachments should have been required in these two districts more than in others. On the whole the increase in the number of processes was smallest in Benares.

31. The figures, if taken as they stand, are more unfavourable to Partábgarh than to any other district in the provinces. It is impossible, however, to base any certain inference on the district returns. The truth is that a detailed comparison brings many anomalies to light. It is not clear why nearly the whole increase of writs and citations in Rohilkhand should have occurred in the single district of Moradabad, or why Saháranpur should issue 1,312 writs and citations, while Aligarh required only 118. Or, to take adjacent districts in Oudh, it is remarkable to find that the total number of processes in Lucknow was 34 and in Rae Bareilly 27, while in Sitapur it was 1,032, that in Sultánpur it was 191 and in Partábgarh 1,035. Provincial totals however, may be accepted as a good test of the conditions of collection from one year to another, and a comparison of totals is much more favourable than might have been expected to the year under report. As already observed, there was certainly some holding back of money by revenue-payers, and an increase in processes was to be expected. But the increase reported, which amounts to 15 per cent. in the number of the processes employed, and to 24 per cent. in the demand for which processes were issued, appears to the Board to be comparatively small. The two preceding years were exceptionally favourable, and after all the number of processes in the year of report was but slightly in excess of the number in 1901-1902, when the collection of revenue was described as easy. It has to be observed also that out of the total of 4,111 cases in which warrants were issued, the defaulters were actually detained only in 854 cases and that sale took place only in 128 out of the 6,346 cases in which moveables were attached. The number of processes against immoveable property was very small. All these facts seem to show clearly that though the payment of the revenue was delayed, it was made in the end without any real difficulty, and this is the conclusion reported in nearly all districts.

32. In their last report the Board had some remarks to make on irregular methods of collection. The district more particularly concerned was Azamgarh, and in that district the change in procedure on which the Board insisted was not introduced in time to affect materially the figures of the year under review. The subject has been noticed in some of the reports from other districts. Part of the increase in processes in Hardoi is ascribed to the stoppage of less regular methods. In Partábgarh the Deputy Commissioner observes that the Board's remarks were translated and impressed on all tahsildárs, and it is conceivable that this is responsible for part at least of the increase in processes reported from that district. Mr. Ferard observes that a scrutiny of chaprásís' work registers shows the extent to which they are used in "málguzári," i.e., inducing people to settle their accounts and come in with the revenue, and that kanúngos and kúrk amíns in their rounds are freely employed. The Board are not prepared to say that the chaprásí can altogether be eliminated; but they are certain that he is expensive to the people, and that the more he is employed the more will he be considered to be indispensable. In this connection attention may be drawn again to the examples of district variations given in the preceding paragraph. Until anomalies of this kind are explained, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion either that in some districts processes are unnecessarily employed or that they are not reported. The Board suggest that Commissioners can usefully examine the figures of the districts in their division, and endeavour, when great diversities are found, to ascertain their cause.

33. At the beginning of the year 42 estates were under attachment. 340
 § 33.—Estates under direct manage- were attached during the year, 314 for recovery of ment. land revenue and similar arrears (paragraph 30), the remainder under section 45 of the Revenue Act to enforce the appointment of lambardárs, or under section 115 in the course of partition proceedings; but no less than 316 estates were released and only 66 remained under attachment at its close. Out of a total rental demand in these latter estates of Rs. 91,032, Rs. 65,909 or 72·5 per cent. were collected and Rs. 41,843 credited against the demand for land revenue and cesses, but these figures are of little practical importance as the attachments often last for only short periods. The cost of management amounted to Rs. 17,725, and though the collections were less than three fourths of the demand, the balance available after payment of all dues amounted to Rs. 6,341.

No estates were taken under direct management after annulment of settlement during the year. Of the two estates brought over from the preceding year, one was released; in the other the proprietors refused to accept settlement.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

34. The total number of suits and applications shown in the returns as filed in the province of Agra was in 1902-1903, 256,664, in 1903-1904, 289,986, and in the year under report 264,238. It should be remembered, however, that the 30th September 1903 was a holiday, and a large number of suits were filed on the first working day of the revenue year 1903-1904 which properly belonged to the previous year. Again the 30th September 1905 was observed as a holiday in most districts and 2,519 ejectment and enhancement suits were filed on the 2nd October. If allowance is made for these circumstances the result is more favourable to the year under report, for the corrected figures are then 267,181 in 1902-1903, 279,469 in 1903-1904 and 266,757 in 1904-1905, and it follows that the number of institutions was slightly lower than it has been since the passing of the Tenancy Act. The decrease affected most of the classes of suits and applications, but it was largest in the case of suits for arrears of rent, for enhancement and ejectment, and in applications under section 59 to eject a tenant for arrears of rent. The interest of the figures lies in the inferences that may be drawn from them regarding the effects of the Tenancy Act. Those inferences must still to a certain extent remain conjectural, but information is gradually being obtained, and the determination of certain matters of practical importance may now be found possible.

35. Suits for arrears of rent fell by 2,287 or 2 per cent., the decrease being general in all divisions but Agra and ranging from 2 to 8 per cent. The exceptions were Sháhjahánpur with an increase of 1,433 cases, Bulandshahr with one of 1,088 and Etah, Mainpuri and Etáwah with from 400 to 800. Generally the increase in these districts is attributed to bad seasons and to the use of suits for arrears of rent as a means to ejectment, but there is no reason apparent why the results in the districts named should have differed from those in districts adjoining and similarly situated. The Collector of Mainpuri remarks that there were 854 cases for arrears of canal dues. With suits for arrears of rent, applications under section 59 for ejectment also declined. The decrease for the provinces as a whole is 4 per cent., but it is not distributed in the same way as the decrease in suits for arrears of rent, for there is an increase not only in Agra but in Gorakhpur and Allahabad, and the decrease is correspondingly greater in Rohilkhand and Benares. The number of cases for disposal under this head was 32,441, which is nearly the same as in the previous year, but the number of cases in which ejectment was ordered fell from 7,496 to 6,777, and the area affected from 46,844 to 38,829 acres. The bulk of the decrease in area occurred in the Benares district, where it was no less than 4,000 acres, and in Bijnor and Moradabad. The Allahabad division shows a slight increase of 277 acres, but this is more than accounted for by an increase of 800 acres in Cawnpore, and generally in the other districts there was a decrease. The number of suits relating to distraint also fell from 2,879 to 2,269 or 21 per cent. On a consideration of all the figures it seems evident that the disasters of the year had no appreciable effect on the institution of suits and applications of the classes that so far have been dealt with.

36. What really requires explanation is the high level at which the number of suits for arrears of rent and of applications under section 59 has remained for some years past. The average number of suits in 1895-1899 was 103,231 : in 1900-1901 and 1901-1902 it was much the same, but in 1902-1903 it rose to 117,095, and in 1903-1904 to 128,319. The institutions cannot be expected to vary with the conditions of every season ; but after a succession of good years, it might confidently be expected that suits for arrears would decrease, and, since the tenants would be better able to pay, that the proportion of applications to eject on non-payment of decrees would diminish. This has actually been the case in Oudh, where the number of suits has for some years been small, and in the year under report was 22 per cent. less than the average of 1895-1899, while the number of applications under section 61 was 34 per cent. less. That in Agra suits have been 22 per cent. and applications to eject 19 per cent. above the average is a result which is generally explained by referring to the new provision of the Tenancy Act which makes the procedure of ejectment for non-payment of arrears applicable to non-occupancy as well as to occupancy tenants. The explanation seems to be only partially correct. Statement XX-A shows that of the total area from which ejectment was ordered 15 per cent. was held by non-occupancy tenants: it may fairly be assumed, therefore, that of applications under section 59, 85 per cent. were against occupancy tenants and 15 per cent. against tenants without rights; and the latter percentage, representing applications which could not have been made under the old law, does explain why the proportion of applications under section 59 to suits for arrears has not decreased in Agra, as it has decreased in Oudh. But with regard to the increase in the number of suits the explanation cannot be accepted. It seems prima facie improbable that landlords should adopt suits for arrears of rent as a means to ejectment, since their intention can in that case be defeated by the tenant paying up the arrears. Nor is the explanation in this respect supported by the figures, for the increase of suits for arrears, compared with the average, has been 40 to 56 per cent. in Meerut and Agra, 33 per cent. in Gorakhpur and only 10 to 20 per cent. in Benares and Rohilkhand: of the total area from which ejectment was ordered the non-occupancy percentage on the other hand was about 20 in Meerut, Allahabad and Benares, and 4 or 7 in Agra and Rohilkhand. There is therefore no correspondence, as in accordance with the theory suggested, there ought to be, between the two sets of figures. The truth seems to be that the provisions of the Act have favoured the institution of rent suits, not as a means of ejectment, but by increasing their efficiency in the recovery of arrears, and this view is supported by the fact that the proportion of suits connected with distraint to suits for arrears of rent has fallen in Agra from 3.36 per cent. during 1895-1899 to 2.20 per cent. on the average of 1902-1905 or 34 per cent., while the fall in Oudh has been from 1.99 to 1.78 or 11 per cent.

37. The number of these suits has been steadily rising and is now 21 per cent. above the figure of 1901-1902. Two-thirds of the increase since that year have taken place in the districts of Sháhjahánpur, Bareilly, Meerut and Aligarh, while in the divisions of Allahabad and Gorakhpur there has been a decrease. It was conjectured last year that the development of this class of suits was due to greater stringency under the impulse of the new law in enforcing the responsibility of the lambardár, but no reason can be suggested to explain why in Oudh the number of suits has decreased as steadily as in Agra it has risen.

38. The number of suits for resumption has increased from 1,138 to 1,720 or 51 per cent. More than half the cases are in the Benares division where there has been an increase of 536: the Commissioner notices the large number of rent-free holdings in the Benares district given generally for religious purposes, many of which have passed out of the hands of the original grantees, and it is clear that the Benares landlords have quickly grasped the new provisions of the Tenancy Act, and desire to profit by them.

39. Suits for enhancement fell from 9,060 to 6,260 or 31 per cent. There were large increases in Mainpuri, Etah and Allahabad due in all three cases to the conclusion of settlement operations. With two insignificant exceptions every other district shows a decrease. District figures under this head are liable to sudden fluctuations as enhancement cases are not filed in district courts during settlement, and again between settlements they are likely to increase rapidly at ten-year intervals. Provincial totals may be taken, however, as not greatly affected by such variations. The average under the old Act was 6,788 cases. At the height of the agitation before the passing of the new Act it rose in 1900-1901 to 15,153. A drop to 6,147 in 1901-1902 was probably in part a return to normal, and largely due to the provision of the Act which enables tenants to be sued collectively. The figures for 1902-1903 and 1903-1904 were 5,998 and 9,060, but no doubt there were many suits filed on 2nd October 1903 which, as explained elsewhere, properly belonged to the previous year: the average, therefore, of 7,529 cases may be taken. Allowing for the inclusion in a single suit of several, or it may be a large number of tenants, it is probable that the number of enhancements in the last few years has been considerably above the normal, and it seems clear that landlords have been taking full advantage of prosperous times to increase their rent-rolls.

It is only natural to find that in the year under report there was a substantial decrease. Compared with the average of 1902-1903 and 1903-1904 institutions fell off 17 per cent.: and if the three districts in which an increase was due to special causes, are left out of the account, the decline is 37 per cent. It is difficult to say why the decrease should have been comparatively large (36 per cent.) in the Benares division, and small (17 per cent.) in Allahabad; but on the whole there can be little doubt that the falling off is due to unfavourable conditions.

The frost might perhaps have been forgotten in a good kharif, but during the season to which the filing of enhancement suits is restricted, and especially towards its close, the general outlook was extremely unfavourable, and this, so far as this class of cases is concerned, was no doubt the governing factor of the situation.

The difficulty of enhancement cases in the Benares division, caused by the absence of ascertained rates, has been brought to notice; an effort has now been made to work out rates on lines laid down by the Commissioner, and the result has been increased facility in the disposal of cases.

40. In recent years surrenders have fallen as a consequence of prosperous seasons to about a third of their old figure. It is certainly surprising at first sight to find that in the year under report the decrease continued, and that the number of cases was smaller than in any previous year, at least since 1895-1896. It is to be remembered, however, that applications to serve a notice of surrender have to be filed by 1st April, and it is improbable that any single calamity would induce a tenant to resign his holding, within a few months of its occurrence. It may be assumed, therefore, that the variations are not affected by the frost. The largest decrease was in Rohilkhand which last year showed a large increase and in Gorakhpur. In Meerut and Allahabad there was some increase: in other divisions the changes were trifling. Cases in Allahabad were still 34 per cent. fewer than in 1902-1903, and the only districts which on the two years' working show any marked increase are Aligarh, Bareilly and Moradabad.

41. The question of ejectments is the chief point to be considered in judging the effects of the Tenancy Act. In previous reports the Board have found matters too indeterminate to be the basis of any final opinion, but it is now four years since the Act was passed, and the experience gained of its working may be considered sufficient to justify some definite action. A careful examination of the statistics is therefore essential, and this necessity is the more marked because those statistics are found in certain respects to be misleading. As the figures stand, they show a decrease in the institution of ejectment suits compared with the previous year of no less than 18,417 or 20 per cent. As already remarked, however, the institutions last year included a large number of suits belonging properly to 1902-1903. For this reason and in order at the same time to eliminate casual variations it is better to refer to the average of the two years 1902-1903 and 1903-1904. Two thousand one hundred and sixty-one ejectment suits filed on 2nd October 1905 should also be added to the figures for the year under report. The corrected figures then show that institutions have decreased 5,938 or 7.4 per cent. As suits of this kind are filed only from July to September, the cases of one revenue year are decided for the most part in the next and the figures of disposal are a reflex not of the current, but of the preceding year. It may be noted, however, and it is sufficient to note, that the number of suits for disposal was slightly higher than the average of the two preceding years (138,934 as compared with 129,884), but the area from which ejectment was ordered declined from 216,256 to 208,178 acres; and according to corrected figures the area in respect of which decrees were executed was in both years something over 167,000 acres.

42. It is necessary, however, to carry the comparison further back, and for this reason the following figures are reproduced:—

Here also there is room for misapprehension. It is easy to say that there has been a gradual decline since 1900-1901 in the number of suits instituted. But it has never been suggested that the provisions of the new Act in themselves stimulated ejectments. Clearly the sudden increase in ejectment proceedings was the result, and it may be said the inevitable result, of new legislation the character of which was uncertain. As the Act cannot be blamed for the sudden increase, neither can it be given any credit for a return in the direction of normal figures. In the result it seems that the years 1899-1900 to 1901-1902 should simply be disregarded. The facts are then that in the last years before the passing of the Act that can be regarded as normal, the average number of proceedings taken towards ejectment was 57,767, that in 1902-1903 and 1903-1904 it was roughly 80,000, and that it has now decreased to 74,264. The results given by a comparison of the last year's figures with the normal before the passing of the Act are peculiar; for it is difficult to understand why the increase in institutions should have been largest in Rohilkhand and Allahabad, while the largest decrease is in Meerut. But there seems to be no manner of doubt as to the reason for the decrease in the year of report. It has been seen that the number of enhancement suits against occupancy tenants has fallen off considerably. It is generally agreed, and it may be accepted as a fact beyond question, that the object of taking ejectment proceedings is in the great majority of cases merely enhancement. If this is so, a considerable falling off in the number of ejectment suits, which were filed in July-September, after the adverse character of the seasons had fully declared itself, was inevitable. It is true that if this is the real explanation of the decrease, the falling off should bear some relation to the varying fortunes of different parts of the provinces. More or less it will be found that this is the case. Compared with the average of 1902-1903 and 1903-1904 the number of ejectment suits in the year under report was practically the same in Rohilkhand and it increased 3 or 4 per cent. in Benares and Gorakhpur, while in Meerut it declined 3 per cent., in Allahabad 13 per cent. and in Agra 28 per cent. Taking into account the character of the kharif and the outlook at the end of the year as well as the loss in the rabi, it will be seen that these results correspond very closely to the varying circumstances of divisions as already described.

43. The great bulk of ejectment suits continue to be filed under section 58 (a) on the ground that the tenant holds from year to year. Suits under section 58(b) and (c) have increased from 657 to 1,276 : 502 of these suits were filed in Jalaun—a circumstance which has been noted by the Collector, but not explained.

Statements XX-A and C.

Some further information regarding the character of the ejectments will be found in Statement XX-C. The first part of this statement shows that of the tenants ejected in 1903-1904, 83 per cent. were ordinary tenants, 10 per cent. were sub-tenants and 7 per cent. also held land as proprietors; this distribution is almost exactly the same as in the preceding year. From the statistics in the second part it appears that 21 per cent. of the ejected tenants were readmitted to their previous holdings and 19 per cent. were given fresh land by the same proprietor. The percentage of ejectments which were under the law effective was 60; last year the percentage was 64, but the difference is insignificant. The figures moreover are losing their importance. Their use was merely to indicate whether landholders were aware of the provisions of the law requiring actual dispossession for a year. It has to be remembered that it is by no means necessary in all cases to break the continuity of a tenant's holding: the period required for the acquisition of occupancy rights may be far from complete, and by accepting an enhancement of rent the tenant may satisfy the only purpose with which the ejectment suit was filed. Allowing for such cases it seemed from the statistics to be certain that land holders were fully aware of the provisions of the Act, but this is a conclusion that need no longer be based on statistics alone. The attention that has now for some time been paid to the subject has led to the gradual accumulation of information, and the result of that information is to confirm the inferences drawn in previous years from the statistics. So far as ejectments are concerned, it would be idle to rest any hopes for the ultimate success of the Act on the supposition that landholders are still in ignorance of its provisions.

44. It appears, then, that there has been no change under the Tenancy Act in the character of ejectments, which continue to be used freely with exactly the same purposes as before that Act was passed. If, as remarked last year, this use is not founded on ignorance of the law, the question arises what has become of the difficulties with which it was supposed that under the new law the process of ejectment had been surrounded: this question has been investigated and can now be discussed with fuller knowledge. The most important provision to consider is that which prescribes that ejectment to be effective must be followed by dispossession for a year. Since the landlord, if he wished to break the continuity of the tenure, could neither restore the tenant to his previous holding nor give him fresh land, it was believed that it would be impossible to provide for the tenant during this year of dispossession and that the landlord would eject therefore only those tenants whom he desired to get rid of permanently. But since experience shows that in practice the powers of the landholders are not so restricted, it must be inquired what happens to the tenant after ejectment. This, it may be observed, is a question on which the figures in Statement XX-C can throw no light. The Board considered the matter of sufficient importance to require a special investigation, and inquiries have now been made by gazetted officers in 10 districts extending to 115 selected villages and 1,691 ejectment cases. This may appear a slender basis on which to rest any conclusions, but the reports are so unanimous as to leave no doubt that the cases investigated are representative; the conclusions, moreover, commend themselves as prima facie probable. It appears, then, in the first place that the number of tenants who actually cease, in consequence of ejectment, to cultivate land is extremely small. There are always no doubt, as the Collector of Budaun observes, certain men who are on the border line, labourers in ordinary times but aspiring, often with insufficient capital, to cultivate land for themselves in prosperous seasons. Such men may lose all the little land they have, but every report agrees that the number of cases in which a genuine cultivator is reduced by ejectment to the status of a labourer is insignificant. The fact appears to be, that ejectment proceedings are seldom directed against the whole of the land in the possession of a tenant: he loses a part, but he cultivates also some land of his own, or he has other holdings, whether with rights of occupancy or without. Even if it should happen that he has no such resources, there is no real difficulty in providing for him. There may be no objection from the landlord's point of view to restoring him to the land, generally of course on an enhanced rental; or it is a simple expedient to record a relative as tenant, in which case, as the Board observed last year, the ejectment is legally effective though in point of fact possession is not disturbed. To take another illustration of the kind of arrangements that can be made, the Commissioner of Rohilkhand reports a case of two landholders who had agreed to exchange their ejected tenants. It is unnecessary however to multiply examples. The principal methods of providing for the tenant when necessity arises, have been suggested in previous reports, and the only difference this year is that those methods have been ascertained by enquiry to be actually employed. The result of the enquiries is considered by most Collectors to be satisfactory, and it would certainly have been a matter for regret, if not for alarm, if any large number of tenants had been left without land to cultivate. But that, it is needless to say, was not the result contemplated by the Act. Ejected tenants, it is true, might be left without land, but the difficulties in the way of ejectment, it was anticipated, would be so great that the number of ejected tenants would be insignificant. If therefore the success of the Act is considered, there is little room for congratulation in inquiries which show that the difficulties anticipated are non-existent.

45. The question which most appeals to the agricultural community regarding ejectments, is the question of costs. Most of the cases are uncontested: the proceedings amount to a registration of a change of tenancy, and there is a general feeling that it is unfair to saddle the tenant with the costs. It is difficult, however to ensure that he should not pay them. It has been suggested that landlords should be encouraged to give their tenants notice of their intention to sue for ejectment, but in most cases they would not be satisfied by a mere surrender: their object is to get the dispossession on record. If then a suit is filed, it is not desirable to limit the discretion of the courts in awarding costs, nor does it seem altogether fair to deny the landlord costs for failing to serve a notice which the law does not require him to serve. Again even if the practice were adopted of refusing costs in such cases, evasion is simple: and the Commissioner of Agra says that a clause is now regularly inserted in plaints to the effect that the tenant has been asked to give up the land and has refused. Finally, even if costs are refused, there can be no question that in the great majority of cases the landlord will recover them from the incoming tenant.

46. The statistics of long term leases are not unfavourable, but they are not so encouraging as at first sight they appear to be. The return of holdings and rentals shows that in the agricultural year ending 30th June 1905, the area held on lease for not less than 7 years was 485,614 acres, or 75,499 acres larger than in the previous year. But in the first place, of this increase 10,000 acres is nominal, having accrued in Etah which last year was under settlement and furnished no return. Again in the Meerut division, where there was an increase of 29,000 acres, 15,000 acres were in Bulandshahr, and another addition of 15,000 in Gorakhpur brought the increase in that division up to 19,000 acres. Now, as explained in last year's report, the circumstances in Bulandshahr are exceptional, and in Gorakhpur the increase is due presumably to the action of large European landlords. With regard to other districts there is little information. The Board pointed out last year that the subject required attention and that it should be ascertained what landlords were giving leases, but very few of this year's reports refer to the matter. It is obvious however that considerable deductions must be made before the figures can be accepted as an indication of any general tendency.

47. An examination of the figures since the Act was passed is rendered difficult by defects in the returns from districts that have been under settlement. The Director, however, has prepared a statement for twenty districts which have sent complete returns during the past three years, and these districts are sufficiently representative to indicate the general tendency. This statement shows that in the agricultural year 1902-1903, which was the first after the passing of the Act, the area held under seven years' leases was 278,277 acres, in 1903-1904 it was 316,526 acres, and in 1904-1905, 373,923 acres. The result appears to be satisfactory. The figures, however, include those for the districts of Bulandshahr and Gorakhpur where, as already observed, conditions are exceptional; and in any case the results so far can scarcely be regarded as indicating any general acceptance by the landlords of the policy of the Act in regard to leases. The difficulties in the way are well known. They are, first, that landlords object to relinquishing for so long a period as seven years the power of enhancement: secondly, that they are afraid of the provisions of sections 67 and 68. The Collector of Aligarh thinks their anxiety may be relieved when a few cases under those sections are actually brought into court, as it will not be easy for a tenant to prove the purpose for which ejectment is sought. But there can be no certainty that evidence will not be forthcoming on the tenant's behalf, which the landlord may find it difficult to rebut. In any case he is liable to be involved in uncertain litigation and the Board agree with the Commissioner of Rohilkhand that the fear of these provisions is well founded. It may be observed also that in small properties the owners cannot afford to give up for any long period control of land which at any time they may require urgently for themselves. It is more in large estates therefore that an extension of leases may be expected, and there are indications that this extension is already taking place. On this part of the subject, however, information is still incomplete. The Board pointed out last year that inquiry was necessary, and they will take steps now to bring the matter specially to the attention of district officers.

48. The bearing of the figures given in the preceding paragraph on the question of ejectments must now be considered. Leases and ejectments are alternative methods of preventing the acquisition of occupancy rights, and it is natural to take any success of the Act in promoting the first as an indication of success also in restricting the second. The inference however would be unsound. It seems obvious that provisions intended to restrict ejectment which have failed of their intention, can have no effect in encouraging leases, and it is useless in face of the ejectment figures to argue that because there has been some extension of leases, therefore the provisions regarding ejectments must in some way have been effective. There is no necessary interdependence of ejectments and leases, a fact sufficiently plain from the figures, which show an increase in the number of leases but also in the number of ejectments since the Act was passed, and the statistics about leases certainly afford no reason for modifying the conclusions reached with regard to ejectments. There appears to be no hope that ejectments will sink to the insignificant figure, which undoubtedly was looked for.

There can be little doubt that the number of ejectments has moved, during a succession of prosperous years, with the capacity of rent enhancements, and that even if there had been no change in the law, there would have been a marked tendency to increase. A return therefore to something like the average number under the old Act may well be anticipated, but even then the position will be that while ejectments continue in undiminished numbers, they are effected only at the cost of greatly increased labour, and for that labour the agricultural community duly pays. This is a question that requires the most serious consideration. The Board have already expressed their opinion that it was only in respect of matters of procedure that at this stage a revision of the Act was open to discussion, and even with regard to changes in procedure they withheld the expression of their final views. In this respect they think the case is now ripe for decision. The question is whether a reversion to the ejectment by notice is not desirable. The advantages which beyond all question would be secured by such reversion are an immense saving of labour to revenue courts, and of cash to landholders and tenants : and the benefits of the existing procedure must be great to outweigh them. The needs of the administration increase every day, and to employ a considerable portion of the time of officers in work that does not secure some substantial gain is a regrettable waste : to make the people pay for it is also undesirable. But it is suggested that there would be danger of increased ejectment. The landlords would conclude, it is said, that Government was in sympathy with them. The Board submit that the extraordinary outbreak of litigation which accompanied the introduction of the Tenancy Act was due to the prevailing idea that it would favour the tenants. Or again it is said that the landlords would find ejectment by notice to be cheaper. The truth of this statement cannot for reasons already given be admitted. In any case there is no à priori reasoning in such matters that can be conclusive. The proof lies always in experience. Both systems have been tried, and ejectment by suit has been found to differ in no respect from ejectment by notice. It is hard therefore to see on what grounds it can be urged that a reversion to the old procedure would lead to an increase in ejectments. The opinions of officers on this subject were asked for by the Board and have been expressed in the reports received this year. They are not unanimous, but no argument is put forward in support of the present system which has not already been dealt with. The remarkable point that is brought out in these reports is the attitude of landlords and tenants towards a possible change. Many landlords, it is said, are in favour of the present procedure as they find it either cheaper or more convenient. The tenants can scarcely be said to have any properly informed opinion on the subject, but they know that they have to pay more at present, and they appear to be unanimously in favour of ejectment by notice. Without undue bias in favour of the tenant, it may safely be said that nothing could be more in favour of restoring the old procedure than this attitude of the parties concerned, and in the interests both of the administration and of the people the Board consider that this should be done. There are other questions of procedure to be considered. The most important is the period within which suits or notices of ejectment should be permitted to be filed : it is a serious matter that the courts should be blocked during the cold weather with a mass of ejectment suits, that there should be less time available for executive duties, and that the patwaris also should in their busy season be compelled to spend so much time in the courts. It is possible also that an earlier date should be fixed for carrying out ejectments than the 1st of July. But these are matters which cannot with advantage be taken up till the main question of the form of ejectment proceedings has been decided.

49. The variations under this head were not of much importance. Institutions § 49-50 - Litigation in Oudh. show an increase of 2,694 distributed, 1,997 among the tatements XIX-B and XX-B. suits and applications included in Statement XIX-B, and 697 among applications under sections 55 and 61 in Statement XX-B. To consider first the figures in Statement XIX-B, the increase is chiefly under arrears of rent, relinquishments, and applications for assistance to eject a tenant. Suits for resumption rose last year from 433 to 672, but this year the increase was unimportant. Fewer suits were filed for arrears of revenue or profits. There was a small decrease in suits relating to ejectment, following a large decrease in the previous year, and suits for recovery of possession fell off by 469 or 26 per cent. The total increase was exceptionally large in Gonda, where institutions were 1,318 more numerous than in the previous year. This increase is described by the Deputy Commissioner as partly an outcome of the termination of settlement which has been followed by a general enhancement of rents, resulting in ejectment of the tenants unwilling to pay the higher rents demanded. He refers also to the leases mentioned in previous reports, which were granted by the Ajudhya estate at excessive rents resulting naturally in litigation both between the taluqdar and the lessees, and between the lessees and tenants; and it appears that this single estate accounts for one quarter of the suits of arrears and for ejectment, and of the applications for assistance to eject. It should be observed, however, that last year in this district institutions decreased considerably, and they are still much lower than in 1901-1902. There was a considerable increase in the total number of institutions also in Hārdoi, Bara Banki and Fyzabad, and a considerable decrease in Sultanpur, Partabgarh, and Sitapur. In most cases, however, a plus in the year under report is discounted by a minus in the previous year and vice versa. The only districts that show an increase in both years are Bahraich and Bara Banki, and the only continuing decrease is in Sultanpur.

50. The variations which have been noticed are regarded generally in the district reports as results of the frost, but this is made to explain in different places both an increase and a decrease, while the Deputy Commissioner of Lucknow thinks the failure of the rabi had scarcely had time to affect litigation. In this connection the figures of suits for arrears of rent are the most important. These show an increase in the north generally (Kheri, Bahraich, Gonda, Bara Banki and Fyzabad) and a decrease in Lucknow, Unao, Rae Bareli, Sultanpur and Partabgarh. Account must be taken, as before, of variations in the previous year, but Bahraich and Bara Banki show an increase, and Lucknow, Rae Bareli and Sultanpur a decrease for two years consecutively. It appears therefore to be certain that the destruction of the rabi crops did not result in a multiplication of rent suits and possibly restricted their number. Similar conclusions may be drawn from other figures. The number of applications to eject a tenant on account of arrears of rent increased by only 100; the number of cases in which ejectment was ordered was almost exactly the same as in the previous year, and the area from which ejectment took place was actually less. The only figure that might naturally be supposed to show the influence of adverse seasons is the increase in the number of surrenders. But this increase follows a decrease in the preceding year; it was largest in Bahraich, and among the districts affected by the frost, it was considerable only in Unao.

In Oudh notices of ejectment have to be served before 15th November, and their issue was consequently unaffected by the frost. The number has in fact been remarkably steady, a decrease of 598 cases in 1903-1904 being followed by an increase of 597 in the year under report. Unao shows a decrease in both years, and Rae Bareli and Bara Banki an increase, but the district variations are unimportant. The number of cases in which ejectment was ordered was 18,451, compared with 17,730 in the previous year. A decrease from 215,542 to 139,501 acres in the area from which ejectment actually took place is due to abnormal figures in Bahraich, where the simultaneous expiry of a large number of leases in the Nanpara and Kapurthala estates led to ejectment in 1903-1904 from 149,571 acres and in 1904-1905 from 77,378 acres. The number of applications for assistance to eject increased from 13,109 to 14,349.

51. The number of suits in Kumaun continued to decrease. There was a slight increase under suits for arrears of rent, while suits for arrears of revenue and profits fell off considerably.

§ 51.—Litigation in Kumaun.
Statement XIX-C.

52. There was a large proportionate increase in the number of applications filed under section 185 of the Revenue Act in the Lucknow division, especially in Hardoi, but the aggregate number of cases is small. In the Fyzabad division, which accounts for 2,798 out of 2,949 cases, the institutions were nearly the same as in the previous year. Including arrears there were 3,024 cases for disposal, the amount for recovery being Rs. 3,29,306 and Rs. 2,84,225 were collected. The balances were largest in Sultanpur and Bara Banki, and in proportion to the amount for recovery in Unao and Hardoi. The Deputy Commissioner of Sultanpur explains the large increase from 66 to 166 pending cases, as due to the fact that 79 applications had been filed in August and September and that in 61 property was under attachment. The increase in the amount for recovery in this district was small, but it is not clear why the outstandings here and in Bara Banki are always so much above the outstandings in Fyzabad where the amount for recovery is 34 per cent. of the whole provincial demand.

53. About the disposal of work there is little to be said. In Agra the year opened with a much larger pending file than its predecessor, but institutions (including applications under section 59) fell about 25,000 and the total for disposal was 353,832 against 364,817 in the previous year. In Oudh there was an increase from 75,507 to 77,807 cases. These totals include applications under section 59 of the Tenancy Act and under sections 55 and 61 of the Oudh Rent Act, details regarding the disposal of which are not given in the statements: for all other suits and applications the figures will be found in Statement XIX-D. The number of cases disposed of was almost exactly the same both with contest and without contest, in Agra and in Oudh as in the previous year. Following the number of cases for disposal the pending file was reduced therefore in Agra by 9,875 cases, the reduction being shared by all but four or five districts and in Oudh increased by 477. The only districts in which an increase is not explained by a larger volume of work for disposal are Etah and Unao, but in Etah the file comprised an exceptional number of enhancement suits. The number of cases pending for more than three months also fell from 2,778 in Agra to 1,030, but rose from 121 to 412 in Oudh. This result in Agra is due to the single district of Budaun where a reduction was effected from 2,274 to 491 cases; and the Collector thinks the present staff, which has two extra officers, is now sufficient to cope with the work under the Tenancy Act. For the increase in Oudh three districts, Bara Banki, Gonda and Unao are responsible. The total number of cases in Agra not decided before the end of the year was no less than 75,336. Of these 58,296 were ejectment suits and 6,123 were suits for enhancements, but if these are deducted there still remain 10,917 other cases, a result which compares very unfavourably with the Oudh total of 1,940 cases.

54. It has further to be pointed out that although the file in Agra has decreased during the year, it is still higher than at the end of 1902-1903, and 25 per cent. higher than on 30th September 1902. With the work in years before the Tenancy Act was passed a comparison may be effected in the manner indicated in paragraph 48 of the Board's report for 1901-1902. The figures there given show that in 1897-1898 and 1898-1899, before the great increase of litigation which accompanied the introduction of the new Act, the number of cases for disposal was about 270,000, and of contested cases 48,000. The present figures are about 30 per cent. higher. For the whole of this increase the Act is certainly not responsible. Litigation has a tendency steadily to increase, and the increase has been accelerated by the circumstances of the last few years. But if this is the case the exclusion of unnecessary work is all the more urgent, and the result is to emphasize the need for the change in procedure which in paragraph 48 the Board have advocated.

55. The statistics under this head do not present any remarkable variations. Five thousand three hundred and sixty one appeals were filed in the courts of Collectors against 5,947 in the preceding year. The decrease occurred in the Agra province and is due no doubt to the general decrease in litigation already noticed. Appeals were still, however, 27 per cent. more numerous than in 1895-1899. In Oudh the figures of appeals as of original suits and applications are almost stationary.

Collectors had 6,175 appeals to dispose of against 6,580 in the previous year and decided 5,385 or 87 per cent. In 58 per cent. of the appeals disposed of the decisions of the lower courts were confirmed. A fall in the number of remands from 483 to 325 shows probably that Collectors understand better the conditions under which alone remands can be legally made. The file pending at the close of the year was generally very small, and the provincial total was only 790 cases, of which 200 had been pending for more than three months. The single district of Azamgarh accounts for 305 cases, with 192 pending for more than three months, but the circumstances of this district are peculiar, for the number of appeals for disposal was no less than 723, while the average for a district is about 150, and Mr. Crawford as settlement officer was obliged to devote a considerable portion of his time to other duties. It is unfortunate that under the Tenancy Act it is impossible to empower any officer but the Collector to hear appeals.

56. Two thousand and sixty one appeals were instituted in the courts of District Judges against 1,899 in the previous year. The total number of appeals for disposal was 3,010, of which 2,340 were decided, and the pending file was reduced from 949 to 670. It was heaviest in the Bulandshahr, Aligarh, Gonda and Bahraich districts.

57. Appeals to Commissioners rose from 6,239 in the previous year to 6,616 in the year of report. The number was practically the same in Lucknow as in the previous year, and in Agra there was a decrease: in other divisions there was an increase which is accounted for probably by the heavy institutions of ejectment suits in 1903-1904. The total number of appeals for disposal during the year was 7,969; 6,559 were decided by Commissioners and 291 transferred to Collectors. The pending file was reduced from 1,353 to 1,119. There was a decrease of no less than 309 cases in the Agra division: Gorakhpur and Lucknow also show substantial reductions, but there was a considerable increase in Meerut and Rohilkhand. At the end of the year only 8 cases were pending in Allahabad and 13 in Fyzabad. The Commissioner of Fyzabad states that the increase of staff sanctioned last year has enabled appellate work to be disposed of punctually, and that there is no reason why appeals should accumulate in future. More than one-third of the appeals pending at the close of the year were in Agra, and this division returns 354 out of a provincial total of 442 cases pending for more than three months. It appears that the Commissioner was under some misapprehension as to his power of deciding appeals without sending for the parties, and it is hoped that the arrears will soon be reduced to a normal figure. That considerable differences of procedure continue in different divisions appears from column 8 of the statement. In Fyzabad 403, and in Rohilkhand 107 cases were dismissed otherwise than by default under section 551 of the Civil Procedure Code, while in four divisions in the plains this column is blank.

Collectors had for decision 314 appeals transferred to them by Commissioners: all but 37 were disposed of. The notification under which appeals are made over to Collectors is being revised.

The percentage (71) of the decisions of lower courts upheld by Commissioners remained the same as in the previous year. Results were most favourable in the Meerut and Fyzabad divisions where 88 and 82 per cent. of the decisions were upheld: they were much better in Benares and worse in Lucknow and Gorakhpur than in the previous year. The reversals (23 per cent.) were highest in Lucknow. In Allahabad also they were numerous (19 per cent.) but not so numerous as in the previous year. Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur come next with reversals of 18 per cent. The percentage of cases remanded decreased from 9 to 8; in Benares it fell from 24·20 to 2·99, and in Rohilkhand from 18·75 to 11·27. It was highest (19 per cent.) in Gorakhpur where appeals were filed in a large number of enhancement cases which had not been decided according to law.

58. Five hundred and seventeen cases under Act II of 1901 in Agra and 519 under the Oudh Rent Act came before the Board in appeal, and 780 cases were disposed of. There were 887 cases of revision under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act and the Tenancy Act, of which 808 were decided. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 17 per cent. of the cases in appeal and 8 per cent. of those in revision. Seventeen cases were decided under the Kumaun rules.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

59. There is little to note in this chapter except the ordinary progress of § 59.—General. work in each district.

The final report of the Farukhabad district was submitted to Government and the settlement confirmed for 30 years. In seven districts operations continued from the previous year. The work in Hardoi and Etah was completed : in Mainpuri and Jalaun it is very near completion, but in Cawnpore, Jhansi and Azamgarh much still remains to be accomplished. On the other hand, the work of settlement proper has just begun in Moradabad, Banda and Hamirpur.

60. In Hardoi, the last district in Oudh in which operations continued, there was little to be done beyond deciding a few cases of distribution and under proprietary rent. These were disposed of, and the settlement of the district confirmed for 30 years from the dates on which Mr. Davis' revenues came into force.

61. In Etah the revised revenues of parganas Bilram, Soron, Saháwar, Sirhpura and of tahsíl Jalesar were declared and distributed, and all work connected with the settlement was finished by the date the Settlement Officer left the district. The final report has since been received and is being reviewed by the Board.

62. In Mainpuri also settlement work is all but completed. The records of tahsils Mainpuri and Karhal have been faired. Mustafabad were inspected, and the assessment work of the district is complete. The revised revenues of tahsíl Mustafabad were declared also and distributed. The settlement staff is now engaged in the distribution of the revenue of tahsíl Shikohabad, the completion of the new records, the preparation of the final report and the disposal of other miscellaneous work, and it is expected that all work will be finished by the 21st February, the date up to which the term of the Settlement Officer's appointment has been extended.

63. In Cawnpore the revenues of tahsils Bilhaur and Sheorajpur were declared and distributed. Three whole parganas and portion of a fourth covering an area of 934 square miles were inspected : two parganas having an area of 473 square miles by the Settlement Officer and the remaining 461 square miles by his assistant, Maulvi Fasihuddin. The assessments, which, with the exception of one pargana were received within the year, have been disposed of. Under the special rules prescribed for this settlement, the assessments were revised in 1,549 mahals out of a total of 2,299 mahals which came under review. For all parganas the assessments of which were sanctioned up to the close of the year, the reductions come to Rs. 50,416, the estimate for the whole district being Rs. 1,08,960. The reductions appear to be small but it is to be remembered that in a considerable number of cases the revenue has been increased. If these cases are excluded the total reductions come to Rs. 73,533 and the result of the operations has certainly been to equalize the pressure of the revenue demand.

64. In Azamgarh the work of assessment is complete. The parganas that remained were Maunathbhanjan, Muhammiabad, Ghosi and Nathupur, covering an area of 534 square miles. Mr. Crawford, who, since the 28th March 1905 has been in charge of the district as well as of the settlement, inspected Ghosi (167 square miles) and the rest was done by his assistant. The assessments were received and disposed of after the close of the year, and the Settlement Officer has been authorized to declare them subject to the orders of Government on the reports.

The laborious and intricate task of attestation was brought to a close in July, and the Deputy Collectors are now engaged in clearing the enormous files of pending cases : it is hoped therefore that case work will be finished next year. With regard to the fairing of the records, the Settlement Officer can give no trustworthy estimate. This work is almost complete in tahsils Deogaon, Azamgarh and Mahul ; it has been started in Sagri, and now that the patwáris will be free to devote all their time to this section of the work, its progress no doubt will be more rapid. Still the Settlement Officer does not think that the bulk of the patwáris will return to their ordinary duties till June 1907, or that the last tahsils can be cleared before the end of that year. On this subject the Board need only refer to their remarks last year. The labour and money spent in the laborious process of attestation and in the disposal of a great mass of case work will be wasted unless the final copies of the papers are accurately prepared, and this is a task which cannot be accomplished without constant supervision and close attention to every detail.

65. The revision of assessment in pargana Káshipur of the Naini Tal district, the conditions of which were described in last year's report, resulted in a decrease of Rs. 14,724 in the revenue on the roll. Pending a regular revision, certain summary reductions had been granted, which for administrative reasons were treated as suspensions, and the actual reduction in the realizable demand was Rs. 11,500. The decline in cultivation had been serious, and many of the landholders are heavily in debt. Government was pleased, therefore, in sixty villages belonging to old proprietors to give further relief in the shape of special reductions by fixing their revenue at 35 or 40 per cent. of the assets, and arrangements are in progress to effect if possible a settlement with the creditors of the indebted proprietors and prevent their being sold up.

66. The only tract which was brought under settlement during the year was tahsil Dehra of the Dehra Dún district. Mr. Dampier was appointed Settlement Officer. A regular revision and attestation of the records were considered unnecessary, but the patwáris after a course of instruction were to revise the maps where necessary, to bring the khasras into correspondence with the revised maps and write up khataunis. Assistance was to be given only when a patwári was found to be incompetent, but the number of villages in which the maps and records required correction was larger than had been anticipated; a considerable number of amíns had therefore to be employed, and the supervision of this part of the work has been the chief duty of the Deputy Collector attached to this settlement. Map correction has been completed in 337 out of a total of 411 square miles, and generally it may be said that all the preliminary work is finished except in two small tracts. The first of these consists of a dozen villages within the municipality of Dehra, where special arrangements have been found necessary to bring the maps up to date, and 56 hill villages, situated both in the Eastern and Western Dún, which have similar characteristics distinguishing them from the rest of the area under settlement, and are being treated therefore as a single circle. With the same exceptions the Settlement Officer finished his inspection work, and his rent rate reports have been received and dealt with.

67. In Moradabad provision was made for the appointment of a Settlement Officer for four and of an assistant for two years; but a revision of the programme was found necessary by which the Settlement Officer's term was reduced to 3½ years and his appointment deferred till October 1905. The Assistant Settlement Officer's term on the other hand was increased by one year. In certain areas where the maps were found to be defective a resurvey had been ordered, and for these areas the records also were to be revised formally and attested; elsewhere the assessments were to be based on the existing records except in a few villages with complicated tenures, the khewats of which required revision. As the soil classification of last settlement was believed to be generally correct, it was considered that a classification de novo would not be necessary. A Settlement Officer and an Assistant Settlement Officer were posted to the district only in October, but a Deputy Collector was employed throughout the year, and satisfactory progress in the work preliminary to assessment was made. Attestation was completed in Moradabad, Thákurdwára and Bilari, and begun in Amroha and Sambhal; and the preparation of statistics for the Settlement Officer was well advanced in the first two tahsils. It appears from reports lately received that a wider scope than had been intended was given to the work of attestation outside the surveyed tracts: this is a matter that is engaging the Board's attention.

68. No matters have been brought to notice in connection with the system of fluctuating assessments which call for special remark.

In Jalaun the settlement is practically completed. Tahsils Kunch and Jalaun with an area of 759 square miles were inspected during the year, and the assessments of the whole district have been disposed of. In two out of the four tahsils work is complete, but in Kunch the distribution of revenue had not been finished by the end of the year and there was still a good deal of fairing work to be done in Jalaun. Mr. Hailey having left the district, and the Assistant Settlement Officer reverted to district work, the Collector has been placed in charge of the operations.

69. Progress in the Jhānsi settlement under Mr. Pim has been rapid. The revised revenues of tahsil Jhānsi were declared and distributed. The Assistant Settlement Officer inspected pargana Garotha with the ubāri estates of Gursarai and Kakarbai: the Settlement Officer finished the three remaining parganas of Jhānsi proper, as well as Bansi and Tālbehat in Lalitpur, and altogether an area of 1,617 square miles was inspected. The assessments also were reported and with the exception of the two Lalitpur parganas, orders were passed. In 34 mahāls, the assets of which would have justified an enhancement, the present revenues have been retained; but, as in other similar cases, nominal assessments have been fixed to serve as a basis for intermediate revisions. In the Gursarai estate, where there has been no material improvement, the reduced ubāri demand of Rs. 20,000 has been continued for a further period of five years.

70. In Bānda and Hamīrpur Deputy Collectors were employed in attesting the khewats, in supervising the classification of the cultivated area as nautor or permanent cultivation, and the preparation of statistics for the Settlement Officer. The progress of this work was hampered by the frequent absence of patwāris on duties connected more particularly with measures of revenue relief and with cases under the Encumbered Estates Act, and especially in Bānda, the statistics required by the Settlement Officer were far from complete: inspection, however, will not be interfered with. Since the close of the year two Settlement Officers have been appointed, Mr. Raw in Hamīrpur and Mr. Humphries in Bānda, while Mr. Drake Brockman has been posted to Bānda as Assistant Settlement Officer.

71. It remains to notice the proceedings for a revision of the records which have been found necessary in two districts. The revision of settlement engagements in Almora and the Naini Tāl hill pattis which was alluded to last year has been finished, and the cess which is levied to secure the supply of provisions for travellers has now been recorded. In the hill pattis the other settlement records also appeared to be defective and an inquiry proved the necessity of revising them. When the work in one patti had been completed, a report was submitted and the question further considered. It was decided that a revision was necessary in all the pattis, and the experience gained has been applied in defining the scope and method of the extended operations which are still proceeding. A similar case occurred in Shāhjahānpur where the Collector reported that serious inaccuracies had been found in the khewats prepared at settlement. A special officer was appointed to carry out a revision in accordance with instructions approved by Government, and the results in the first tahsil, which was taken up showed the necessity of extending the inquiry to the rest of the district. This work, it is hoped, will soon be completed.

72. On the general question of withdrawal for topographical work of the officers of the Survey of India employed in the provinces, it has been decided that six officers will revert in 1905, two in 1906 and one in 1907. Two Deputy Collectors have been trained in survey work to relieve the Assistant Survey Officers of Hamīrpur and Bānda, where the work cannot be finished till 1906 and 1907. Since the close of the year Captain Coldstream has made over charge to Mr. T. F. Freeman, who has been appointed Deputy Director of Surveys for the supervision of cadastral work.

73. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 44,425. Including 18,781 cases outstanding at the close of last year the total for disposal was 63,206, of which 41,081 cases were decided. The balance of 22,125, is composed chiefly of record-of-rights cases, which number 12,538 in Azamgarh and 2,223 in Moradabad.

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

77. Statement XXVIII, which is concerned with proprietary mutations, is prepared for the agricultural year which ends on 30th June, and it is natural to find, therefore, that the figures show no trace of having been influenced by the disasters of the rabi. There has in fact, for the first time for several years, been a falling off in the number of cases, the totals being 207,252 last year and 197,640 in the year under report. The bulk of the decrease is accounted for under succession cases, but it occurs generally under all heads, and under private sales of revenue-paying land it is considerable. The falling off in the number of succession cases is remarkable: the year was unhealthy, and an increase was to be looked for. It is true that in previous years the returns were swollen by special proceedings taken to correct the khewats by the entry of unreported transfers, and the largest variations can in this way be accounted for, but the facts are insufficient to explain a general decrease.

In three divisions only does the total number of cases show an increase. In Agra this increase is confined practically to Muttra and Etah. In Muttra steps were taken to have the khewats brought up to date, which resulted in the discovery of 2,713 old cases, which had not been reported. In Etah the increase is nominal as the district last year was under settlement and no return was submitted. In Kumaun cases increased considerably under successions and private sales. Most of the increase in Fyzabad was under mortgages and in the districts of Gonda and Sultānpur. The remaining divisions show a decrease which was largest in Gorakhpur. In this division the decrease under sales and mortgages is at first sight remarkable, but it occurred chiefly in Basti, where the figures last year were abnormal, and the number of transfers this year was very much the same as in 1902-1903.

Variations in the returns of the last few years have been caused chiefly by fluctuations in the number of succession cases, and these again have been found to depend in the main on administrative action for the registration of transfers. To draw from the figures any inference regarding the prosperity of the province or the extent to which land is being transferred would be a very difficult task, which it is beyond the province of an annual report to attempt. The case of Bundelkhand may however be noticed : here legislation has imposed restrictions on alienations and the result is clearly shown in the returns. Compared with the average of the two years before the Alienation of Land Act came into force, the number of sales by order of court fell from 142 to 65, of private sales of revenue paying land from 1,317 to 666, and of mortgages from 938 to 200 : in the case of redemptions, which increased from 878 to 1,011, the effect of the Encumbered Estates Act has also to be considered. Banda is peculiar in showing a decrease in the number of redemption cases, but there was some misunderstanding in this district of the orders about liquidation, and the Collector reports that many of the mutations resulting from ejectments under the Encumbered Estates Act were not effected before 30th June.

78. The figures of partition work show comparatively little change. It is noteworthy however that the number of applications for perfect partition, which have been steadily decreasing for some years, rose in the year under report by 16 per cent. in the province of Agra, while the number of applications for imperfect partition remained practically unchanged. In Oudh there was some decrease under both heads. The total for the provinces was 3,889 applications—a figure which is very slightly above that of the previous year, but exceeds the average number filed in 1896—1899, before the new Revenue Act was passed, by 68 per cent. As noted in previous reports cases have trebled and quadrupled in Meerut and Gorakhpur, and in Rohilkhand there has been an increase of 72 per cent., while in other divisions there has been very little change. In Oudh the excess over the normal is 15 per cent.

79. The year opened with a pending file of 3,680, or 310 more than its predecessor, and institutions being 84 in excess, there was an increase of 394 in the number of cases for disposal. The number of partitions actually carried out was almost exactly the same as in the previous year. The increase in the outturn of work is striking, as the partitions effected in 1896-1899 were on an average 1,401, and in the last two years 2,464 and 2,481. The results in different districts vary considerably. An exceptional number of partitions was effected in Almora. There was a satisfactory increase in the Fyzabad division, especially in Sultānpur, as well as in Muzaffarnagar, Bara Banki, Sháhjahānpur and Sítapur. On the other hand there was some falling off in the Lucknow division, to which the Commissioner has called the attention of district officers, and in Bulandshahr, and it is to be regretted that in the districts of Meerut and Gorakhpur, where the work is extremely heavy, the outturn was less than in the previous year. The number of cases otherwise disposed of was much the same. The result was an increase in the pending file from 3,685 to 4,035, corresponding almost exactly to the increase in the number of cases for disposal. The only districts that show a substantial decrease are Moradabad, where the work is being limited by settlement operations, Sultānpur and Sháhjahānpur : while there was an increase, extending to every district except Dehra Dún, of 212 in the Meerut division and of 169 in Basti and Gorakhpur. An increase in the Agra division was inevitable, as work is being resumed there in several districts after settlement. The state of the pending file calls for serious consideration. It consists of no less than 447 cases in Gorakhpur, 397 in Basti, 329 in Meerut and 208 in Budaun : it is above a hundred in Sahāranpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bijnor, and Bara Banki, and there are at least seven other districts in which it requires attention. The Board are satisfied that the staff of amins is sufficient in every district, and there is no object in employing a staff to turn out more work than the revenue courts can attend to. The remedy is to employ additional officers, till the arrears are disposed of, and the Board will address Government with a view to their appointment. The question of improvements in partition work continues to receive attention, and during the year various instructions were issued and inquiries made. It is now the rule, that unless there are special reasons to the contrary, the whole partition work of each district should be placed in charge of a single officer, and the opinions expressed in the reports for the year on this reversion to previous practice are uniformly favourable. On the other hand the endeavour to employ patwáris more generally in partition work has not met with much approval. The results are most satisfactory, as might be expected, in districts where the patwáris are most competent. It was foreseen of course that the success of the experiment could not be assured if it were left to parties to accept or refuse the patwári, but there was

- no desire to force matters at the risk of entrusting partitions to men whose impartiality was not beyond question, and the appointment of patwáris was made conditional therefore on the unanimous consent of parties. The only method by which it was thought that the employment of patwáris could safely be encouraged was by making it less expensive than the employment of amíns, and if in spite of this advantage the scheme is not favoured it will be obvious that in practice it is found to be open to substantial objections. At the same time it is essential that the parties in partition proceedings should know exactly how matters stand, and it is hoped that officers will continue to put the case fairly before them.

The decision regarding other points connected with the adoption of some standard for partition work and the control of amíns awaits the receipt of some district reports. One matter, however, to which attention may specially be drawn is the effect of the Revenue Act on partition work generally. Institutions, it is true, are very much the same as they were last year, but the level is excessively high compared with the normal before the Act was passed, and it appears that the effect of withdrawing restrictions on imperfect partitions has been greater than was anticipated. The undesirable results of numerous partitions need hardly be pointed out. Not only do they add largely to the work of revenue courts at the time they are made, but they result in a permanent increase of work in the Land Records department. They are unfavourable also to the maintenance of the lambardári system, and inconsistent therefore with other provisions of the Act. It is reported that the morcellement of rights which follows on partition is often extreme, the area of new pattis being sometimes an acre or even less. It is too late to deny the right to partition, but it may still be restricted, and the Board suggest that in the case of imperfect, as of perfect partitions, a minimum area should now be fixed.

80. Applications by lambardárs for recovery of arrears of revenue under section 184 increased from 935 for Rs. 51,775 in 1903-1904 to 1,028 for Rs. 57,370 in the year under report : the use of the section, however, extends very slowly, as even in 1902-1903, the first complete year after the introduction of the Act, 847 applications were filed, which covered arrears of Rs. 62,274. In the Meerut division, which accounts for nearly half the provincial total, the district of Aligarh shows a large increase. There was a considerable increase also in Etáwah, Sítapur, Gonda and Bahraich. In Bánda where, as observed last year, the exceptional number of cases appears to be due to executive action on the part of the Collector in calling attention to the privileges and duties of lambardárs, there has been a decrease which is ascribed to the large remissions and reduction consequently in the demand. Including arrears, there were 1,296 cases for the recovery of Rs. 75,092. Only Rs. 43,612 were collected, but claims for a large amount were struck off, and the balance at the end of the year was not large except in Muzaffarnagar, Aligarh, Bijhor and Sítapur.

81. Such information as there is to record under this head cannot be regarded as satisfactory if a continuance of the lambardári system is to be hoped for. In the eastern districts, the use of bachhbandis, though it involves the recognition of payers by co-shares direct, has been recognised as essential in the interests of revenue payments and to the proper maintenance of accounts. It is a matter of regret that in other parts of the provinces as well as in the eastern districts the post of lambardár seems to be losing in popularity. In Moradabad it is noticed that a mahál has been under attachment, on account of the failure of the co-sharers to nominate a lambardár, since 1901. This particular instance is due no doubt to some special circumstances, but the Collector of Meerut notes that every year sees the coparcenary body become more and more disjointed, and the difficulty of obtaining lambardárs increased. Even in Bijhor it is observed that the unwillingness of co-sharers to accept the post of lambardár is clear from the fact that there are 13 maháls attached under section 45 of the Revenue Act.

§ 81.—Lambardars.

82. The total figures for land revenue money-orders are very much the same as in the previous year, the number being 267,166 as compared with 258,994, and the value Rs. 53,63,110 as compared with Rs. 54,52,507. There was some increase in the value in Meerut, Agra, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur. An increase of Rs. 1,27,000 in the Lucknow division was confined practically to Unao, where the return last year was certainly incorrect. There was a decrease on the other hand of Rs. 30,000 in Fyzabad, of Rs. 48,000 in Benares, and two lakhs in Allahabad. The explanation generally given of the decrease, that there was a material reduction owing to remissions in the demand, is supported by the remarkable decrease in Allahabad, but it does not account for the varying results that have been noticed, for example, in Agra and Fyzabad. The value of miscellaneous revenue money-orders declined by Rs. 18,651; the decrease was large in Allahabad and Lucknow, while the three western divisions show an increase.

83. Remittances of rent through the post-office fell off in Agra by Rs. 37,118 and in Oudh by Rs. 10,220. Except in the Rohilkhand division, where the remittances increased by Rs. 26,775 there was a decrease in all divisions which, generally speaking, is explained by the large remissions of rent and short collections.

84. Appeals to Collectors and Commissioners under the Revenue Act remained almost stationary, the numbers of the appeals instituted being 5,551 and 2,650 against 5,478 and 2,672 respectively in the previous year. The number of appeals to Collectors was extraordinarily high—over 400—in Basti and Gorakhpur; and in Basti was 42 per cent. higher than in the previous year. Seven hundred and twenty-six cases were left for decision at the close of the year, of which 150 had been pending for more than three months. The arrears were heaviest again in the Meerut district. It is explained that 60 appeals which had been pending for more than three months were in partition cases in which submission of the partition proceeding for confirmation was awaited, but the figures seem to indicate some difference in procedure, as the number of appeals not decided in Basti and Gorakhpur, where also partition work is heavy, was very small. Appeals fell off in the courts of the Commissioners of Meerut, Rohilkhand and Lucknow and rose in those of Agra, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad. The number was considerably higher in Agra (479) and Gorakhpur (449) than in other divisions, and the number of appeals left for decision at the close of the year (86 and 83 cases) was therefore heaviest in these courts. The total number of cases pending at the beginning of the year in the courts of Commissioners was 464; a reduction was effected in all divisions except Agra and the balance at the close of the year was 389 cases. Sixty-two cases had been pending more than three months, of which 37 were in the Agra division.

There were 620 appeals to the Board under the Land Revenue Act, of which 423 were decided, the average duration being 2 months and 11 days; in 24 cases the orders of the lower courts were disturbed. One hundred and seventy-one cases came up for revision, of which 102 were disposed of with an average duration of one month and 17 days, the orders of the lower courts being interfered with in 17 cases. There were 68 appeals also under the Regulations of the Family Domains of the Mahārāja of Benares, of which 49 were decided.

85. The statistics of this subject are entered in Statements XXX-A and B.

In Agra, including arrears, there were 5,987 cases for disposal: 3,906 were decided and the pending file reduced from 2,243 to 2,081. Most of the cases decided are shown as otherwise disposed of; these are cases struck off on payment of the decree, withdrawn by the civil court, and so on. Sale took place of the whole property in 1,405 cases and of a portion in 110 cases; in five cases it was postponed under section 305, Civil Procedure Code, and in 30 cases only were arrangements made to avert sale by mortgaging, leasing or farming. There is reason for holding with the Commissioner of Meerut that the attempt to rescue small properties is inexpedient, as tending in the great majority of cases to rouse false hopes which are foredoomed to be disappointed, and it may be found advisable to fix a minimum value for the cases sent by the civil courts to Collectors.

In Oudh, including arrears, there were 925 applications for sale of ancestral land under civil court decrees, and 254 under rent court decrees. In the former, sale took place in 365 cases out of 734 in which sale was sanctioned, and in the latter in 112 out of 206 sanctioned. The figures for self-acquired property are of little importance, and only 35 sales took place.

86. Considerable extensions of the railway and canal systems account for the greater part of the area of 9,613 acres acquired during the year for which Rs. 8,97,008 were paid as compensation; 821 acres were restored, the price realized being Rs. 25,934.

§ 86.—Land acquisition.
Statement XXXI.

87. The progress made in this department was satisfactory. Of the seven district maps which had been sent last year to the Roorkee College Press for publication, five were published. Sixteen tahsil maps also were published, and when the year closed, the Roorkee College Press had fifteen more on hand for reproduction of which ten had been sent by this office during the year of report.

§ 87.—Maps.

88. There was a decrease, chiefly in the Meerut and Lucknow divisions, in the registered receipts and issues in the Revenue department of English district offices, the figures being 346,716 in 1903-1904 and 339,491 in the year under report. In the Fyzabad division there was an increase of 4,120 cases. The receipts and issues of the Board's office were 51,857, or practically the same as in the previous year. In district offices the total number of revenue cases for disposal fell from 1,740,654 to 1,721,337. The decrease was large in Rohilkhand and Benares, but in Agra there was a considerable increase. The number of cases disposed of also fell, and in the result the pending file was 1677 higher at the end of the year than at the beginning. The work in Moradabad where the number of cases for disposal is this year the highest in the provinces, and last year was exceeded only by Gorakhpur, appears from this return to be very heavy.

§ 88.—Total work in district offices.
Statement XXXII.

89. The only territorial change of importance during the year was the transfer of one hundred and two villages from the Gorakhpur to the Azamgarh district in connection with the formation of a new tahsil.

§ 89.—Territorial changes.

90. The total value of the property assigned or alienated, up to the close of the year under report, is Rs. 6,14,194, as against Rs. 6,19,295 in the previous year.

§ 90.—Assignment, etc., of land revenue in favour of grantees.
Statement XXXIII.

91. Some extension of railways and of canal irrigation might be noted, but these and other minor changes in economic conditions sink into insignificance before the series of disasters which led to such a sudden relapse from a period of prosperity. As an example of things at their worst, the district of Muttra may be taken. In this unfortunate district the heavy rains of 1904 were followed by very severe malaria. The rabi was seriously injured by the frost. Then came the plague, which carried off 50,624 people, destroying in some villages a quarter of the people, and is described by the Collector as a calamity even greater than the frost. Finally, the monsoon failed and the district is now face to face with famine. Muttra was unfortunate in sharing to a large degree in every calamity that visited the country, but in one way or another either by frost, by plague or by drought, there were few districts that escaped uninjured. The most hopeful thing that can be said of this unfortunate year is that the people met their misfortunes with determination and success. So far at least as the frost is concerned this can be said without hesitation. The provinces were then in an exceptionally strong position: prompt measures of revenue relief put heart in the people, and the reports bear unanimous testimony to the comparative ease with which a period of great strain and difficulty was passed through. The further calamity of drought has now to be faced with weakened resources, and months of scarcity and privation must be endured before any recovery is possible. Signs were not wanting, however, of an increased energy on the part of the people. Writing in October, the Commissioner of Agra observed that there was clearly a reserve force in the agricultural community which was then coming out, and all were working hard for their rabi. What the Director said in his Crop and Season Report about Bundelkhand may be quoted. After referring to extensions of canal irrigation and improvement of communications he continues :—

“Less obvious than these material improvements, but with even greater possibilities for the future, are certain indications that the people are putting more energy into their struggle with the natural disadvantages of the country. Thus in Bánda the embankment of fields is making good progress : in Jalaun the people are reported to be digging up káns in order to bring fresh land under cultivation : in Hamírpur, too, a large area of káns land was broken up for the rabi. * * * It has long been a commonplace in official literature that the poverty of Bundelkhand is due largely to the character of the people : these indications of the beginning of a change for the better may be fallacious, or the improvement may turn out to be merely temporary ; but if it be genuine and sustained the lenient revenue policy pursued during the last few years, just in itself, will be amply justified by its results.”

The Board are glad to be able to conclude their account of a gloomy year with observations which bear like these a promise for the future.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

R. W. GILLAN,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{1506}{1-331-1906}$ OF 1906.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 16th May 1906.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary, Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no. $\frac{944}{XII-163A(2)}$, dated the 12th March 1906, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1905.

OBSERVATIONS.—The report was again submitted punctually and reached the Government on the 14th March, a day earlier than it was due. As directed in paragraph 3 of last year's review, appendix XX-D, showing the number of leases for seven years or more executed during the year under report, has been omitted.

2. In concluding their report for the year 1903-4, after referring to the extensions of the railway system and of the canals, the increase in the cultivated area, the absence of deteriorated tracts, the heavy exports, the fall in prices, the demand for labourers and the amelioration of their circumstances, the increase in the agricultural stock, and the expansion of excise receipts, the Board summed up with the remark that no sign of prosperity was wanting; but after the report had been drafted unprecedented frosts did great damage to the crops and the Board had to add the remark that there can be no question that the outlook had changed very much for the worse. The report for the year 1904-5 more than bears out the anticipations then formed. The kharif of 1904 gave little, if anything, below an average crop except in Bundelkhand, where the outturn was so poor that revenue to the amount of Rs. 5,03,106 had to be remitted. The prospects of the rabi were excellent and the area under crops a record one, but the frosts at the end of January caused an immense amount of damage and the outturn for the province is estimated at one-third less than that of the previous year; the effect of this calamity was aggravated by the bulk of the loss falling on those districts which had shared least in the general prosperity. In the Allahabad division the loss was estimated at 60 per cent. The failure of the crops was followed by an immediate rise in prices averaging 25 per cent. With the harvest the fall in prices was slight and they rose again with the partial failure of the monsoon. This failure was most marked in the Allahabad and Agra divisions, and in Bundelkhand scarcity soon passed into famine. The effect of the preceding years of prosperity, however, has been to leave the people better able to withstand the adversities that have now fallen upon them. In Meerut and Rohilkhand and in Oudh the damage caused by the frost and the partial failure of the monsoon and the absence of winter rains notwithstanding, there are no signs of distress even among the labouring classes, who are earning good wages, while the agriculturist can still afford to pay them. In Bundelkhand, where the burden of the revenue payers had been relieved by large reductions in the demand, it was only after the serious failure of three successive harvests and the loss of a fourth in prospect that any distress began to manifest itself, while in Agra, where not only was the damage by the frost severe but the failure of the monsoon most complete, the consequent distress has been extremely localized and has manifested itself only to a very slight extent among the labourers, and may be said up to the present to be severe only among those who depend on the charity of people who, though not in need of relief themselves, could no longer afford to dispense it. Nevertheless the results of the year's calamities are visible throughout the Board's report. The rental collections fell from 90 per cent. of the demand to 84 per cent. in Agra and from 95 per cent. to 82 per cent. in Oudh. Rs. 42,79,319 of revenue were remitted and Rs. 77,004 suspended. Advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act amounted to Rs. 3,50,477—about three times the amount advanced in the previous year; while of Rs. 2,58,434 due on account of takavi and interest, only Rs. 1,49,266 was realized. The unfavourable outlook has more than checked the institutions of suits for enhancement, and is responsible for the decrease in the number of suits for ejectment.

3. The balance of uncollected rent at the end of the year is estimated at 138 lakhs in excess of the normal: against this must be put an increase in the rental demand between 1309 and 1312 fasli of 82 lakhs, remissions and suspensions of revenue of over 43 lakhs, a special reduction of some 8 lakhs in the revenue of Bundelkhand noted in last year's report, and $6\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs representing reductions for the half-year in the local rates owing to the abolition of the famine cess. These figures are significant as an indication of the extent by which the prosperity of the province was set back, and as evidence that notwithstanding the losses of the year the revenue payers on the whole are not much worse off than they were three years ago. The figures help to explain how in this exceptional year 99·9 per cent. of the realizable demand was collected without difficulty and without any increased resort to the severer processes of transfers and sales. Sale was necessary in one case only and transfers in twelve as compared with twenty-nine in the previous year. In other forms of processes there was an increase, but this is ascribed to a natural inclination on the part of the revenue payers to hold back for a time in the hope of establishing the need for further remissions. On the other hand, it must be remembered that the balance of unrealized rent not covered by remissions amounts to 52 lakhs, and that in the distressed districts arrears are practically irrecoverable from the tenants. In those districts special leniency in the collection of the current demand is justified.

4. In chapter III of the report the Board discuss at length the increase in litigation in Agra and its connexion with the Tenancy Act. The noticeable features of the year are (1) the number of institutions fell by nearly 5 per cent. and was lower than in any year since the passing of the Act; (2) the number of suits for arrears of rent fell by 2 per cent., but are still 22 per cent. above the average of the years from 1895 to 1899 and of the two following years; (3) applications for ejectment fell by 4 per cent.; (4) the number of suits for distraint fell by 21 per cent.; (5) suits for enhancement fell by 31 per cent.; (6) the number of surrenders was smaller than in any year since 1895-6; (7) suits for ejectment fell by 7·4 per cent.; (8) the area held under leases for more than seven years, though still insignificant, was 75,499 acres larger than in any previous year. The decrease in the number of suits for arrears of rent is small and the great increase in the number of such suits that has taken place since the passing of the Tenancy Act was almost maintained. With a largely increased area under cultivation and enhanced rent rates, other things being equal, some increase in the number of these suits might have been expected; but as in Oudh, where there has been a decrease of 22 per cent., the successive good harvests by increasing the rent-paying capacity of the tenants should more than have counteracted the natural increase. That it has not done so in Agra must be ascribed mainly to the facilities offered for the recovery of rent decreed, as evidenced by the decrease in the number of distraint cases; and partly to the more efficient means of breaking the continuity of a tenure offered by section 59 than does ejectment by suit and this without the necessity of dispossessing the tenant for a year. The fall in the number of suits for enhancement is no doubt partly due to the increasing custom of suing tenants jointly, but is also the natural reaction after the large enhancements effected of recent years and the result of the unfavourable agricultural conditions.

5. The question of ejectments is the one to which the Board have mainly directed attention. One of the chief objects of the Act was to place restrictions on the ejectment of tenants. It was believed that the difficulty that would be experienced by landlords in making the ejectment effective by dispossessing a tenant for a year would reduce the number of ejectments to an insignificant figure. The experience of the last $3\frac{3}{4}$ years and the special inquiries made under the orders of the Board, lead them to the conclusion that in this respect the Act has failed. It was also hoped that the difficulties intentionally placed in the way of ejectment would induce the landholder to grant long leases as the only means of preventing the accrual of occupancy rights. This hope would appear to have been frustrated by the facility with which the landlords have overcome the difficulties of effective ejectment, and by the suspicion with which they regard the provisions of sections 67 and 68.

When allowance is made for the number of suits in which the object of the ejectment is to obtain an enhancement of rent and not to break the tenancy, the fact that two-thirds of the ejectments were effective, the tenants being dispossessed, would seem to justify the Board's conclusion that the landlords have succeeded in overcoming the difficulties placed in the way of ejectments and that to this extent the Act has been a failure. Ejectments there must always be. The owners of small properties with an ever-increasing number of co-sharers who urgently require land cannot afford to permit the growth of occupancy right or to give up for any long period the control of their land. It may however be hoped that, as the Board, anticipate the number of ejectments will soon fall to the normal number of the years previous to the passing of the Act. The people now know the Act; the friction caused by uncertainty as to the provisions and effect of the new legislation has now passed away. It is observed that ejectment proceedings are seldom directed against the whole of the land in possession of a tenant. Cases are rare in which an ejected tenant is left without land to cultivate. Often a relative of an ejected tenant becomes the tenant, and exchanges of holdings still take place, though both holdings are not under the same landlord. In short, the provisions of the Act have not restricted ejectment, but the provision that ejectment to be effective must mean dispossession for a year is evaded to the advantage and convenience of the tenant. Ejectments go on in the same way as before the Act was passed.

6. It is unnecessary to discuss the possible effects in the future of sections 67 and 68, which deal with ejectment of tenants holding under a registered lease for a term of not less than seven years. The Government agrees with the Board that amendment of the substantive provisions of the Act need not be undertaken, but that the question of altering the procedure in ejectment cases must be considered. The Board suggest a reversion to the procedure of ejectment by notices. Under Act XII of 1881 a notice of ejectment was served on the tenant through the office of the tahsildar between the first day of January and the first day of April. The tenant was allowed thirty days to apply to the assistant collector to contest his liability to ejectment, and even when the question was decided adversely to the tenant it was necessary for the landlord to apply for assistance to eject.

For this procedure the Tenancy Act substituted a regular suit to be instituted between the thirtieth day of June and the first day of October. Ejectment in execution of a decree must ordinarily (section 73) take effect from the first day of July next following the institution of the suit. The court fee payable on the suit is the ad-valorem duty under the Court Fees Act based on the amount of rent payable by the tenant.

7. It is found that under the system of suits as well as under the previous system of notices the contested cases are about 25 per cent. of the whole. It is not possible to relieve the assistant collector of the duty of coming to a decision in contested cases, and the system of suits has the advantage that the burden of proof is throughout thrown upon the landlord. Under a system of notices the burden of proof is improperly placed on the tenant. It is impracticable to combine a system of notices for uncontested cases with a system of suits for contested cases, and in the opinion of the Lieutenant Governor a system of suits is on the whole to be preferred.

8. The main objection to the present procedure is due to the dates fixed by the Act for the institution of suits. When a landlord files his claims on the 30th September instead of on the 31st March, the courts are forced to dispose of the cases in camp in the cold weather. This change of date seriously interferes with the ordinary work of assistant collectors and patwaris and causes great inconvenience and expense to the parties who are obliged to attend with their pleaders at the camp of the assistant collector. It is desirable that the bulk of the cases should be disposed of at head quarters in July, August, and September, the few cases in which local inquiry is necessary being postponed. It seems possible also to simplify the procedure in suits. The landlord might be obliged to file with his plaint a certified copy of the entries regarding the tenant in the last record deposited at the tahsil. This copy would be admissible as evidence under sections 27, Act III of 1901, and 65(e) of the Evidence Act. It would thus never be necessary to summon the patwari in uncontested cases.

9. As regards the cost of suits the facts are not clear. It would be possible by legislation to amend the schedule of the Tenancy Act and reduce the court fee, but the main cause of expenditure in these suits will disappear if the suits are heard at head quarters during the rains. The present fee may act as a check on the filing of speculative claims and on the practice of including all the fields of a tenant in a plaint which rightly should be confined to a holding of a few numbers.

10. In paragraphs 53 and 54 the Board deal with the increase of recent years in the work in the courts of original jurisdiction in Agra and point out that since 1898-9 the work has increased by 30 per cent. The Tenancy Act is responsible for a portion of this increase, but a part is also due to the natural tendency of litigation to increase. It is necessary to consider to what extent, if any, the staff requires strengthening to meet this increase of work. The cadre of deputy collectors was fixed in 1903 to provide for the staff required by each district according to the recommendations made in 1892 by Mr. Alexander and for a limited number of officers holding special appointments or on temporary deputations. No provision was made for the natural increase in litigation since 1892 or the constantly increasing demands of the administration, nor of course for the exceptional, and it is hoped temporary, increase of work due directly to the Tenancy Act. Government desires specially to recognize the pluck and energy that has been displayed by all officers in coping with the extraordinary amount of work they have had to deal with. The number of pending cases has increased, but it is creditable to all concerned that the pending file is no larger than it is. To meet special demands for purely temporary duties not taken into consideration when the cadre was fixed, it has been found necessary to take advantage of the sanction accorded in the Secretary of State's despatch no. 90 Public, dated the 7th August 1903, and to appoint temporary additional deputy collectors. In view of the circumstances referred to below, the Lieutenant Governor is not prepared at present to recommend a permanent increase in the staff.

It is still hoped that there will eventually be a decrease in the abnormal litigation of recent years and the report under review lends some support to this hope. Till a definite idea can be formed of the amount of work to be disposed of, it is not possible to fix a standard for the staff of each district.

The number of civilians recruited in recent years has exceeded the number of casualties: and the number of retirements in the next few years will be small.

For a time settlement work has nearly come to an end and several civilians and a considerable number of deputy collectors will thus be relieved for district work; more civilians will also be available with the completion of their work by the special judges appointed under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. The number of available officers will thus shortly be considerably increased and will, it is hoped, with an occasional and temporary addition to the staff be sufficient to enable them to deal with the work.

11. In addition to the increase of work directly traceable to the Tenancy Act, a very heavy file of partition cases was down for disposal, the number having risen to no less than 7,569 owing to the removal of restrictions on imperfect partitions. Advantage has been taken of the change in the law to a far greater extent than was anticipated, and the Board urge that some minimum should be fixed to the area of the pattis that can be formed by imperfect partitions. There are strong objections to the creation of separate properties of an acre and even less and Government will await any definite proposals the Board may wish to make.

The reported increase in the difficulty of obtaining lambardars even in the western districts is unsatisfactory, and in this connexion it is strange that lambardars should have taken so little advantage of the provisions of section 184 of the Land Revenue Act. There must be some reason for its not being more extensively resorted to, and the matter is deserving of inquiry.

12. The year has been one of calamities—frost and drought, fever and plague, and it is satisfactory that the people, backed by a greater reserve of strength and encouraged by prompt relief, have met their misfortune with determination and success. The good work done by district officers and their assistants in dealing with the increase of work has already been recognized, and the thanks of Government are also due to Commissioners for their careful supervision during the year and to the Board for a clear and concise report.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, for the information of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of this Resolution be published in the United Provinces Government Gazette.

REPORT
REVENUE ADMINISTRATION,
FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1905-6, ENDING 30TH SEPTEMBER 1906.

No. $\frac{476}{\text{XII-163A(3)}}$ OF 1907.

FROM

R. W. GILLAN, Esq., I.C.S.,
SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

TO

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 16th February 1907.

SIR,

Present:
THE HON'BLE
MR. A. W.
CRUICKSHANK,
C.S.I.

MR. C. BAILLIE,
Esq., I.C.S.

I AM directed by the Board to submit their report on the revenue administration of these provinces for the year ending the 30th September 1906. Except for a few days at the beginning of October 1905, the Members of the Board throughout the year were Messrs. Hooper, Hardy and Cruickshank.

2. The district reports from Agra, Muttra, Gorakhpur and Pilibhit were about a fortnight late, but from other districts were submitted with commendable punctuality. Most of the divisional reports also were punctual and the delay in the submission of the Allahabad report, which was not received till the 18th December, has been explained. The Board are glad to acknowledge the assistance received from the press in the early completion of their report.

3. The year which falls to be described in the present report was one of great vicissitudes. The provinces had suffered severely from the great frost of 1905, and the rains of 1905 were very partial; thus at the beginning of the year conditions were extremely unfavourable. The early part of the cold weather also was exceptionally dry. It is true that both the autumn and spring crops were saved at the last moment by opportune rain throughout the greater part of the provinces, but in the Agra and Allahabad divisions, the succession of bad seasons led eventually to famine. The rains of 1906, on the other hand, have been plenteous: recovery has been wonderfully rapid, and the outlook at the end of the year was as promising as at the beginning of the year it had been gloomy.

4. The monsoon of 1905 was late in arriving: the amount of rain which it distributed was abnormally scanty and it closed at a date unusually early. In June the rainfall was in defect everywhere. On the 4th of July a storm reached the eastern districts, but it was not till the 11th of that month that the monsoon was generally established. After the first burst also the great bulk of the rainfall was for some time directed to the east of the provinces. In Benares, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad during July and August it was in excess. In Lucknow it was 9·20 inches in July and 8·36 inches in August, about two or three inches below the normal in each month. In Rohilkhand the deficiency was much more marked, but no great harm was done except in parts of Budaun, which suffered severely. From the west and south-west borders of the provinces, the divisions of Meerut and Agra, and the districts of Bundelkhand the monsoon practically retreated for some six or seven weeks, and during this prolonged break the conditions often resembled those of the hot weather rather than those of the rains. In this tract the rainfall was not more than some four or five inches in July and two inches in August. In September the rainfall did much to relieve a critical situation. On the 7th a depression, crossing to the south of the provinces, turned right-handed and gave rain to the west of the provinces: another on the 10th brought general rain, and on the 27th there was a third which appears to have crossed through Jhansi and the divisions of Agra and Rohilkhand. During this month the rainfall in the three western divisions and Allahabad was about three or four inches, in Fyzabad five, Gorakhpur seven, and Benares twelve. In all divisions it was somewhat below normal and it was not universal. The east of Unao, for instance, received ample rain from a storm about the middle of the month, while the west was left dry. The storm of the 10th gave heavy rain to the north of the Agra district, and very little to the south. But generally the effect of the September rain was to avert the disaster that threatened large tracts in which the rainfall of previous months had been most deficient, and the area of serious loss was restricted to Unao, to the country along and south of the Jumna, including the districts of Muttra, Agra, the south of Etawah and Cawnpore, and the greater part of Bundelkhand.

5. In the rabi the situation was saved in a very similar fashion. In October there were showers in Benares and Gorakhpur; but elsewhere the month was rainless, and the ground moisture was very generally insufficient for sowings. During November, December and January the drought unfortunately continued. In districts where the rains had been deficient the effects were serious. The Commissioner of Rohilkhand says that even in November the jhils and tanks were dried up and the country presented the appearance which ordinarily it wears in March. The outturn of fodder crops had been reduced by the partial failure of the rains, and little grass was left after September. The price of fodder rose to an extraordinary height, and the cattle, overworked as they were, had to be fed on the leaves of trees, or even, as in Aligarh, on the baisurai weed, which generally it is said is rejected by goats. In the dry tracts even the most prosperous districts were affected: Meerut had actually to import fodder, and in part of Bulandshahr there was a severe fodder famine. Fortunately, however, long after the time when rain might ordinarily be expected, in February there was a heavy fall throughout the provinces which completely changed the aspect of affairs. It was too late to be of much use in the east of the provinces, where, however, it was least required, and it could not save the crops on unirrigated land in districts like Muttra or in Bundelkhand, where things were at their worst. But generally it was of enormous benefit to the standing crops: in addition it supplemented a short canal supply; it gave the cattle a respite, and it brought up a new crop of grass.

6. The Director has this year worked out normals for some of the areas to be considered and the following remarks are taken generally from his Season and Crop Report:—

§§ 6-9.—Areas.

In the kharif the sowing season was not on the whole unfavourable; prices were high, food stocks had been reduced, and the people were anxious to repair as soon as possible the losses they had suffered in the frost. On the whole the kharif area was almost exactly normal, and it was $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent. higher than in the previous year. The only districts which showed a serious decrease were Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bijnor and Muttra, and in three of these districts there had been an exceptional increase in the preceding year. In Bundelkhand sowings in 1904 were reduced by excessive rain and in 1905 an increase was to be looked for. Owing to the absence of the record staff on survey and settlement work the figures are not complete, but it appears that in Banda and Jhansi a great increase did take place: in Jalaun, on the contrary, there seems to have been a large decrease. It is curious to note that the expansion of the kharif area was largest in the doab portion of the Allahabad division and in the districts of Oudh adjoining it, that is to say in the very tract that had suffered most severely from the frost. The distribution of kharif crops was not widely different from the normal, but there was rather more maize and bajra than usual, the first probably because food was wanted as early as possible, and the second because sowings were delayed. The cotton and cane figures require special attention. Last year it was observed that, favoured both by climatic conditions and by high prices, the cotton area had increased 40 per cent. since the previous year, but was still not above the average of 1900—1903. In the year under report, it again rose 14 per cent., and was higher than in any year, certainly since 1891-2. The cane area was very low in 1902-3 and 1903-4: in 1904-5 it was extended in the hope of higher prices, and good rain at sowing time led to a further slight increase in the area of the crop harvested in the spring of 1906. Fears are expressed in some of the reports as to the effects of the competition of foreign sugar, and one officer goes so far as to say that unless steps are taken to prevent it, cane cultivation may follow the same course as indigo. The figures of the last few years indicate that these fears are exaggerated, but future developments will have to be carefully watched. The maintenance, and if opium cultivation is to be restricted, the extension of the sugarcane area is desirable. India ought not to be merely self-supporting in the matter of sugar; it should supply other countries, and Mr. Moreland is attacking the problem in the best possible way by improving methods of manufacture and reducing the cost of production.

7. In the rabi the desirability of sowing a large area was even more marked than in the kharif, but the opportunities were less. In the result the rabi area, according to the returns, was 10 per cent. less than in the previous year, and 3 per cent. below normal. The returns, however, understate the decrease, being incomplete for Bundelkhand where the decrease must have been greatest. Variations from district to district were generally in inverse order to the variations in the kharif, and the largest decreases were in the lower doab, and in some of the adjoining districts of Oudh. In Budaun also the rabi area was seriously contracted. On the other hand, the only districts in which the rabi area increased were Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Kheri and Fyzabad: the first two have been noted as showing a large decrease in the kharif, and in the other two the increase was small. In particular crops the most striking feature was a serious decline in the area under wheat. The Director is no doubt right in considering that in tracts that are not largely dependent on other valuable crops, such as sugarcane or opium, the wheat area is the best index of the prosperity of the people. But in the present case the effect of the frost must be borne in mind. Wheat seed was not only dear but of bad quality, and this circumstance in itself, apart from any reduction in general prosperity, must have favoured the temporary substitution of other crops. The poppy area increased by more than 45,000 acres or 11 per cent. The increase was general, but was largest in South Oudh, and was due no doubt to the need of money at the time when opium advances are given. The extension of money-making crops, cane and cotton in the kharif and poppy in the rabi, was a factor of considerable importance in a year of generally adverse conditions.

8. As noted in last year's report, the great losses due to frost led the people in 1905 to extend the cultivation of the zaid or hot weather crops by no less than 154,376 acres, or 68 per cent. of the area in the preceding year. The unfavourable character of the year under report is reflected in a further increase of 17 per cent. in the zaid area of 1906. In 1905 the expansion was greatest in some of the Oudh districts. In 1906 there was a very large increase in the three western divisions; in Allahabad, in Gorakhpur and Benares the increase was slight, and in Oudh there was a falling off from the abnormal area of 1905.

9. The net result of a normal kharif, a short rabi and a very large zaid area was that the total area under crops was about 3 per cent. less than in the preceding year and one per cent. below normal. Owing to the dryness of the season, the double-cropped area was somewhat reduced, and as a consequence the falling off was less in the cultivated than in the total cropped area. Compared with last year, cultivation fell $2\frac{1}{2}$ per cent.: but last year's figure was the highest on record, and compared with the normal the deficiency was only half of one per cent.

10. A statement of the estimated yield of each crop in terms of the normal is given in statement V of the Director's Season and Crop Report, but the figures have to be taken with a good deal of caution. Over sufficiently wide areas the personal equation may be disregarded, but Mr. Moreland notices a general tendency to underestimate good crops and to overestimate bad crops, and the Board have noticed in many of the reports received considerable discrepancies between the general description of the character of the crops and the numerical estimate of the yield. There seems in fact to be little doubt that in many cases 100 is taken to represent a bumper, rather than an average crop, and that an average crop would not be returned as yielding more than 85 or at the most 90 per cent. of the supposed normal. These tendencies have to be borne in mind in interpreting the following figures, which are supposed to represent the yield in terms of a normal crop. In the kharif it was juar for some reason that did worst: for the provinces as a whole, the yield was 65 and in Agra, Allahabad and Lucknow it was only 55. Bajra did better on the whole (75) but was bad in Meerut, Agra and Allahabad. Maize was only half the normal in Gorakhpur, where it was damaged by heavy rain in August: elsewhere it was 70 to 80 per cent. of the assumed normal. It appears from most of the reports that late rice suffered from the early cessation of the rains, but it is only in Oudh that the appendix to the Director's report shows a difference between the yield of late and early rice, and it is probable that the provincial averages, which were returned as 75 and 80 per cent., understate the actual difference in the outturn of these two crops. Cotton was best (85 per cent.) in Rohilkhand but it was only a third to a half of the normal in Muttra, Agra and Bundelkhand, which together contain 30 per cent. of the total acreage under this crop, and for the provinces as a whole the outturn was reduced to 75 per cent. It is curious to note the wide divergence in the yield of this staple in the adjoining districts of Mainpuri and Muttra. In Mainpuri it was a bumper crop: in Muttra the pods did not fill. Its failure in Muttra was ascribed to drought; but the Collector now thinks it was due more probably to boll-worm: possibly, as in the Punjab, the frost had destroyed some enemy of the boll-worm which normally keeps it in check, but why this should have happened only in Muttra it is impossible to say.

11. The rabi did much better than the kharif. Cereals in fact were a very fair crop everywhere except in Allahabad, averaging 80 to 85 for the provinces, and rising to 95 in Oudh. Gram was bad both in Agra and Allahabad; it was good in Oudh, but for the provinces as a whole only 75 per cent. Linseed was a failure in Allahabad where it is important. Cane was good generally, and very good in Oudh, but it was inferior in Rohilkhand and in Meerut it was only 60 per cent.; the Board are not certain however that a return of 50 per cent. in the Meerut district is correct, since no other district in the division shows less than 70 per cent. Opium was a good crop nearly everywhere.

Taking into account the percentage to normal not only of the estimated yield but of the area sown, the Director calculates that the total outturn was best in the case of opium and cotton (97 and 93 per cent.); cane, wheat, barley and bajra gave 80 to 82 per cent., rice and maize about 75, and juar and gram less than 70 per cent. To compare the fortunes of different divisions, it is clear that Oudh did better than any other part of the provinces, and Fyzabad was better than Lucknow. Next came Rohilkhand, Benares and Gorakhpur. Lastly Meerut, Agra and Allahabad, Allahabad being much the worst of the three.

12. The history of the famine, which was the consequence of drought and absence or insufficiency of irrigation, has been given in the Resolution of this Government No. $\frac{1304}{8-82}$, dated the 14th December 1906, but may be mentioned briefly in this report. The area in which famine was declared lay in the tract on the south-west border of the provinces which has been mentioned at the end of paragraph 4. The famine was thus restricted in extent, but it was unquestionably severe. Throughout the whole tract extensive damage had been done by the frost in the preceding rabi, and the Bundelkhand districts had suffered in the kharif both of 1903 and 1904. The scarcity of water and fodder also has been described as unprecedented. In Jalaun Mr. Cooke writes that the monsoon rainfall of 1905 was nine inches and during the last fifty years for which records exist, the only failure of the monsoon which can be compared with it was in 1877, and in 1877, $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches were received in September. Thus the water famine was serious, and in the circumstance that the people were driven to seek their supply from holes dug in the river beds and polluted pools is to be found one explanation of a heavy mortality. Owing to the frost again the spring harvest had produced little straw fodder and the kharif did less than might have been expected even in a famine year to add to the supply. The Collector of Jalaun was told by men who remembered the famines of 1868-9, 1877-8 and 1896-7 that in none of those years, was fodder so scarce, that though juar produced no heads there was much stalk everywhere and that grass did not fail so completely. Government did all it could to meet the situation by opening the forests areas in Bundelkhand to free grazing and exporting hay, but nothing could prevent a deplorable loss of agricultural stock. Of the extent of this loss no estimate can be framed, but it is illustrated by some striking figures relating to the town of Kunch in Jalaun. In this market during the year ending the 31st March 1905, 33,641 cattle were sold and 11,779 slaughtered; during the year ending March 1906 the numbers rose to 119,682 and 48,600. With the measures of famine relief, properly so called, this report has of course no concern, but the revenue measures adopted, remissions of revenue, and distribution of takavi were of very great importance and will be dealt with in their proper place.

As though the famine were not enough, the end of the cold weather was marked by exceptional hailstorms, which visited several of the districts, affected by drought. One hailstorm swept right across the Meerut district, damaging eighty-seven villages. Another traversed Agra, Etawah and parts of Cawnpore, and there were severe hailstorms also in Unao and Rae Bareilly.

13. The monsoon of 1906 reversed the conditions in different parts of the provinces. The eastern districts suffered both from excessive rain in August and deficiency in September.

§ 13.—Monsoon of 1906.

The rain in August brought heavy floods down the Gogra and Rapti and great loss resulted, especially in Gorakhpur, while the early cessation of the monsoon did further damage. But the reservations to be made are exceptionally small, and the point to be emphasized is that in the great majority of districts the rainfall was timely and plentiful and that the provinces as a whole have had an exceedingly good season. In Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand the kharif appears to have been a bumper crop; in Rohilkhand the Commissioner says it is the best kharif that has been secured for years and in many parts is 25 per cent. above the normal. In Bundelkhand it is satisfactory to note that, in spite of a series of calamities, a very full area had been sown. A single season appears to have restored the provinces after a period of depression, and in parts of famine, to a condition of prosperity.

14. The exceptional dryness of the seasons in 1905, agriculturally so disastrous, was beneficial to the public health, and the mortality was 11 per cent. less than in the previous year. It is a matter of congratulation, even from the purely agricultural point of view, that in the revenue year under report the plague mortality fell from 429,000 to 61,000. Cholera, on the other hand, was very prevalent and the number of cholera deaths rose from 24,000 to 214,000. The heavy rains of 1906 also led to a severe outbreak of fever, so that the last quarter of the year was generally unhealthy. On the year, as a whole, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad report a considerable increase of mortality, Allahabad shows practically no change; there was a considerable decrease in Benares, Lucknow and Rohilkhand, and a large decrease in Meerut and Agra. The advantage was therefore very distinctly with the west of the provinces. The effect of the famine on the health of the people has been discussed in paragraph 16 of the Government Resolution of the 14th December. Among the reports now received the Board observe that in Cawnpore a careful comparison of the famine tahsils with the remainder of the district is said to show that none of the mortality can be attributed to privation, but more generally the conclusion is that, though there was only a single death from starvation, the people were enfeebled and succumbed more readily to disease; the failure of a proper water-supply must also be remembered. Thus in the April-June quarter of 1906, when generally as compared with the corresponding quarter of 1905 there was a large decrease of mortality, in Allahabad there was an increase, and in July-September the increase in Allahabad was much larger than in any other division.

15. A brief mention of the trade returns is relevant in this report. Figures are available only up to March 1906, and as they are for the financial year they show the effects of the frost of 1905, as well as of the drought towards the end of that year. They are instructive, however, as indicating the general condition of the provinces before the monsoon of 1906, and they illustrate one or two other matters that are dealt with in this report.

As compared with the previous financial year, imports in 1905-6 rose by 97 lakhs of maunds, and exports fell off by 232 lakhs. The imports of cotton goods decreased; the imports of grain and pulse rose from 47 to 94 lakhs of maunds, 34 lakhs of the increase going to the Allahabad and Agra divisions. As bearing on the remarks made about cane cultivation in paragraph 6, it may be noted that the imports of sugar, which had fallen by 1,05,653 maunds in 1904-5, rose by 3,33,190 maunds and that the increase is attributed to the low price of beet. In exports there was a decrease of 175 lakhs of maunds under wheat, of $31\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of maunds under other grains and of 64 lakhs of maunds under oilseeds. The exports of cotton, on the other hand, rose from $13\frac{3}{4}$ to $23\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of maunds: large stocks of the previous crop were available, and though, as already observed, the 1905 crop was poor in Bundelkhand, Muttra and Agra, a large area had been sown and the yield for the provinces was better than in 1904.

As a consequence of bad harvests internal trade was very brisk throughout the year, and the total rail-borne traffic rose from 152 to $226\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs of maunds. The figures may be utilized to show divisional results by calculating the net balance of exports and imports between the different blocks: the Meerut block, for example, may be judged to have fared better than Agra, since it exported 2,71,000 maunds more to that block than it imported from it. If this calculation is made, it will be found that the balance was in favour of Rohilkhand as against all other divisions. Oudh had an advantage compared with all divisions except Rohilkhand, and Benares sent more to Meerut, Agra and Allahabad than it received from those divisions.

16. In their reports for 1902-3 and 1903-4 the Board had occasion to notice a remarkable fall which had brought down prices to the level of fifteen or twenty years ago. The frost of 1905, however, caused a sudden and universal rise of some 25 per cent.; the unfavourable prospects of the monsoon operated in the same direction and, except in the case of rice, prices in September 1905 were from 25 to 33 per cent. higher than in September 1904. They were then lowest on the whole in Rohilkhand and highest in Agra, Allahabad and Benares.

The course of prices during the year generally corresponds very closely to the vicissitudes of the seasons and the various fortunes of the different divisions. The poor outturn of the kharif and the absence of the cold weather rains continued to force up prices which in December were quite 15 per cent. for the provinces generally above the prices of September. But owing to a comparatively good harvest, the rise was small in Benares and the area of lowest prices was at this time in the east of the provinces; the highest range of prices was naturally in Agra and Allahabad. With the rain in February the prices of rabi grains had begun to drop, and by June wheat and barley were about 15 per cent. and gram 8 per cent. cheaper than in December: the drop was most marked in Rohilkhand and least in Allahabad, Benares and Gorakhpur, but the December prices were no doubt speculative and the fall cannot be exactly correlated to the comparative outturn of the harvests in different divisions. The prices of kharif grains, on the contrary, continued to rise and were 5 to 10 per cent. higher in June than they had been in December. The figures of September 1906 show the turn of the seasons to prosperous conditions; the prices of rabi grains were practically the same as in June but already the prospects of the harvest then ripening had brought down the price of rice and bajra by some 5 per cent. and of jwar and maize by 20 per cent. There are variations, however, that show very clearly the varying effects of the seasons in different divisions. In Allahabad and the three western divisions the fall was very large indeed: in Oudh and Gorakhpur it affected the price only of one or two grains, and in Benares there was some increase all round. The result was that at the end of the year, the dearth of grain increased from west to east through the provinces: prices were lowest in Meerut and Agra, and they were highest in Benares and Gorakhpur. The prices of all grains, however, were still above the normal in all divisions: and for the provinces generally the excess cannot be put at less than 25 per cent.

17. During the last few years there has been a general and continuous rise in the holdings area, which was undoubtedly due to the prosperity of the provinces before the frost. In the year under report the figures in the appendix show a further slight increase, but in five of the districts in the Allahabad division, owing to survey or settlement operations being in progress, previous figures had to be repeated either last year or this and the returns are therefore misleading. Excluding the Allahabad figures the total was very slightly below the total of the previous year. There was a nearly general but not a marked increase in Oudh and Benares, and some increase due to extended cultivation in Etah, Bareilly, Shahjahanpur, Pilibhit, Fatehpur, Allahabad and Gorakhpur. The rest of the districts in the Agra province show moderate decreases.

The principal changes in the distribution of the holdings area in Agra were a decrease of 72,386 acres in khudkasht, an increase of 36,738 acres in ex-proprietary holdings, of 58,282 acres in occupancy holdings, of 54,181 acres in 12-year holdings, of 78,174 acres in the area held under seven-year leases, and a decrease of 110,790 acres in the area held otherwise than on long lease for less than twelve years. The decrease in khudkasht is due partly to the transference of khudkasht to sir in the new settlement record of Jalaun (19,000 acres), and partly to the elimination of fraudulent entries in Basti (14,000 acres): the balance is due to loss of proprietary rights, which accounts also for the increase in the ex-proprietary area, and to ordinary fluctuations resulting from the season. The increase in occupancy holdings is in two districts only, Jalaun and Etah, and is due to the revision of records; all other districts show the usual small decrease. The increase of 12-year holdings is normal, while the decrease in holdings of less than twelve years is the net result of the other changes.

The subject of seven-year leases will be considered in chapter III.

In Oudh the only marked change is an increase of 142,000 acres under khudkasht and thekadars' cultivation. The record of khudkasht in Oudh is receiving attention from the Board, and will be the subject of a reference to Government.

18. The figures relating to rental collections are interesting. The percentage of collections to demand in the appendices shows an improvement, as compared with the previous year, from 84 to 85 in the province of Agra and from 82 to 97 in Oudh. The demand however means in this connection merely the current demand; what is required for comparison is the real demand, including arrears, and this cannot be stated. It is more instructive therefore to compare the collections for the last three years in another way. In 1904-5, the current demand was 27 lakhs higher than in 1903-4, but, owing to the frost, arrears collections fell off 6 lakhs, collections on current account by no less than 81 lakhs, and deducting remissions the Board estimated that at the end of the year the balance was more than 50 lakhs above the normal. In the year under report the collections on account of arrears increased very largely, the total increase in the Agra province being 29½ lakhs, but on account of current demand they were 7½ lakhs less than in the previous year. The results in Oudh were striking. Fyzabad collected about 15½ lakhs more on current account, and 12½ lakhs more for arrears: in Lucknow, where the difference in the seasons of the two years was perhaps more marked than in any other division, arrear collections increased by 16¼ lakhs, and collections on current account by no less than 42½ lakhs.

From the fact that the collections on account of arrears are 58 lakhs higher than in the previous year, it would seem that the outstandings have been reduced to a normal figure. But the payments on current account were less satisfactory than usual, a fact which, in Oudh at least, is concealed by the percentage of collections shown in the appendix. Collections out of the current demand in 1903-4 were for Agra 685 lakhs, in Oudh 380½ lakhs: 90 per cent., assuming that to be a fair percentage for collection, of the enhancements since effected, would be 36 and 27½ lakhs. On this basis, 721 lakhs should have been collected in Agra and 407½ lakhs in Oudh. But the actual collections on current account were only 644½ lakhs and 390½ lakhs. Thus there was a shortage of 76½ lakhs, of which some 55 lakhs belong to the Agra and Allahabad divisions, in the Agra province and of 17½ lakhs in Oudh.

19. The figures in the preceding paragraph suggest that recent enhancements of rent have been very large. The subject was mentioned by the Board last year, in order to show the general prosperity of the provinces before the frost, and the effect on litigation undertaken with the object of enhancement. In five years the cash incidence had risen 5·4 per cent. in Agra, and 8 per cent. in Oudh, and these figures understate the rise in the rents affected since the majority of the rents in Agra, and some of the rents even in Oudh are not liable to arbitrary enhancement: in Oudh the rise in the rents of ordinary tenants had been 9·5 per cent., or at the rate of 57 per cent. during a settlement period of thirty years. The year under report added some 19 lakhs in Agra, and 21 lakhs in Oudh to the rental demand. In Oudh there is an increase of 13 lakhs under the head of grain rents, which is due to favourable seasons in the districts where these rents prevail; but the enhancement of 8 lakhs in the cash rental was at the high rate of 2·2 per cent. for a single year. In Agra the whole increase is under cash rents, and it is remarkable that in spite of the prevalence of the occupancy tenure the rise should have been 2·2 per cent., exactly as in Oudh.

Chapter II.—FINANCIAL.

20. Exclusive of nominal items, the total demand from all sources of income during the year of report amounted to Rs. 8,39,07,231 compared with Rs. 8,15,93,084 in the previous year. This difference of over 23 lakhs was caused chiefly by the very large increase in the demand for occupiers' rate which was due to the failure of the monsoon, and in a lesser degree by the rise in the demand for takavi advances. In spite of remissions of 37 lakhs on account of drought, hailstorms and other calamities, the collections aggregated Rs. 7,92,25,432 as against Rs. 7,69,38,588 in 1904-5, but the increase is more than accounted for under occupiers' rate, the improvement under other heads, chiefly land revenue, being very much less than the large falling off in the demand for rates and cesses, and collections were still much less than in 1903-4, when they reached nearly 831 lakhs.

21. The land revenue accounts are shown in appendices I—III, but it will make for clearness if the figures are combined and arranged. The amount carried forward from the previous year for recovery was Rs. 1,54,368 (Rs. 1,47,315 in appendix II and Rs. 7,053 in appendix III); this sum consisted about half of ordinary arrears and half of suspensions granted on account of the frost. The fixed demand (land revenue on the roll) was Rs. 6,41,83,391, so that the total for collection at the beginning of the year was Rs. 6,43,37,759. The demands added during the year (land revenue not on the roll) were Rs. 72,949; the important items being Rs. 11,034 on account of villages annually assessed in Pilibhit, and Rs. 49,319 on account of regular assessments declared after the 1st of October in Azamgarh. On the other hand there were considerable reductions in the demand (nominal balances) amounting to Rs. 2,45,933 in all three appendices. The greater part of this sum (Rs. 1,66,469) is due to the special reductions in Bundelkhand, which having been granted as a personal allowance to old proprietors and liable to resumption on transfer, have not been removed from the revenue roll; Rs. 32,331 are accounted for by diluvion, chiefly in Ballia and Ghazipur, Rs. 15,839 by the acquisition of land, Rs. 13,144 by grants for loyal services, and Rs. 11,322 by reductions at regular revision of settlement. In addition there are items aggregating Rs. 12,057 which, though shown in the statements as irrecoverable, were really reductions of demand. The total of the reductions made during the year was thus Rs. 2,57,990, and the real demand, allowing both for reductions and additions, was Rs. 6,41,52,718.

22. The chief feature of the accounts is the large amount of suspensions and remissions necessitated by failure of the crops. In the proposals submitted various points of interest have been raised and discussed, but as the proposals have all been before Government, and any amendments in procedure which suggested themselves have been embodied in a draft circular, it is unnecessary to detail them now. It will be sufficient to state that the amount of relief was determined in Bundelkhand by the special scale prescribed for that tract, in other districts generally by the scale prescribed by the Government of India in their Resolution No. 3-99—2 of the 25th March 1905, but that in tracts which had suffered from a series of bad harvests the scale had to be modified in the direction of liberality; that in the kharif postponements and suspensions were frequently ordered till the outturn of the rabi should be ascertained, but that in the rabi the rule was to settle the account finally and that suspensions beyond the year were very seldom permitted. The remissions out of the kharif demand, whether sanctioned in the kharif or subsequently in the rabi, were about 12½ lakhs: nearly 5 lakhs in Muttra, Agra and Etawah, 6½ lakhs in the Allahabad division and over a lakh in Unao. The remissions out of the rabi demand were 23½ lakhs. The Agra division accounts for 6½ lakhs, the Allahabad division for 13½ lakhs and Unao for $1\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs. In addition the Meerut division now required relief amounting to more than a lakh, of which the Meerut district took Rs. 73,480. Budaun had Rs. 17,636, and Partabgarh, on account of hail, Rs. 13,258. The total of remissions during the year was Rs. 36,09,514. The suspensions carried forward to the present year were Rs. 1,39,979 : Rs. 1,03,262 in Muttra and Agra, and Rs. 17,009 in Unao.

The realizable demand (real demand less suspensions and remissions) was Rs. 6,04,03,225. Collections were Rs. 6,02,77,742 or 93·9 per cent. of the real demand, and 99·8 per cent. of the realizable demand. As in the previous year the result is very satisfactory. Thirty-one districts show an entirely clean sheet, and of the balance of Rs. 1,25,483 which might have been realized within the year, Rs. 1,03,745 are accounted for in the three districts of Jalaun, Aligarh and Muttra. The balance in Jalaun, both for arrear and current demand, was Rs. 27,824; the greater part of this balance accrued in fact in the tahsil which suffered least from famine, and was due simply to the apathy of a tahsildar, who, before his responsibility for these arrears was brought to notice, had been reported to the Board for general bad work, and suitably dealt with. In Aligarh the arrears of Rs. 17,915 were due from a single bankrupt estate, situated in the dry tract of the district, in which attachment had to be ordered as the only means of recovering the revenue. With regard to the balance of Rs. 57,856 in Muttra, the Collector, Mr. Ferard, remarks that the Government of India scale is not over liberal, and he seems to think that whatever scale may be applied suspensions and remissions cannot meet all cases of need. As the Board understand the matter, however, the real explanation of the balance is that the suspensions and remissions anticipated a return of prosperity which by the end of the revenue year had not fully been realized, and in these circumstances the delay in completing collections till the kharif was assured, was a concession not productive of loss to Government and fully justified in the interests of the proprietors.

23. The net increase in the land revenue brought on the roll during the year was Rs. 1,92,551. By regular settlement Rs. 20,695 were added in Dehra Dun and Rs. 43,537 in Azamgarh: in Cawnpore, on the other hand, there was a decrease of Rs. 14,416, in Jhansi of Rs. 4,285 and in Jalaun of Rs. 2,260. Progressive enhancements added $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs, of which nearly a lakh was in Oudh, Rs. 33,735 in Meerut and Rs. 19,253 in Aligarh. The net result of changes other than those due to regular settlement was a small decrease of about Rs. 4,000.

24. The real demand was collected in full except for a petty balance of Rs. 19. The balance in hand for disbursement in Allahabad, which was noted last year as excessive, has been considerably reduced.

25. During a series of dry years irrigation had steadily increased till in 1903-4 it extended to 11 million acres, but in 1904-5 the total fell to about 8 million acres. The drought in the seasons under report brought the figure back to a point much higher than last year and somewhat above even the figure of 1903-4. The Director has noted that non-masonry wells were naturally constructed in large numbers, and close on one million were in use, an increase over last year of quarter of a million. The number of masonry wells reported to be available for irrigation was 508,818, of which 7,300 had been constructed during the year. The area irrigated from wells was nearly $6\frac{1}{4}$ million acres as compared with an average of $5\frac{2}{3}$ million acres in 1902-3—1903-4. The area irrigated from canals was nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ million acres, 40 per cent. higher than in 1904-5, and about 20 per cent. higher than in 1902-3—1903-4. It would be superfluous to emphasize the enormous benefit of this irrigation to the country. But on a comparison with a year of normal rainfall it must be pointed out that the benefit is secured at an enormous cost; the cultivators of the Meerut division, for example, had to pay 15 lakhs, and the cultivators in Agra 10 lakhs more in occupiers' rates than in the previous year; and that the supply of water is often scanty. The increased cost may be made up however by the higher prices of grain, and in the present instance the supply, though short, does not appear to have been actually inadequate. The only case in fact of failure of supply is reported from Jalaun, where the Betwa reservoir was empty by the end of November, and only parts of Kalpi and Orai received a second watering in January.

26. Certain of the canal rates were enhanced during the year, and the demand for occupiers' rate rose accordingly, more than in proportion to the increase in area, to Rs. 98,35,000, which is 48 per cent. above the demand for last year, and 30 per cent. higher than the average demand for 1903-4—1904-5. Including arrears the sum for collection was Rs. 99,08,397 : Rs. 96,36,272 were collected, a sum of Rs. 75,773 was nominal and the real balance was Rs. 1,96,352. This balance is larger than the balance out of the whole land revenue demand ; it is suggested in some reports that the canal rates are not remitted with sufficient liberality, and the matter calls for some consideration. The balance was largest in Muttra (Rs. 57,815) and in Jalaun (Rs. 63,657) ; it was considerable, about Rs. 18,000 or Rs. 19,000, in Agra, Etawah and Fatehpur, and it was Rs. 8,622 in Cawnpore. In Cawnpore and Fatehpur it is ascribed merely to the straitened circumstances of the people. In Agra it was nearly all due from villages the crops of which were destroyed by hail, and has since been remitted. In Etawah it appears that Rs. 52,417 had before the end of the year been remitted on account of hail, and these remissions Mr. Edwards thinks were adequate. Why so large a sum as Rs. 18,817 should have remained uncollected, especially as the land revenue came in with little difficulty, he finds it hard to understand, but he thinks the cause may be found in the imposition of higher rates in a year of scarcity. Leaving aside therefore Cawnpore, Fatehpur and Etawah as doubtful cases, there remain Jalaun and Muttra. In Jalaun the remissions granted for failure of crops were Rs. 31,493 ; what they were in Muttra has not been reported. But both Mr. Ferard and Mr. Cooke say explicitly that they were insufficient, and Mr. Darrah, who was familiar with the conditions in Jalaun, agrees with Mr. Cooke. The remissions, Mr. Cooke adds, were not granted till July : at harvest the tenants would not pay, hoping for remission, and by July they had nothing left to pay with. Rs. 1,94,082 were then collected with very great pressure, but the lambardars have paid most of this sum from their own pockets, and the arrears due to them from the tenants are very large.

The demand for owners' rate increased pari passu with the demand for occupiers' rate. The amount for collection was Rs. 3,14,261, of which Rs. 2,91,876 were recovered : nearly the whole of the real balance of Rs. 10,008 accrued in the districts of Muttra, Agra, Etawah and Cawnpore.

27. The abolition of the further rate under Act III of 1878 and Act V of 1894 and the reduction of the rural police rate in five of the Oudh districts were mentioned in last year's report. But the abolition of the further rate did not take effect till 1st April 1905 and it was only the demand for the second half of that year which was reduced. At the beginning of the revenue year now under report the whole of the reduction was taken off the roll, and the demand on 1st October 1905 (appendices VII, VIII and IX) was 13 lakhs less than the demand of 1st October 1904. The reduction in the rural police rate was Rs. 37,000. The patwari rate also has now been abolished, but this case affects the accounts in a different way, as the orders took effect only from 1st April 1906 : therefore the demand shown in appendix XI is the full annual demand, the collections are the amount of the demand for the first half year, and the amount that would have been due for the second half year is shown as a nominal balance. The total relief to proprietors due to abolition or reduction of rates amounts to 39 lakhs per annum.

The demand on account of the 10 per cent. local rate (Agra) was Rs. 43,61,486, and Rs. 42,48,058 were collected, the difference being Rs. 1,13,428. But Rs. 20,756 were nominal, of which Rs. 16,678 are due to the special reductions in Bundelkhand, and Rs. 81,035 were irrecoverable, Rs. 80,199 having been remitted in villages in Bundelkhand where the whole land revenue demand had been remitted. The realizable balance was thus Rs. 11,637, of which Rs. 4,933 were in Muttra, Rs. 2,251 in Hamirpur and Rs. 2,837 in Jalaun.

Statement VIII (acreage rate, &c.) shows balances of Rs. 1,085, but most of these are nominal, and the real balance was only Rs. 163. The balances in statements IX, X and XA call for no remark.

28. A special feature of the revenue administration during the year was the abnormal extent of advances under the Land Improvement Loans Act and the Agriculturists' Loans Act, the total amounting to no less than Rs. 26,19,557. Under the Land

§ § 28-29.—Advances.
Statements XV and XVI.

Improvement Loans Act, advances were required chiefly for the digging of kachcha wells, but the construction of permanent improvements also was stimulated in places by the drought. The total sum advanced was Rs. 4,84,716 of which Rs. 1,67,076 went to the Allahabad division, and Rs. 1,69,897 to Agra. In Allahabad the Jhansi district took the exceptionally large sum of Rs. 92,017, people being anxious to take advantage of a year that was very favourable for the sinking and deepening of wells: in Banda also the amount advanced under this Act was spent chiefly on the construction of field embankments which are a permanent improvement. Out of the total advanced in the Agra division the Agra district took more than a lakh, while Muttra and Etawah each had only some Rs. 20,000. Under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, advances were urgently required for the purchase of cattle to take the place of the stock that had been lost during the drought. They were necessary also for seed, not only because the people wanted money, but because seed was scarce, and it should be noted that the Director made arrangements for the supply of good seed in Bundelkhand; this was distributed in place of cash as takavi and was much appreciated. The total advanced under the Agriculturists' Loans Act was Rs. 21,34,841. Rs. 11,47,690 went to the Allahabad division, of which Rs. 10,30,926 were for the Bundelkhand districts: Rs. 5,13,926 to the Agra division, practically all to the districts of Muttra, Agra and Etawah: and towards the close of the year the distress caused partly by flood and partly by drought in Gorakhpur led to the distribution of Rs. 2,39,685 in that district. In cases other than those already mentioned, the two Acts may be considered together. In the Meerut district Rs. 24,638 were given for fodder, chiefly in the hail-stricken villages. In Bulandshahr Rs. 21,285 were advanced for kachcha wells to mitigate the effects of drought, and Rs. 9,965 for fodder or purchase of cattle. Aligarh distributed Rs. 12,260 under Act XIX of 1883, and Rs. 35,600 under Act XII of 1884. Budaun took Rs. 25,949 under both Acts. In Lucknow Mr. Butler advanced Rs. 64,460, chiefly for seed and cattle, to people who were still in need of help to recover from the after effects of the frost. Unao gave Rs. 46,077 for wells, but curiously enough made no advances under Act XII of 1884. In Hardoi where two bad seasons had seriously impaired credit, and the rabi had to be irrigated, Rs. 16,729 were allotted. Rae Bareli received Rs. 33,329. All these advances were a very material factor in helping the people to recover as rapidly as they did from the effects of successive bad seasons, and it seems quite certain that but for this help, in the more severely affected tracts they would never have succeeded in putting down a full area in the kharif.

29. The takavi accounts as presented in appendices XV and XVI are defective in two ways: they do not show postponements or suspensions of the demand, and they include interest which accrues by the end of the year but is payable only with an instalment that falls due on some later date. These defects, which the Board have remedied in their new circular, do not however conceal the general character of the collections during the year. The Government of India have laid it down that advances are to be remitted only in very exceptional circumstances, but that instalments should be freely postponed when their immediate payment would involve hardship, and that postponement should be granted as a matter of course when relief in revenue is allowed. The observance of these principles and the circumstances of the year explain why out of a total demand for principal under both Acts of Rs. 6,79,810 only Rs. 3,27,000 or 48 per cent. were collected. The demand for interest similarly is shown as Rs. 1,14,339, and collections were Rs. 42,779, but, as already observed, the demand is over-stated. The balances are large only in districts where conditions during the year were unfavourable, and the Board think that a sound discretion has been exercised in deferring collections. The total amount outstanding at the end of the year was Rs. 31,67,576, the bulk of which being under the Agriculturists' Loans Act will be payable almost immediately. Generally there will be no difficulty now in collections, but it is a question whether advances made for seed or wells that failed without any fault of the borrower or for cattle that died in the famine should not be remitted, and the Board will address Government on the subject.

General questions relating to takavi have also received much attention during the year. The principles approved by the Government of India in connection with security, collection and matters of procedure have been embodied in a circular which the Board submitted for the sanction of Government. A well survey has been carried out, and instructions issued which it is hoped will encourage and systematise the grant of loans for works of improvement.

30. Eighty-two estates were acquired under the provisions of the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act, and with a few other changes, the total rose from 446 to 526. The current demand for rent also increased from Rs. 3,08,983 to Rs. 3,26,427, chiefly in Jalaun, Allahabad, Lucknow and Kheri. In Jalaun the increase is due to the acquisition of new properties, in Lucknow to the restoration of the normal demand which was reduced in 1905 by frost remissions, in Kheri to the conversion of grain rents, and further progress in clearing the jungle; in Allahabad there was an enhancement under several heads which cannot be attributed to any special cause. Including arrears the demand was Rs. 3,36,443, but Rs. 31,415 were remitted, chiefly in Bundelkhand, and in Ghazipur Rs. 2,199 were suspended. The realizable demand was Rs. 3,02,703 of which Rs. 2,91,538, or 96 per cent. were recovered. The real balances were large only in Agra, Banda and Allahabad. After payment of land revenue and rates, the net income was Rs. 1,76,773 of which Rs. 53,896 were spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a net profit to Government of Rs. 1,22,877 as compared with Rs. 1,08,596 in the previous year. The amount spent on improvements was Rs. 23,189: two-thirds of this sum were spent in the Allahabad district, but the properties elsewhere are small, and it is difficult to carry out improvements on them.

The special State properties in the Kumaun division and the Dudhi estate in Mirzapur are separately reported on.

31. The total demand recoverable within the year on account of the price of confiscated and escheated lands was Rs. 1,506, of which all but Rs. 50 were collected.

32. The current demand was Rs. 1,52,795 as compared with Rs. 1,60,093 in the year 1904-5, the principal cause of the decrease being a decline in the export of stone from the Mirzapur stone quarries which was due to shortage of wagons at stations and a low Ganges. Practically the whole demand was collected.

33. The figures of coercive processes are of interest so far as they can be made to indicate, first, the comparative ease or difficulty of revenue collections, and, secondly, the general propriety of the methods of realizations adopted in different districts. The attention of the Board has been drawn to the fact that the returns are not everywhere compiled on the same principles. Thus the Deputy Commissioner of Hardoi remarks that processes issued under section 184 or 185 of the Revenue Act for arrears of revenue due to lambarbars or for the recovery of under-proprietary rents have now for the first time been included in the returns. From some detailed figures which were called for, it is clear also that in some districts processes for the recovery of mutation fees are included; in other districts either they are not used, or they are not shown in the returns. The Board will consider what directions should issue to secure uniformity in future, but for the present they must take the figures as reported. It is preferable to compare the figures of several years as follows:—

Writs	26,627	20,700	18,721	12,174
Citations	2,163	6,753	11,837	17,498
Warrants	3,852	3,437	4,111	4,293
Attachments of moveable property ...	4,495	4,991	6,346	8,402
Attachments of immoveable property	147	70	314	157
Transfers	7	29	12	16
Annulments of settlement	...	...	...	4
Sales	1	1	1	...
Total	37,292	35,981	41,342	42,544

The number of processes in 1898-9 was 53,180, and fell gradually to 35,981 in 1903-4. Last year there was naturally a rise. In the year under report there was again some increase in the number of warrants, and a large increase in the number of attachments of moveable property, but writs and citations—taking these processes together—and attachments of immoveable property declined. The number of cases in which defaulters were detained in custody after arrest was 834 compared with 854 in the previous year, and sales of attached property rose from 128 to 196.

On the whole as compared with recent years, the figures indicate some increase in the difficulty of revenue collections, but they show also, as the Commissioner of Allahabad remarks with regard to his own division, that collections were made without resort to any unusual or objectionable degree of pressure.

The provincial totals are thus intelligible, but if an attempt is made to examine the figures in more detail, the results are confusing. Looking to the divisional returns since 1902-3 the Board find, for instance, that writs and citations have not increased considerably except in Meerut and Lucknow, while they have fallen in Benares: warrants have risen steadily in six divisions, but decreased greatly in Rohilkhand: while Rohilkhand again in common with Oudh, Agra and Allahabad, shows a great increase in attachments of moveable property, a form of process the use of which has diminished in Benares and has not increased in Meerut. For many of these results it seems impossible to find any explanation, but judging in the most general way possible it appears that in the year under report processes had increased on a comparison with 1902-3 and 1903-4 in Meerut, Allahabad and Oudh, and decreased in Agra, Rohilkhand and Benares: while the divisions with the largest number of processes were still, as in the earlier years, Allahabad, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur. As between districts the figures are naturally much affected by what Mr. Pearson calls the local tradition. To take a few examples. Saharanpur issued 1,040 writs and citations, Bulandshahr 111: Shahjahanpur 2,014 and Budaun 295: Hardoi 1,394 and Unao 181. Similarly Banda issued 172 warrants and Hamirpur issued 11. There were 493 attachments in Gorakhpur, 60 in Azamgarh, 578 in Bara Banki and 24 in Fyzabad. These districts are not chosen haphazard, and there is no difference in conditions, so far as the Board know, to account for the different results in each contrasted pair. Comparisons of this kind are of practical value, but must remain infructuous without the aid of local enquiry, and Commissioners have promised to bear the subject in mind during their present cold weather tours.

The Board are glad to notice that the necessity of prohibiting irregular methods of collection has received attention during the year. In Azamgarh, a district which has called for special remark during the last two years, Mr. Crawford reports that the custom of collecting a large part of the revenue by peripatetic officers outside the tahsil has been absolutely stopped: the number of processes has risen, but, as the Collector remarks, there has been no real increase in coercion. In Basti Mr. Morgan says the old system undoubtedly was to send round not only chaprasis but a swarm of their brothers and relations who lived on the zamindars: the tahsildars have been taught that the zamindars must come to the tahsil, and that the tahsil should not go to the zamindars, and the results have been particularly successful in the sadr tahsil where the revenue was collected in full by the end of July. In the Benares division the Commissioner attributes an increase in processes to the substitution of regular for irregular methods, but adds that much further improvement is to be looked for. Allusion has already been made to the employment of regular processes for the recovery of mutation fees. The Board are anxious to make it clear that the importance they attach to this subject is not due to any formal considerations, for it is beyond question that the practice in some districts has hitherto been not only a violation of rule, but in a most marked degree oppressive to the people. Reform where necessary is not easy. The Collector of Mainpuri relates that a chaprasi was sent out with a warrant to arrest a defaulter: he was absent several days, and finally brought back the defaulter's agent with the money, having no doubt assisted in collecting it from the tenants and received a consideration for doing so and for not arresting the zamindar.

There is certain to be opposition by interested subordinates, and irregularities can be stopped only by the continued attention of tahsildars and Collectors.

34. The number of estates under attachment, including those that remained over from the previous year was 231, of which 154 were released, leaving 77 under management at the close of the year. The total rental demand in these latter estates amounted to Rs. 1,86,432, of which Rs. 1,34,488 or 72·1 per cent. were collected and Rs. 79,808 were credited to the demand for the land revenue and cesses. The cost of management was Rs. 35,380. Of this total no less than Rs. 24,196 relate to the Aligarh district and in Aligarh large sums were spent on law expenses and the payment of debts and decrees in a large and impoverished estate; the propriety of these payments is a matter which the Board have under consideration. Of the 165 estates which were attached during the year 119 were for recovery of land revenue and similar arrears, and the remainder under sections 45 and 115 of the Land Revenue Act. No estates were taken under direct management after annulment of settlement during the year. One estate was brought over from the preceding year, but it has been leased since the year closed.

Chapter III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

35. The chief interest of the litigation returns for the province of Agra lies in the deductions to be drawn from them regarding the effects of the Tenancy Act. These effects have been fully discussed by the Board in previous reports, and orders have been passed by Government. The Board then formed conclusions generally unfavourable to the Act, but they recognised that no change of principle could be advocated without longer experience, and that it was only in respect of matters of procedure that an amendment of the Act was open to discussion. The points on which they laid stress accordingly were that the expedients devised with the purpose of restricting ejectments had not proved effective, that the number of ejectments had not fallen to the insignificant figure which undoubtedly was anticipated, and that the continued excess of ejectment cases, carried out no longer, as under the old Act, by notice but by a regular suit, resulted only in laying a heavy burden of costs on the tenants and seriously increasing the work of the courts: they advocated, therefore, a return to the system of ejectment by notice. In its orders on the Board's report of last year, Government expressed a preference for ejectment by suit, but it agreed that for administrative reasons the period for filing ejectment suits should be altered: it added that the date from which ejectment is ordinarily to take effect, might also be changed, and it suggested that the fee charged should be a fixed fee instead of, as at present, ad valorem. These proposed modifications of the law being under separate consideration, the Board will not discuss the question of ejectments in detail as in previous reports, but they will bring specially to the notice of Government the congestion of work in revenue courts, which is a matter of serious importance.

The distinguishing features of recent litigation have been the great increase, in spite of good seasons, of suits for arrears of rent, and the activity displayed by landowners in securing for themselves a share in the growing profits of their tenants, either directly by suits for enhancement of rent or indirectly by means of ejectment. Thus the total number of institutions rose gradually to 289,986 in 1903-4. In 1904-5 the growth of litigation was checked by the frost, and the unfavourable prospects of the monsoon, and the total fell to 264,238. In the year under report, the most important circumstance affecting litigation was the excellence of the monsoon of 1906, and institutions rose again to 291,616 or 10 per cent. The increase is most marked in suits for arrears of rent and applications under section 59 for ejectment on the ground of arrears of rent, in ejectment suits and in surrenders.

36. The variations in suits for arrears of rent in recent years cannot be fully explained. It cannot be supposed that institutions vary directly with the degree of prosperity of a particular season: they must depend on the accumulated balance of arrears, the capacity of tenants to pay, and their general condition as determining whether they will pay or will not pay without pressure. It is probable therefore that an adverse season leads ultimately to an increase in the number of suits, but that the effect is not immediate and that at first there may be a decrease. The effect of a series of good years on the other hand should certainly be to reduce the number of suits. The operation of the first principle is seen in the figures of the last two years. It explains why in 1904-5, as a consequence of the frost, there was a decrease of 2 per cent. instead of an increase as in previous years, in the number of suits, and why in the year under report there was an increase of 11 per cent. It explains also the fact that in Agra and Allahabad the average number of suits in the two years 1904-5, 1905-6 was 11 and 14 per cent. higher than in 1903-4, while in other divisions there was a decrease or only a small increase. That the average for the whole province was nearly 4 per cent. higher than in 1903-4 is a circumstance for which two explanations may be offered. It might very well be ascribed simply to the effect of the seasons, but other influences have been at work, connected possibly with the Tenancy Act, which are not yet fully understood. For, in the second place, the effect of good seasons in reducing the number of suits, which has been verified by recent experience in Oudh, cannot be traced in the province of Agra: on the contrary, in spite of good seasons, the number of suits rose steadily till in 1903-4 it was 24 per cent. higher than the normal before the passing of the Tenancy Act. Whether the increase is to continue cannot be judged without the further experience of one or two normal years, and for the present the Board can add nothing on this subject to their remarks in last year's report.

37. Suits connected with distraint show a small increase of 213 cases, but this follows a decrease both in 1903-4 and in 1904-5.

§ 37.—Distraint.
Statement XIX-A.

38. Applications to eject under section 59 have followed almost exactly the same course as suits for arrears of rent. Their number rose till in 1903-4 it was 23 per cent. above the normal of 1895-9. In 1904-5 there was a decrease on the whole of 4 per cent. In the year under report there was a rise of 18 per cent. The proportion of applications to suits remains in fact remarkably constant; for the province as a whole, both in 1902-3 and 1903-4 which were good years, it was 22 per cent.; in the year under report it was 23 per cent. Nor has it risen in divisions where the harvests have been bad. On the contrary, though it varies a good deal in different divisions, being 27 to 29 per cent. in Benares, and in Allahabad 15 to 19, yet in each division in the year of report it was very nearly the same as in 1902-4. It should be added that though the number of cases for disposal was higher than in the two preceding years, the area from which ejectment was ordered was considerably less than in 1903-4. Both in Agra and Allahabad, the divisions that have suffered most, the number of cases for disposal has certainly increased but in the number of cases in which ejectment was ordered, or in the area from which ejectment was ordered, it is Allahabad only that shows an increase. The Board cannot base on these figures any inference regarding the condition of tenants, and there is no probability that during the last two years their position has been strengthened, but for distinctly adverse years the results are certainly remarkable.

39. Suits under this head have been steadily increasing, and in 1904-5 were 21 per cent. more numerous than in 1901-2; in 1905-6 the total fell by 503 cases. It is curious to note that the increase was confined practically to the three western divisions, and it is due possibly, since the lambardari system is all but obsolete in the east, to greater stringency under the impulse of the new law in enforcing the responsibility of lambardars; this does not, however, explain why till last year there was a decrease in Oudh. The number of suits in the Meerut district has been very high for some years and has now reached the abnormal figure of 952, about one-ninth of the provincial total.

§ 39.—Suits for arrears of revenue and profits.
Statement XIX-A.

40. There was an abnormal increase last year of 536 resumption suits in the Benares division. Probably the greater number of cases in that division has been worked out, for it now shows a decrease of 590 suits, and the provincial total is very nearly the same as in 1903-4.

§ 40.—Resumptions.
Statement XIX-A.

41. The average of enhancement suits filed in 1902-3—1903-4 was 7,529, compared with a normal before the Tenancy Act was passed, of 6,788, and considering that under the new Act any number of tenants in the same mahal may be impleaded in a single suit, the Board expressed the opinion that landlords had been taking full advantage of prosperous times to increase their rent-rolls. Last year, the unfavourable outlook in the months when suits have to be filed, led to a fall of 12 per cent. below the average of 1902-4. This year in view of the agricultural conditions in July-September 1906, a rise was to be expected, but the increase has been only 1,363 cases against a decrease last year of 2,442. The increase is general to all divisions except Gorakhpur: there has been a considerable decrease only in Saharanpur, Etah and Allahabad, and in Etah and Allahabad in the previous year there had been an abnormal increase. These suits are now commonest in Agra and Rohilkhand, the number in these two divisions being nearly two-thirds of the provincial total. In Agra the excess is due doubtless to the influence of settlements; in Farrukhabad, Etah and Mainpuri, landowners are busy adjusting their rentals after settlement, and in Agra and Etawah, it is possible that their action has been influenced by the recent extension of the term of the existing settlement; the only district of this division in which the enhancement suits are not numerous is Muttra, where conditions have been peculiarly unfavourable. The three districts in Rohilkhand which return a large number of enhancements are Bareilly, Budaun and Shahjahanpur: in Bareilly the settlement has been in force for only four years, but in Shahjahanpur it is six years old, and more particularly as the increase of revenue was small, it is difficult to understand the very large number of institutions; in Budaun, as will be shown in a subsequent paragraph, there is a general excess in litigation which is shared by suits for enhancement.

42. The statistics relating to surrenders are remarkable. The average number of surrenders in the last normal years before the passing of the Tenancy Act was 26,555. From 1901-2 there was a very great decrease, which continued even in 1904-5; at first sight it seemed that in that year there should have been an increase, but, as the Board explained, notices of surrender have to be filed by 15th April, and it was unlikely that tenants would relinquish their holdings within a few months after the occurrence of a single calamity. The average for 1901-2—1904-5 was only 9,500. In the year under report the number rose to 13,119, but the increase cannot be attributed with any confidence to bad seasons. The figures present many anomalies. The Commissioner of Allahabad has pointed out, for example, that there were more than 1,700 surrenders in Hamirpur and Banda, while Jhansi and Jalaun had each only a hundred. Again, to compare the figures of the year under report with those of the preceding year, the only districts in which there was any considerable decrease were Meerut, Muttra, Banda and Mirzapur; in Meerut the decrease followed an increase last year, but in Muttra and Banda there was a decrease last year as well, and these are two of the last districts in which a continued falling off was to be expected. More than half the total increase on the other hand is accounted for in two districts, Moradabad and Allahabad. As compared with the average of 1901-2—1904-5 the present return shows an increase in Rohilkhand of 131 per cent., in Meerut of 55 per cent., in Allahabad of only 28 per cent., while in Agra the figures practically coincide. The results cannot be correlated with variations of season, and it would appear that many of the divergences between districts are due simply to a difference of custom, or to the employment of surrenders for some special purpose; in Moradabad, for example, it is said that they are becoming a popular substitute on some estates for uncontested ejectment suits. This use of the procedure, however, is by no means new, and it has been noted that during the agitation which accompanied the passing of the Tenancy Act the number of surrenders rose to an abnormal figure. Moreover, if in the provinces generally the number of surrenders is affected by the pressure brought to bear by landlords on their tenants, in Bundelkhand it should be more unequivocally an indication of the condition of the tenants who can always get land when they want it, and do not hesitate to throw up land which they do not require. The circumstance, therefore, which stands most in need of explanation is the striking decrease in surrenders since the Tenancy Act was passed, and the continuance of low figures in adverse seasons. The only explanation that suggests itself is an improvement in the condition of tenants, or, as a result of the anticipations which they undoubtedly formed of the benefits of the new legislation, an increased reluctance to give up their holdings. But the decrease in Bundelkhand is as marked as in any other portion of the provinces, and in Bundelkhand neither of these explanations can be put forward.

NOTE.—When the last day of a revenue year is a holiday, large numbers of enhancement and ejectment suits are filed on the first working day in October. In the remarks in this chapter and in the statement in paragraph 43 the figures have been adjusted to show all cases in the years to which they properly belong.

The years 1899-1900 to 1901-2 marking the agitation which preceded and accompanied the passing of the Act were clearly abnormal. The normal under the old Act was 57,767 cases : the average in 1902-3—1903-4 was 80,202, or 39 per cent. above the old normal. The changes during the last two years are explained by bearing in mind the character of the seasons, the object of taking ejectment proceedings, which in the great majority of cases is merely enhancement, and the period of the year when ejectment suits must be filed. Thus the unsatisfactory monsoon of 1905 led to a diminution of 7·2 per cent. in the number of suits, and as pointed out in last year's report the variations by divisions agreed fairly with the prospects in each. In the year under report, conditions were very much more favourable in July-September, and the number of ejectment suits rose from 74,264 to 87,705, 18 per cent. above last year and 9 per cent. above the average of 1902-3—1903-4. On a comparison of the total of 1904-5 and 1905-6 with the total of 1902-3 and 1903-4 the divisional figures are generally very much as might have been anticipated. Allahabad and Agra show considerable decreases of 9 and 11 per cent. : Rohilkhand and Meerut have increases of 5 and 6 per cent. : an exceptional increase of 13 per cent. in Benares is due to the number of suits being very low in 1902-3—1903-4 ; but an increase of 13 per cent. in Gorakhpur cannot be accounted for in the same way, and it is certainly remarkable that in spite of its misfortunes in the monsoon of 1906, the number of ejectment suits in this division, after rising 3 per cent. last year, should again show an increase in the year under report of 20 per cent.

It will be seen that the number of suits in the year under report was the highest on record (excluding 1901-2) since the passing of the Act, and was no less than 52 per cent. above the old normal. These figures are not so serious as they appear to be, for the excess in 1905-6 must be set off against the deficiency in 1904-5, and the total of the two years is little above the total of the two years preceding. For four years then the number has been steady, but steady at about 40 per cent. above the old normal. Clearly, the Board think, the increase is not a result of the Tenancy Act : referring to recent experience in Oudh they conclude, on the contrary, that it is due to the steady upward tendency of litigation, reinforced, as it has been of late years, by rapidly improving conditions, the increasingly commercial aspect of the relations between landlord and tenant, and the determination of landlords to obtain the full value of their land. But the fact to be regretted, and a fact apparently now well established, is that legislation has been powerless to check this tendency, to diminish ejectments, or to protect the tenants from enhancement.

44. As Appendix XX-A shows, nearly all ejectment suits are filed under section 58(a), on the ground, that is to say, that the tenant holds from year to year, and the number of suits under section 58(b) and (c) is insignificant.

§ 44.—Character of ejectments.
Statements XX-A and C.

In the present report the form of Appendix XX-C showing the classes of tenants ejected and their treatment after ejectment, has been revised, and if the figures were trustworthy, would now give full information on these subjects. As reported, the figures show that of the tenants ejected in 1904-5, 85 per cent. were ordinary tenants, 9 per cent. were sub-tenants and 6 per cent. also held land as proprietors. These results, which are much the same as in previous years, may be accepted as fairly accurate and they show that ejectments of sub-tenants do not, as was suggested at first, explain the increase of ejectments under the present Act. To show the condition of ejected tenants the appendix now gives the area held by them in addition to the area from which they were ejected. Apparently they were ejected from about half their land, but the area of other holdings in the possession of the tenants is likely to be understated. The percentage of non-effective ejectments is shown as having fallen from 40 last year to 23; but it is improbable that so great a change has actually occurred in a single year, and the figures may have been affected in some way by the alteration in the method of making out the return. In half the cases in which tenants were restored in their own name to the holdings from which they had been ejected, the rent was enhanced: where no enhancement was imposed, it is possible that the proprietor took a nazrina. The practice of giving holdings to relatives of the tenants ejected appears to be fairly common, and may be commoner than the figures show. In nearly a third of the total number of cases, it is said, the ejected tenants have ceased altogether to hold land, but all officers are agreed that in reality such cases are extremely rare. The fact is that from the nature of the case the information required for Appendix XX-C is very difficult to obtain, and as the present form is still new to the patwaris the reports make it plain that the figures cannot be accepted throughout as trustworthy. There is no reason to doubt the accuracy of the conclusions drawn in previous years, first, that proprietors are sufficiently well acquainted with the law and therefore that no hopes for the ultimate success of the Act can be founded on the supposition that as yet they are ignorant of its provisions; secondly, that the difficulty of providing for tenants during the year of dispossession which is necessary to break the continuity of their tenure, has proved illusory, and consequently that the main obstacle which the Act sought to place in the way of ejectment has disappeared. In accordance with instructions given by the Board, Collectors will during the present cold weather investigate the figures of the appendix now given, and the results will no doubt be stated in next year's report; but if Government accepts the conclusions just stated, the Board think that in future years the appendix may be discontinued.

45. The area under leases for not less than seven years has increased by 78,000 acres, or nearly the same amount as last year. The increase is largest in Shahjahanpur (11,300 acres) and Basti (17,600 acres); it is fairly general in the districts of the Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions, but elsewhere is considerable only in Etah (4,600 acres), Mirzapur (2,800 acres) and Gorakhpur (5,700). The total area now under long-term leases is 563,788 acres: the whole non-occupancy area, excluding the area held for 12 years or more, is 7,610,199 acres, of which the area under lease is 7.4 per cent. Out of this total, no less than 377,655 acres are in the Meerut division, and 131,895 acres, or about a fifth in the Bulandshahr district. Rohilkhand has 56,917 acres under long lease, of which 20,680 acres are in Bijnor and 13,794 acres in Shahjahanpur. There are 52,000 acres in the Basti and Gorakhpur districts and 15,513 acres in Etah. Elsewhere, the areas are insignificant.

§ 45.—Long term leases.
Statement XXXIV-A.

A comparison of provincial results since the Act was passed is rendered impossible by deficiencies in the returns from districts which have been under settlement, but the Director has given complete figures for twenty districts which are sufficient to indicate the general tendency. These show a gradual rise from 278,277 acres in 1902-3 to 438,580 acres in 1905-6. As the Director says, there has been steady progress in the Meerut division; Agra is not progressing rapidly (except Etah which does not appear in his table), and Rohilkhand appears to be taking to the system. In the east there is a sudden advance in Basti, and a general but slow advance elsewhere. On the whole, therefore, the Director thinks the figures indicate that the lease system is slowly working its way into favour, but district officers are not optimistic, and they report, even in districts like Meerut, where leases are most common, that their use is confined to a few estates, and that among landowners at large their popularity does not increase. In nearly every case in fact where the leased area is large, the circumstance is due to special conditions. In Basti, Gorakhpur and Dehra Dun, leases are common on the estates of European landlords, and of the tea Companies, whose example has been followed by a few big Indian zamindars. In Shahjahanpur the increase in their number is attributed to the action of the Court of Wards. In Bulandshahr the landlords were practically under a compulsion to grant leases in order to escape from short-term settlements. It has been pointed out further that petty proprietors simply cannot afford to give land for seven years at a time, and the probable restriction of leases to large estates makes it conceivable that the limit of expansion will soon be reached. How much the lease system will effect in the interests of tenants is also uncertain. So far it is probable that most leases have been granted by the very landlords whose treatment of their tenants in other respects is most considerate, and in whose estates, therefore, they were least required. In estates where the management is less considerate the extension of the system will be determined by its effect on rents. Since landlords find no difficulty in using ejectments to prevent the accrual of occupancy rights they are under no necessity to adopt the alternative of giving leases, and they will not adopt it if they find that their power of enhancing rents is thereby curtailed. A novel point reported this year from Jaunpur is that landlords expect a higher rent when they grant a long-term lease than from the ordinary tenant-at-will, and in Meerut Mr. Cobb reports the case of a land-owner who by the grant of long-term leases has succeeded in raising his rentals very considerably. If higher rents are obtainable in this way, a strong inducement will be offered to landlords to grant leases, but the tenant will still have to pay the full price of any benefit he receives from the system and the general adoption of the system in the cases where it is most required is conditional on the failure of one of the principal objects of the law which aims not only at a fair stability of tenure but at a control of rents.

46. The general character of the litigation of recent years in Oudh has been determined by good seasons unaffected (except in one instance) by legislative changes. The average of suits for arrears of rent, which in the years 1895-99 was 26,476, in 1900-5 was no more than 21,252. On the other hand notices of ejectment under section 55 of the Oudh Rent Act, which in 1897-99 numbered only 13,000 or 14,000, rose very suddenly in 1900-1 to 22,860: in 1901-2 a further increase to 27,278 was due undoubtedly to the currency of a rumour that the Oudh Rent Act was to be revised, but in 1902-3 the number decreased and for three years was steady at about 22,000. On the whole, litigation had been decreasing, the total of suits and applications (shown both in appendices XIX-B and XX-B) having fallen from 75,318 cases in 1902-3 to 73,641 in 1903-4, but in 1904-5 the total was 76,335, and in the year under report it rose again to 83,802. The increase was chiefly in suits for arrears of rent and concomitantly in applications to eject for non-payment of arrears, in relinquishments, in applications to eject under section 55, and in applications for assistance to eject. These classes may be taken in order.

47. In 1904-5 the number of suits for arrears of rent was slightly below the average of recent years. The variations, both plus or minus, in district returns had been attributed to the frost, but the Board concluded from a comparison of all the figures that the destruction of the rabi crops had not resulted in a multiplication of rent suits, and had possibly restricted their number. According to this view the increase from 20,604 to 23,559 cases in the year under report, is due simply to the accumulation of arrears last year, and the opinion expressed last year is supported by the fact that nearly all the districts which suffered severely in 1905—Unao, Lucknow, Rae Bareli, Partabgarh and Sultanpur—show a fair or large increase this year following a fair decrease in the previous year. The total number of rent cases, though 11 per cent. above the average of 1900—5 is still 11 per cent. lower than the average of 1895—99. Following the same course as suits for arrears of rent, applications under section 61 have increased from 2,718 to 3,730, but the proportion of applications to suits, which on the average of 1900—5, was 14 per cent. in the year under report was only 16 per cent., and the difference therefore is inconsiderable.

The number of relinquishments, which in the three years 1901-2—1903-4 had averaged only 2,686, rose in 1904-5 to 3,284, and in the year under report to 4,468. It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that some part of the increase is due to bad seasons, but of the three districts which last year showed the largest increase (Unao, Gonda and Bahraich) Unao only had been severely damaged by frost: Unao and Bahraich this year show a decrease, and the rise has been greatest in Bara Banki, Partabgarh, Lucknow and Rae Bareli. In Oudh, as in the province of Agra, the striking fact about relinquishments is the great decrease in their number in recent years. In 1896—99 (omitting 1895-6, when the number was very high) the average was no less than 8,684: in the year under report the number was, almost exactly as in Agra, 48 per cent. less.

Notices of ejectment under section 55, being filed before 15th November were not affected by the frost in 1905, and there was little change during the year under report. District variations are unimportant, a plus in 1905-6 generally being found where there was a minus in 1904-5, and vice versa, and the only district which shows any considerable increase in both years is Fyzabad. The number of cases in which ejectment was ordered rose from 18,451 to 19,522, and the area from which ejectment actually took place from 139,501 to 146,939 acres. The area is considerable, but it is swollen by the ejectment of thekadars, as in Gonda where only a third was held by statutory tenants, and in Bahraich, a district which accounts for no less than 83,669 acres out of the total. The number of applications for assistance to eject a tenant increased by 894.

48. The number of applications under section 185 of the Revenue Act increased from 101 to 181 in Hardoi; but the arrears, recovery of which was sought, were only Rs. 11,686 as compared with Rs. 25,442 in 1904-5. In Fyzabad district there has been a decrease in both of the last two years; the number of applications is now 1,280 only against 1,704 in 1903-4 and the Deputy Commissioner thinks the under-proprietors are beginning to recognise the advantage of paying up promptly. In Sultanpur on the other hand the number has risen in the same interval from 392 to 692. The provincial total was somewhat less than in the preceding year. Including arrears, there were 3,261 cases for disposal, the amount for recovery being Rs. 3,53,536. The progress made in the decision of cases was very satisfactory. In Sultanpur where the balance at the end of last year was very large, Mr. Johnston succeeded in reducing the pending file from 166 cases for arrears of Rs. 26,618 to 63 cases for Rs. 6,413, and of the 63 cases pending at the close of the year, 48 had been filed in August. Fyzabad, where the amount for recovery was larger even than in Sultanpur, had cleared off every case by the end of the year, and the provincial total had been reduced from 422 cases for Rs. 59,185 to 174 cases for Rs. 30,962.

49. During 1904-5 the pending file was reduced considerably in Agra, the number of institutions being smaller, but increased slightly in Oudh: on the 1st of October 1905 the courts in Agra had 75,298 cases on their lists as compared with 85,208 on the 1st of October 1904 (appendix XIX-D); while in Oudh they began the year with 1,940 cases as compared with 1,463. But the institutions shown in the same statement rose from 236,183 to 258,524 in Agra, and from 50,949 to 56,422 in Oudh. Adding the number of cases under section 59 of the Tenancy Act and under sections 55 and 61 of the Oudh Rent Act, the total for disposal was in Agra 371,442 compared with 353,832, and in Oudh 85,748 compared with 77,807. The disposals of applications relating to ejectment are not given in the returns. Of the suits and applications shown in appendix XIX-D, the number decided with contest fell from 62,377 to 57,150 in Agra, and in Oudh was practically unchanged: the number decided without contest rose considerably in both provinces. The percentage of cases disposed of to cases for disposal fell from 76 to 74 in Agra, but in Oudh remained steady at 96. The total number of cases pending at the close of the year in Oudh was 1,925 or practically the same as at the beginning. District details call for little notice, but it may be mentioned that a considerable clearance has been effected in Unao, the number of cases pending for more than three months having been reduced from 120 to 3, and that the very considerable number of such cases, about 70 or 80, in Gonda, Bahraich and Bara Banki has not been explained. In Agra the pending file rose from 75,336 to 84,223, that is by 8,887 cases. It has to be remembered of course that enhancement and ejectment suits can be filed only in the last three months of the revenue year : most of these suits are filed therefore in one revenue year and decided in the next, and this circumstance explains also the very low percentage of disposals in this province. The file pending at the close of the year included in fact no less than 65,290 ejectment suits and 6,184 enhancement suits, and of the increase of 8,887 cases 6,996 are accounted for under the head of ejectments. Still the balance pending under heads other than ejectment and enhancement was 12,749 or 1,864 higher than at the end of last year, and even when enhancement and ejectment suits are excluded, the result compares very unfavourably with the pending file of 1,925 cases in Oudh. The number of cases pending for more than three months rose also from 1,030 to 3,588, but this increase is more than accounted for by the single district of Budaun, and elsewhere a slight reduction has been effected. In view of the increase in institutions and of the extra work caused by famine, by revenue remissions and the distribution of takavi, the Board think that the courts are to be congratulated on their success in keeping down their files.

50. But the fact remains that the burden of work goes on increasing. There has been no general revision of establishments since 1894. In the interval the requirements of every branch of the administration have been growing. In the ordinary course of events the work of the Revenue Courts would no doubt have increased in the same way ; but in Agra the process has been accelerated apparently by the Tenancy Act. Thus in Oudh, the number of cases for disposal is now 17 per cent. higher than in 1897-8—1898-9, but the bulk of the increase is in notices, which give no trouble : the number of contested cases has decreased by 9 per cent. and the pending file is slightly lower than in 1902. In Agra, on the other hand, it has been shown in previous reports that in 1897-8—1898-9, before the agitation which was caused by the prospects of legislation, the number of cases for disposal was about 270,000, and of contested cases 48,000 : the present figures are 37 and 19 per cent. higher, but even these percentages do not represent the real increase in work, since the Tenancy Act has substituted for notices of ejectment, suits which occupy, even when uncontested, much of the time of the courts, and the results of the new legislation are shown by the gradual increase in the pending file which is now 39 per cent. higher than in 1902.

A complete discussion of the subject would be out of place, but it seems desirable to place on record the facts and opinions that from time to time are reported, and the Board have to bring to the notice of Government the remarks of several officers. In Budaun the condition of affairs is notorious. The courts are swamped with criminal cases, and the revenue work is crushing. Thus in May 1906 the bulk of the ejectment cases filed in July—September 1905 had not been touched, and even on 30th September 1906, there were still 2,055 ejectment cases pending that had been filed in the 1905 period. It may be said that matters in Budaun are abnormal, but districts where the figures are much less striking, send similar reports. Mr. Broun says that whatever the success of the Act may be, there is no doubt about the increase of work, which is becoming a serious evil, and affects the quality of the work. In Bijnor, Mr. Wild says that the work has grown beyond the power of the courts to deal with it, and in Moradabad it is said that even with an additional officer it will have to be done at high pressure. Mr. Bower reports that all his officers have as much to do or more than they can reasonably be expected to do, that the limit has been reached and that the attempt to do more can end only in the scamping of work. Even in Gonda, a district unaffected by legislative changes, Mr. Hailey says the staff is no longer sufficient, that the Deputy Collectors have not the time to go into cases properly, that there is a most marked tendency to adopt every possible method of summary procedure, that the judgments are often ill-considered, and the quality of the work unsatisfactory : in this opinion the Judge and the Commissioner agree, and the Commissioner adds that the insufficiency of the present staff at headquarters in most Oudh districts requires attention. The evils of such a condition of affairs need scarcely be emphasized. In the first place, as shown by the remarks that have been quoted, the quality of the work suffers. In the second place, as Mr. Pearson has pointed out, delays in partitions, mutations, and lambardari cases are a fertile source of litigation, and in particular lead to disputes of a nature to re-act most unfortunately on the criminal returns. And inevitably the needs of the general administration are neglected. In making these remarks, the Board are not unmindful of the fact that Government has temporarily increased the district staff in several cases to clear off pending files, nor do they forget that Government last year declared it to be impossible for the present to recommend a permanent increase of the staff, but they are constrained to observe that there are no signs of the increase in work being temporary and that even in districts where arrears have not accrued, the work is being carried on at too high pressure.

51. The number of appealable cases decided by subordinate courts was nearly the same as in the previous year, but the number of appeals to Collectors rose from 5,361 to 5,560. §§ 51-54.—Work of appellate courts. Statements XXIII, XXIV and XXV. Compared with the average of 1895 to 1899, the number of appeals instituted shows an increase of 32 per cent.

The total number of appeals for disposal by Collectors was 6,350, of which 5,451 or 86 per cent. were decided. The percentage of decisions confirmed was 57, or almost the same as in the previous year. The pending file rose from 790 to 899, a noticeable increase in Budaun being due to general congestion of work and in Gorakhpur to the scarcity work which occupied most of the Collector's time towards the close of the year. The only district in which the appellate file requires attention is Azamgarh, which accounts for 177 out of 193 cases which at the end of the year had been pending for more than three months. In this district the year began with a very heavy file, and the number of fresh institutions was the largest in the provinces, but in spite of the assessment work in which he was engaged in October-November 1905, the Collector has effected some reduction, and during the current revenue year he hopes to bring down the file to normal dimensions. As noted last year, it was found impossible to relieve Mr. Crawford by empowering an Assistant Collector to hear any of his appeals. The defect in the law has been noted for amendment, and some other arrangement will be made, if necessary, to lighten the Collector's work.

52. The number of appeals in the courts of District Judges fell from 2,061 in 1904-5 to 1,907 in 1905-6 and the total number for disposal from 3,010 to 2,577. The outturn of work was very much less, the number of decisions being only 1,769 as against 2,340, and the pending file rose from 670 to 808, but it was still considerably less than the file of 949 cases pending on 30th September 1904.

53. There was a decrease in the number of appeals to Commissioners from 6,616 in 1904-5 to 5,725 in the year under report, and the number for disposal fell from 7,969 to 6,844; 5,698 were decided by Commissioners, 221 were transferred to Collectors for disposal and the pending file was further reduced from 1,119 to 925. A substantial reduction was effected in Meerut, Rohilkhand and Benares, and it may be noted that the number of appeals pending at the close of the year was only 15 in Allahabad and Fyzabad and 28 in Benares. But while eight divisions show a reduction in the pending file from 694 to 336 cases, of which only 62 had been pending for more than three months, there was an increase in the Agra division from 425 to 589 cases, of which 489 had been pending for more than three months. The condition of appellate work in this division has attracted attention for some time past, and it was observed by the Board in their last report that the Commissioner had been under some misapprehension as to his power of deciding appeals without sending for the parties. The removal of this misapprehension, it was hoped, would reduce arrears to a normal figure, but the number of decided cases has fallen from 1,045 to 636 cases, the difference representing about four months' work. The Commissioner explains that the appellate work of his court was to some extent interfered with by the visit of the Prince of Wales and more particularly by the extra work connected with scarcity, and the Board trust that better success will be met with during the current year.

The percentage of decisions upheld by Commissioners was 70, or very nearly the same as in the previous year. It varies considerably, being highest (81 per cent.) in Meerut, and lowest (61 per cent.) in Benares. As compared with 1904-5 the work seems to have improved in Gorakhpur, Lucknow and Kumaun, and to have deteriorated in Meerut, Benares and Fyzabad. Reversals were most numerous in Benares (26 per cent.), Rohilkhand coming next with 22 per cent., and they were over 18 per cent. both in Lucknow and Gorakhpur. The percentage of cases remanded again decreased; in Gorakhpur, though lower than in the previous year, it was still high owing to the necessity of returning many enhancement cases for retrial, and in the Fyzabad division there was a large increase from 3 to 11 per cent.

54. Including the balance pending at the close of last year the number of cases that came before the Board in appeal was 584 under the Agra Tenancy Act and 466 under the Oudh Rent Act: 656 cases were disposed of. There were 811 cases of revision under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act and the Tenancy Act, of which 729 were decided. Two cases under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act were still undecided at the close of the year. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 17 per cent. of the cases in appeal and in 7 per cent. of those in revision. Twelve cases were decided under the Kumaun rules.

Chapter IV.—SETTLEMENT.

55. Settlement operations during the year were confined to the province of Agra. In Mainpuri, Etah and Jalaun the work was completed. For Etah and Jalaun the final reports were submitted to Government, and the settlement sanctioned in each case for 30 years. The report for Mainpuri, which was received later, has been submitted to Government since the close of the year.

56. As noted last year, it was decided in Dehra Dun that no formal revision or attestation of the records was required, but that for the purposes of assessment only the maps should be corrected, mainly by the agency of patwaris, and the khasras and khataunis revised. It was thought sufficient therefore to sanction the appointment of a Settlement Officer with effect from 1st October 1904 for 18 months. Experience, however, showed that the maps and the village papers were much less accurate than had been anticipated, especially in the municipality of Dehra and the hill tracts of the Eastern and Western Dun, and as the necessary corrections could not be completed before January 1906, inspection work was much impeded and the submission of the rent rate and assessment reports considerably delayed. The term of the Settlement Officer's appointment had therefore to be extended till the 17th April, by which date the assessments of the entire tahsil of Dehra were received and submitted for the approval of Government. But the declaration and distribution of the revised revenues, the preparation of the memorandum of village customs and other miscellaneous work had still to be done, and to assist the Superintendent, who was placed in charge of the operations, it was found necessary to appoint the head clerk of the settlement office temporarily as a deputy collector. It was expected that all work would be completed by the 31st December 1906.

57. The work in Cawnpore is now complete, and the Settlement Officer gave over charge on 27th October 1906. During the year the revised revenues were declared and distributed in tahsils Cawnpore, Akbarpur and in the portion of Derapur north of the Sengur river. Two tahsils, a portion of another and six suburban villages comprising an area of 802 square miles, were inspected, and the assessments received and disposed of during the year. The estimate made before the commencement of operations was for a reduction in revenue and owners' rate of 1½ lakhs: the actual reduction has been Rs. 1,53,239. In the parganas first assessed on the Ganges side the modifications required in the demand were slight, and in some cases there was an enhancement. In the Jumna tahsils, on the other hand, the old revenue was undoubtedly excessive, and in the poor and precarious tract which was assessed during the year, the reductions were no less than Rs. 94,787.

58. This laborious and intricate settlement still continues, and the end will not be reached for perhaps another year. The work of assessment was completed by the declaration and distribution during the year of the revised revenues of parganas Ghosi, Nathupur, Muhammadabad and Mau Nathbhanjan. The disposal of cases relating to the revision of records and enhancement of rents was retarded by the absence on leave for three months of one of the deputy collectors, but the progress made was satisfactory, and out of a total of 20,294 cases, 13,335 were decided. The filing of fresh applications for enhancement of rent has now been stopped, and it is expected that the remaining 6,959 cases will be finished by the end of May 1907.

59. The fairing of the revised records in four tahsils is practically complete, but in the remaining two tahsils a good deal remains to be done. Five hundred and fifty out of 1,049 patwaris have returned to their circles, and it is expected that the entire work will be completed by the end of March 1908. The intricacy of the records in Azamgarh is a circumstance that might be used as an argument both for the necessity of a revision and against its expedience. But whether the work should have been undertaken or not, there can be no question as to the manner in which it has been carried out. The Board observe that while the number of original cases and of appeals to the Settlement Officer is very large, there are very few appeals that reach the Commissioner. In a litigious district like Azamgarh the circumstance is remarkable, and it gives ground for hoping that the decisions of the settlement courts will be accepted by the people and may diminish, or at least will not increase civil litigation. The benefits of a revision are not, however, secured absolutely by the completion of the record; they are apt to be lost by the break in continuity of work caused by the prolonged absence of the patwaris and their return to ordinary duty, and it is to avoid this risk that a deputy collector has been placed on special land records duty. It is fortunate also for the settlement that Mr. Crawford is in charge of the district, and is in a position therefore to see that the patwaris are set promptly to work and are duly supervised on returning to their circles. As they are set free, the patwaris are supplied with opening khewats in which are embodied all mutations effected since the beginning of settlement operations and with copies of all orders affecting the khatauni, and the Board are glad to accept the assurance that there has been no difficulty in starting the new series of annual papers on a satisfactory basis.

60. In this district it was originally proposed that with the exception of certain areas, which were to be resurveyed, the assessments should be made on existing records. As mentioned in last year's report, however, a wider scope than had been intended was given to the work of attestation outside the surveyed tracts. In the first place it was found that the khewats were generally wanting in specification of shares, and the opportunity was taken to have them revised. Secondly, the attestation of entries for sir and khudkasht was undertaken: this may be described as a necessary consequence of the attestation of the khewats, and under the provisions of the new law it was desirable no doubt, in order to facilitate the determination of ex-proprietary rights, that an accurate record of proprietary cultivation should be prepared. The matter should have been brought at an earlier stage to the notice of the Board; but there is no question that in the circumstances now reported the course adopted by the district authorities was justified. The work was carried out expeditiously and without any additional expenditure, and except in Hasanpur, is complete in all tahsils.

Mr. Boas joined as Settlement Officer and Mr. Gaskell as Assistant Settlement Officer on 2nd October 1905. Tahsil Moradabad with an area of 313 square miles was inspected by the Settlement Officer, and tahsil Thakurdwara, having an area of 240 square miles, by his assistant; the rent rate reports were received and considered. The settlement of this district is a heavy and difficult piece of work, and the Board are glad to say that the manner in which it has been begun gives every hope that it will be carried out successfully.

61. The work of revision under the special rules was in progress in all four districts of Bundelkhand.

62. In Jalaun there was little to be done and the Settlement Officer made over charge on 15th October 1905. In mahals where owing to famine, the established cultivation in the present year is 15 per cent. lower than the area on which the assessment was based, arrangements have been made, as a special case, to reduce the new revenues under rule 23(b) of the special rules, without a formal application from the proprietors.

63. The revised assessments of Bansi and Talbehat, reported in the previous year, were sanctioned, and with the revenues of Mau, Jhansi. Moth and Garotha in Jhansi proper, were declared and distributed. Tahsil Mahroni and parganas Lalitpur and Balabehat of the Lalitpur sub-division comprising an area of 1,512 square miles were inspected: and the revised assessments of all these parganas except Banpur were sanctioned. Mr. Pim has thus in three years, with the assistance of Mr. Nelson for two years, completed the assessment of 3,628 square miles, and at a very small cost. The final settlement report has been received since the close of the year and is being reviewed by the Board.

64. Mr. Humphries took over charge as Settlement Officer and Mr. Drake-Brockman as Assistant Settlement Officer in October 1905. Survey and record work have been much retarded by the absence of patwaris on work in connection with the famine or with the Encumbered Estates Act, and by a severe outbreak of cholera, but the Settlement Officer reports that in the circumstances the progress made has been satisfactory. Mr. Humphries inspected pargana Banda with an area of 427 square miles and Mr. Drake-Brockman pargana Pailani, the area of which is 363 square miles. The revised assessments were reported and approved within the year. In the district as a whole the new revenues are expected to be ready one and, in some cases, two years before the expiry of the current settlement, and it has been decided that, except where they exceed the revenues fixed at last settlement, they should take effect from the July next following the date of sanction.

65. Mr. Raw joined as Settlement Officer on 17th October 1905. He inspected parganas Hamirpur, Sumerpur and Maudha, covering an area of 607 square miles, and submitted his reports with remarkable promptitude. The revised assessments have been approved and practically distributed. In a number of villages the recovery in cultivation will not, it is feared, be complete by 1315 fasli, when the new revenues fall due, and it is suggested that if a fall of 10 per cent. is found in established cultivation, special arrangements should be made for reducing their revenues. On this point an enquiry has been directed in all three parganas. The revised records have been faired in 75 per cent. of the mahals, but, for the same reasons as in Banda, the attestation of khewats and the classification of cultivated area into nautor and permanent cultivation are much behindhand. Special arrangements, however, have been made for this work, and the Settlement Officer's inspection will not be interfered with. Mr. A. F. Fremantle has joined as Assistant Settlement Officer since the close of the year.

66. Settlement operations have been closed in Almora and in the hill pattis of Naini Tal. In the Tarai sub-division of the latter district the whole of pargana Nanakmatta and six villages of parganas Rudrapur and Gadarpur came under revision. The assessments which were of a summary character were made on the existing records, map correction being carried out only where necessary. A simple system of soil classification was adopted and each village was valued at an all-round rate, as in the Government Tarai estate. The assessments which have been reported for sanction were carried out by the Deputy Commissioner without any extra cost. The special revision which was undertaken in the hill pattis to remove defects in the record prepared at the recent settlement has been completed, and a report received since the close of the year. Similar proceedings which were instituted to correct the khewats in Shahjahanpur have also been brought to a close. In 43 per cent. of the Shahjahanpur entries the khewats were found to be defective, but investigation showed that the mistakes were due to inaccuracies either in attestation or in the work of fairing, and no case of fraudulent tampering with the record was discovered.

67. Survey work was in progress only in Banda and Hamirpur, and of the officers of the Survey of India all but one have reverted. In Hamirpur the work is now finished; in Banda it will not be complete till next October. A traverse survey of pargana Bhitauli in the Bara Banki district has been ordered.

68. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 25,768. Including 21,960 cases outstanding at the close of last year the total for disposal was 47,728, of which 31,845 were decided. The balance is composed in about equal numbers of cases relating to record-of-rights and enhancement of rent.

69. Appeals to Settlement Officers numbered 1,737, of which 1,015 were decided. It will be seen that it has been quite impossible for the Settlement Officer, who is also Collector of Azamgarh to keep down his file, and that 686 appeals were left pending in that district at the end of the year.

70. The cost of settlement operations during the year was Rs. 3,88,564. In Mainpuri and Jalaun, where the accounts are closed, the cost of settlement was respectively Rs. 124.03 and Rs. 91.16 per square mile.

71. The following table shows the old and new revenues of the tracts the assessments of which were declared during the year :—

District.	Old revenue.	New revenue.	Increase or decrease.

The new revenues in Dehra Dun are in fact lenient, and the large increase is due to the exceptional conditions of the district.

Chapter V.—GENERAL.

72. The number of registered transfers has risen very rapidly in recent years ; in 1901-2 it was 165,708, in 1902-3, 1,99,103 and in 1903-4, 207,252 ; in 1904-5 the frost had no effect in stimulating sales and mortgages, and the total fell to 197,640 ; in the year under report it has risen again to 237,032, that is by nearly 20 per cent. The variations from year to year are chiefly under succession cases.

73. Appendix XXVIII is for the agricultural year ending 30th June, and many transfers occurring towards the end of one year must be registered in the next. When allowance is made for these circumstances, the mortality returns indicate that the number of succession cases should have fallen off in all divisions except Gorakhpur and Fyzabad, and that in Meerut and Agra the decrease should have been large. It is found accordingly that of the total increase since last year of 26,763 cases nearly half is accounted for in Gorakhpur and Fyzabad, but there are large increases also in Benares, Agra and Meerut ; in Benares the increase is ascribed to special measures taken in two districts to correct the khewats, and in Agra it is due undoubtedly to the recent conclusion of settlement in several districts ; in Meerut it has not been explained. What is remarkable is that over the provinces as a whole there has been a large increase, though the mortality was much less heavy. And, to go back for a few years, the number of successions registered was 40 per cent. higher in 1902-3 than in 1900-1, and in the year under report had risen again 22 per cent. above the figure of 1902-3. It seems clear that the increase has been very much larger than the increase in the number of actual successions. The Board have, in fact, no hesitation in ascribing it, partly to the effects of the new provision of the Revenue Act which debars a Revenue Court from entertaining any suit or application by a person obtaining possession until such person has applied for mutation, and partly to the systematic overhauling of khewats and discovery of large numbers of unreported cases, of which specific instances have been given in previous reports. They hope therefore that the figures indicate a distinct improvement in the revenue records.

Under other heads there is a general but a smaller increase. In the year under report the number of sales of revenue-paying land, whether private or by order of court, was about 9 per cent. above the average of the three preceding years, and mortgages had risen about 6 per cent. It must be assumed, the Board think, that the registration of transfers under these heads has been affected in the same general way, as the registration of successions, and, it may be hoped, that to some extent the increase is in reports and not in actual transactions, but here the increment has not, as in the case of successions, been spread over a number of years; on the contrary the figures for three years, 1902-3 to 1904-5 were fairly steady, and it is impossible to avoid the conclusion that some at least of the increase in the year under report was the effect of unfavourable seasons. Redemptions of mortgages also were 12 per cent. above the average of the three years preceding—a fact that might be set against the increase in sales and mortgages; but much the largest increase, from an average of 1,375 to 3,984 cases, was in the Allahabad division, where it is a result of the Encumbered Estates Act, and in the rest of the provinces there was a slight decrease. The number of transfers the exact nature of which is not specified (column 16 in the appendix), has gradually increased from 12,034 in 1902-3 to 19,790, that is by no less than 64 per cent. The only explanation offered in district reports is that leases (of proprietary right) are extending: in Basti reference is made to the large number of leases given by European proprietors, and in Gonda Mr. Hailey says there is a growing tendency on the part of the principal landowners to lease out the villages on their estates.

74. The striking feature in partition work since the introduction of the new Revenue Act has been the enormous increase in applications for imperfect partition accompanied by some decrease in applications for perfect partition. Institutions under the second head, which increased last year abnormally by 11 per cent., have fallen again this year by 4 per cent. and are now 28 per cent. below the average of 1896-7—1898-9: applications for imperfect partition have again risen 7 per cent., to 2,663, the average for 1896-7—1898-9 having been only 449; and the total number of institutions of both kinds was 3 per cent. higher than in the previous year and 74 per cent. above the old normal. As compared with 1904-5 the increase was largest in Agra, Allahabad and Benares, but the curious divergences in the results of the new Act in different divisions which have been noticed in previous reports are not affected. Cases in Gorakhpur are still five times, and in Meerut nearly thrice as numerous as before the passing of the Act; in Rohilkhand they are 50 per cent. higher, and in other divisions only 12 to 30 per cent. in excess.

75. The year opened with a pending file of 4,035 cases as against 3,680 in 1904-5. New institutions were 124 higher, and the total for disposal rose from 7,569 to 8,048 or 6 per cent. The number of partitions actually carried out rose in exactly the same proportion from 2,481 to 2,619, as compared with an average before the passing of the Revenue Act of 1901. The outturn in Gorakhpur is now nearly six times, and in Meerut and Rohilkhand about twice as large as in 1896-7—1898-9, and for the provinces as a whole it has increased 87 per cent. Nevertheless the pending file again increased and was 6 per cent. higher at the end of the year than at the beginning. There has been some decrease in Benares, Oudh and Kumaun, and an increase in other divisions. Among districts Bulandshahr, Agra, Pilibhit, Allahabad, Jhansi, Unao, Hardoi and Bara Banki show a fair decrease: while the balance rose considerably in Muzaffarnagar, Aligarh, Mainpuri, Etah, Bareilly, Bijnor, Cawnpore, Fatehpur, Basti, Azamgarh and Sitapur, and largely in Budaun (58 cases) and Meerut (113 cases). The increase in half a dozen of these districts is due to the resumption of partition work after settlement. The smallness of the increase in Basti (29 cases) is really most satisfactory, as the number of cases for disposal rose from 677 to 877 and 399 partitions were actually carried out as against 262 in the previous year. In Budaun the rise is explained by the general conditions of work in the district which have already been referred to. In Meerut the Collector says that owing to inadequacy of staff he has not been able to depute a special officer for the work, and it is plain that partitions have been postponed to other work. The pending file is now over 400 cases in the districts of Gorakhpur, Basti and Meerut ; it is 266 in Budaun, about 200 in Saharanpur and Muzaffarnagar, 181 in Bijnor and 142 in Aligarh. The general results can only be described as disheartening. The outturn of work for several years has been most creditable to the courts ; yet the file of cases goes on increasing. It averaged 1,731 before the passing of the Act ; it is now 4,292. The Board feel very certain that if any result of this kind had been anticipated, the conditions under which imperfect partition can be applied for would never have been relaxed. Nor are there any signs so far that the effects of the new Act will prove to be temporary : some day conceivably the number of possible partitions will be worked out, but for a long time to come it appears certain that partitions will continue to be a heavy item in the burden of additional work that has been thrown on revenue courts.

76. The improvement of partition work continues to have attention. The Board agree with the Commissioner of Benares that the rule of entrusting the whole partition work in each district to one officer, and the attention paid to a standard of work have had results that are visible in the outturn. It has not been found practicable to give partition amins a pension, but Government has agreed to a considerable enhancement of their pay, and various proposals regarding the partition staff, the method of calculating fees, and a standard of work have been embodied in a circular which has been approved by Government.

77. The number of applications by lambardars for recovery of arrears of revenue rose but slowly from 847 in 1902-3 to 1,028 in 1904-5. In the year under report there was a substantial rise of 317 cases, the total number of applications being 1,345, but the arrears of which recovery was sought amounted to Rs. 61,042 only against Rs. 57,370 in the previous year, and Rs. 62,274 in 1902-3. In the Meerut district there was an extraordinary increase of 203 cases : the Collector says that there had been a tendency to allow inclusive applications and some of the increase is due to insistence on separate applications being filed for separate shares, but his assertion that the greater part should be attributed to bad seasons, is not in keeping with the experience of other districts. In Oudh also the number of cases rose from 201 to 279 and there was some increase in the Gorakhpur division. In the Allahabad division a fall from 164 to 125 may possibly be due to extensive remissions and the consequent reduction of the demand. The amount for recovery was Rs. 82,009 of which Rs. 53,606 were collected, and various claims having been rejected the balance at the end of the year was Rs. 20,105 : it was largest (Rs. 5,941) in Aligarh. The Deputy Commissioner of Hardoi says that tahsildars are inclined to look on the recovery of money on behalf of lambardars as a work of supererogation, and to let proceedings drag till the lambardar interferes with collections or commits some other irregularity which justifies the case being struck off. Any tendency of this kind must be checked. The procedure of section 184 has of course no application where the lambardar's office is a nominal one : and where he collects rents on behalf of the co-sharers, it is unnecessary. But in a wide circle of cases it is invaluable. As Mr. Hailey says, difficulty in revenue collections arises only in villages with numerous co-sharers, where liabilities are perhaps ill-defined and poor circumstances make the people anxious to defer payment till the last moment. Under such conditions the lambardar will pay the revenue demand promptly, provided he has an assurance that he can recover from the pattidars through the agency of the tahsil, and the support given to the lambardar facilitates the recovery of revenue.

78. Till 1903-4 the amount of land revenue remitted by money-order increased by about two lakhs annually, but in 1904-5 it fell from Rs. 54,52,507 to Rs. 53,63,110 and it was suggested that the fall was due to the diminution in the demand caused by large remissions : this explanation was supported by an exceptional decrease of two lakhs in Allahabad, but it did not account for all the variations in other divisions. In the year under report the amount fell to Rs. 46,82,811, the decrease being one to one and-a-half lakhs in each of the divisions of the Agra province : in Oudh there was some increase, but in Lucknow the increase was very small, and in Fyzabad it was no more than the decrease in the previous year. It is difficult to understand these results. The decrease is again attributed generally to remissions, but the explanation is inconsistent with the fact that collections of land revenue were larger than in the previous year, and that there is no sort of connection between the falling off in the value of money-orders and the amount of remissions granted in different divisions. It is possible, as suggested in more than one district report, that, in consequence of various changes made in the demand for rates and cesses, an exceptional number of proprietors visited the tahsil in order to ascertain the extent of the change in the amounts due from them, and that being there they preferred to pay in their revenue at once instead of sending it through the post office: this suggestion seems scarcely sufficient to explain the very large falling off in money-orders, but it is the only one offered that has any plausibility.

The number and value of miscellaneous money-orders increased from 34,606 and Rs. 7,43,530 in 1904-5 to 40,578 and Rs. 8,09,161 in the year under report. In this case divisional changes are the inverse of those reported last year and require no comment.

79. The amount of rent remitted through the post office was Rs. 15,18,338.

§ 79.—Rental money orders.

An increase of 6 per cent. over the previous year corresponds with larger rent collections.

80. Appeals to Collectors under the Revenue Act during 1905-6 were practically the same as in the previous year, but the total for disposal was slightly higher, and the number of decided cases being almost unchanged, the pending file rose from 726 to 874 cases, of which 217 had been pending for more than three months. The number of undecided cases was large only in Meerut, Budaun, Gorakhpur, Azamgarh and Bara Banki, and Meerut accounts for nearly half the cases that had been pending for more than three months. The arrears in Budaun and Azamgarh are explained by what has already been said about work in those districts: the arrears in Bara Banki have not been noticed by the Deputy Commissioner. In the Meerut district the pending file is composed mainly of partition appeals (105), which cannot be heard till the partitions are completed and sent to the Collector for confirmation, but it is curious that in Basti, where partitions are quite as numerous as in Meerut, the number of undecided appeals is small. A very considerable rise in the Gorakhpur file is attributed by the Collector to the special work on which he was engaged towards the close of the year; but partition appeals may also have contributed to the increase.

The number of appeals to Commissioners fell from 2,650 to 2,389, chiefly in Agra and Lucknow, and the number for disposal from 3,114 to 2,779; 2,492 appeals were decided as against 2,725, and the file reduced from 389 to 287 cases. Following the number of institutions the reduction was largest in Agra and Lucknow.

The Board had for disposal 722 appeals under the Land Revenue Act, of which 466 were decided. The orders of the lower courts were disturbed in 60 cases. Of 201 cases for revision, 111 were disposed of. In 17 cases the orders of the lower courts were interfered with. There were, in addition, 71 appeals under the Regulations of the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares, of which 61 were decided.

81. In Agra the number of cases, including arrears, received from the Civil § 81.—Action taken to avert sale of land in execution of civil and rent court decrees. Statements XXX-A and B.

Courts was 5,737. In 1,266 the whole, and in 106 a portion of the property was sold: in eight sale was postponed under section 305 of the Civil Procedure Code, and in 46 arrangements were made for mortgage, lease or farm: 2,202 cases shown as otherwise disposed of are cases withdrawn, struck off on payment of the decree money, or for some similar reason not proceeded with.

In Oudh the number of applications for sanction to sale of ancestral property under Civil Court decrees was 933, and under Rent Court decrees, 313. Sanction was accorded during the year in 1,063 cases, and sale took place in 475. There were only 40 sales of self-acquired property.

82. The work relating to appropriation of land chiefly for railway purposes was again heavy, the area of land acquired during the year being 11,656 acres against 9,613 acres in the previous year. Compensation had to be paid at a very high rate for the acquisition of some lands within municipal limits in the Lucknow, Cawnpore and Bareilly districts as well as for the acquisition of a town site in Ballia, and the total amount of compensation awarded increased from Rs. 8,97,008 in 1904-5 to Rs. 13,14,598 in the year of report. Nine hundred and seventy two acres were restored, the price realized being Rs. 32,989.

83. At the close of the last revenue year the Roorkee College Press had on hand for reproduction 15 tahsili maps and 10 more were sent during the year under report. Of the total of 25, 21 maps were printed during the year.

84. Under this head it may be interesting to show the effect of Mr. Impey's recommendations for the reduction and curtailment of reports and returns. Between 1897-8 and 1900-1 the issues and receipts in the revenue department of English district offices rose from 371,212 to 418,339 or on the average by 4 per cent. per annum. Mr. Impey's recommendations took effect from April 1902, and in the revenue year 1902-3 the number fell to 336,590. In the year under report it was 359,052, and it is clear that there has been a considerable saving of clerical work.

The receipts and issues of the Board's office were 51,383, almost exactly the same as in the previous year.

The total number of cases for disposal in district offices rose from 1,721,337 to 1,866,925. The increase which was chiefly no doubt under rent cases, mutations and takavi was largest in the Allahabad, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions. In Azamgarh an exceptional increase of some 15,000 cases may be accounted for by the resumption of regular work after settlement, but it is impossible to explain increases of 18,000 and 20,000 cases in Sultanpur and Almora. There are indications of want of uniformity in the system of registration of English letters and there may be variations also in the treatment of miscellaneous vernacular papers. Possibly therefore the whole increase is not real, but in any case the figures are a very inadequate representation of what the strain of the actual work has been. It is creditable that in the Allahabad division the pending file shows almost no increase, and that in Jalaun it has actually been reduced. The Board observe also satisfactory reductions in the Benares and Lucknow divisions, in Moradabad and in Naini Tal. On the other hand there has generally been an increase, and in a few cases a very large increase; in Azamgarh the pending file has risen from 5,227 to 10,166 and in Sultanpur from 2,670 to 9,977 cases, and for the provinces as a whole it now stands at 205,817 cases compared with 187,373 at the close of last year. In the last three years it has risen 18 per cent.

§ 85.—Assignments, etc., of land revenue.
Statement XXXIII.

85. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 6,13,052, as against Rs. 6,14,194 in the previous year.

86. Rules for the maintenance of a bachhbandi or statement of the sums due from individual co-sharers or groups of co-sharers who pay revenue separately were approved during the year for districts where payments are not made through lambardars, but the Board have recently had to propose some modifications with respect to the form prescribed. The important question of the general form of revenue accounts also has been examined and a circular on the subject is under the consideration of Government.

87. The striking fact about the year under report is that while its history for the greater part is one of adversity or even disaster, the close is everywhere, except for the eastern districts, in a most hopeful key. In two successive seasons over a considerable portion of the provinces the crops had failed or were deficient; in Bundelkhand the record of failure had run for three years. The Collector of Allahabad comments on the fact that a year of this character was weathered with the remission of only a lakh of rupees and the grant of liberal advances. The Deputy Commissioner of Unao thinks that ten years ago the conditions that prevailed in his district would have led to a severe famine. Yet the monsoon of last year found everyone ready to sow their crops, and with favourable rain the whole situation was transformed within three months. The examination of this result is extremely interesting and the causes that made it possible should be stated. In the first place railway extensions continued. The Farrukhabad branch was completed, the Bareilly-Soron line opened, the narrow gauge lines in Gorakhpur were extended, and various lines from Moradabad to Ramnagar, Allahabad to Jaunpur, Khurja to Hapur and Shahdara to Saharanpur were under construction. Extensions of the canal system were confined mainly to Bundelkhand where the success in recent years of the facilities already available has encouraged the construction of undertakings long held in abeyance. The formation of a special canal division to look after tanks is most opportune, and altogether with greatly increased protection against drought and the prospect of extended railway communications it looks as if better times were in store for Bundelkhand. Improved communications and irrigation extensions are referred to, however, in this connection, not because of their ultimate contribution to the welfare of the provinces, but because of their importance in the year under report as creating a demand for labour. So also the great necessity for irrigation : with the result that labourers were in great demand. Writing in November Mr. Tweedie said that in Chandausi they were not obtainable even at six or eight annas a day, and though prices were high the condition of the labouring classes was very good. On the administrative side must be noticed the prompt remission of revenue, and it is certain that liberal advances of takavi were of the greatest assistance. But apart from any official help and more important than any Government enterprise, signs were not wanting of initiative and pluck on the part of the people. The Board observe these signs, slight it may be, but not unimportant, in matters of private trade. They hear of new mills in Aligarh, of a resident of Bulandshahr who has travelled in Japan and on his return has set up silk weaving looms, of a new tendency in Mainpuri on the part of the educated classes to turn their attention to trade and manufactures, of a mill being started in Unao, so that the Deputy Commissioner already looks forward to that town being an annexe of Cawnpore. In agriculture it is seldom suggested now that the people are wedded to tradition and careless of improvement. Mr. Simpson says the sugar experiments of S. Muhammad Hadi in Rampur have created a deep impression, and since the necessary plant is beyond the means of individuals, the cultivators in Moradabad are anxious to secure it on co-operative principles. A sign of ready acceptance of improvement is the system of early sowing with the help of irrigation of maize and cotton, which Mr. Moreland considers to be one of the most important agricultural developments now proceeding. Agricultural banks are separately reported on and need not be considered here at any length. But it is relevant to observe that there are good prospects of success, and more particularly that the experience of many individual banks shows a capacity for self-help, and combination that is very gratifying. The Board think that the people are growing more independent and more prosperous, as time goes on. They have been much struck with statistics, reported to Government elsewhere, which seem to show that proprietors at the present time are better able to preserve their property than their predecessors. They are impressed with the results of the year on which they are now reporting, and they consider that its history is a testimony to the soundness of the agricultural position in these provinces.

88. But if they bear testimony in this way to a condition of general prosperity, evidenced by rapid recovery from depression, they cannot conclude without emphasising the drawbacks connected with the present working of the tenancy laws. There is no justification, they think, for saying that the tenantry as a body are crushed by a burden of excessive rents, but it is the case, no doubt, that in the conflict of interests between landlord and tenant, it is the tenant that occupies the weaker position, and this is the inequality which it is the object of the law to remove. It can succeed, however, only so far as it substitutes in the fixation of rents judicial decision for private bargaining. Because it cannot in many cases apply so radical a remedy, it is ineffective. Thus in spite of legal restrictions on enhancement, the Deputy Commissioner of Sitapur, to give one example, says that since settlement, ten or eleven years ago, the rental demand of his district has risen from 37 to 49 lakhs, that is, by 31 per cent., and quite generally it would appear that the statutory limitation of enhancement in Oudh is not observed. In Agra, the law is equally powerless to protect those tenants who have not occupancy rights. Thus the effect of the law is, not to restrain landlords in any way from exacting a full rent, but merely to force them into the employment of legal proceedings, such as ejectment cases, in the process of rent raising.

This is the matter which the Board think calls for consideration. The evils of the resulting litigation, so far as the people are concerned, are patent; it has always been recognised that of the indebtedness which recently has given rise to so much discussion, litigation is one of the principal causes, and it is extremely desirable that no litigation should be allowed to continue which can by any possibility be stopped. The effect on the courts will appear plainly from what has already been said. The way of any possible amendment of the law therefore does not lie in the direction of tightening further the bonds by which the action of the landlord is supposed to be checked. It will be clear that in the opinion of the Board any check, short of the fixation of all rents by order of court, would be illusory, and that so long as there exists on the one side a landlord anxious to make the most out of the land, and on the other a tenant eager to get the land, so long will the full price for the land be paid, whether in accordance with permission given in the law, or by an evasion of the law, or in contravention of the law. The weakness of the tenant is due in fact to conditions outside the law and must continue till those conditions are improved. There are various ways in which improvement may be effected. Thus Mr. Moreland has pointed out in his note on the agricultural defects of the province, that the first need of agriculture is cheap money, and direct benefit would result, from a lowering of the rate of interest. The extension of trade and manufactures also may powerfully affect the agricultural situation by easing the pressure on the land, and should the tenantry learn, from the experience of the Agricultural Banks for instance, the power of combination, they will be able to do for themselves much more than any law can accomplish. The real solution of the problem, the strengthening of the tenants' position, must come about in the course of economic changes, and that law is the best which forces least litigation on the people.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

R. W. GILLAN,

Secretary,

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{955}{I-185-1907}$ of 1907.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 24th April 1907.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary, Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no. $\frac{571}{XII-163A(3)}$, dated the 23rd February 1907, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1906.

OBSERVATIONS.—The report reached Government on the 25th of February, or eighteen days before it was due. The second part of appendix XXXI is unnecessarily detailed, and instructions will issue separately for its simplification.

2. In the previous year the unprecedented frosts in the end of January 1905 had caused an immensity of damage to the crops, and the partial failure of the monsoon had led to distress, which in the Agra division and in Bundelkhand deepened into famine after the year had closed. The rabi was a short one, and but for the timely fall in February 1906 it would have been an even poorer one. Fortunately the monsoon rains of 1906 were plentiful and seasonable and the year closed with excellent promise for the future. As the Board remark, a single season appears to have restored the provinces after a period of depression, and, in parts, of famine, to a condition of prosperity.

3. The extension of the area under money-making crops—cane and cotton in the kharif and poppy in the rabi—was, as the Board observe, a factor of considerable importance in a year of generally adverse conditions, especially as the dearness and inferior quality of the wheat seed led to a serious decline in the area under that crop. The continued extension of the area under cotton is a very satisfactory development. The Board refer to the fears that are felt as to the effect that the competition of foreign sugar may have on the area under cane, and quote the opinion of one officer to the effect that, unless steps are taken to prevent it, cane cultivation may follow the same course as indigo. No one interested in the future of the sugar industry in India can regard without concern the large imports of foreign sugar into the country, but the Lieutenant Governor thinks that no analogy can be drawn between sugarcane, the pet crop of the best cultivators, and indigo, a crop which was certainly not always popular with the raiyat. Beet sugar and sugar, the produce of cane grown in other countries, are no doubt at present procurable at considerably lower prices than country sugar, but taste has, the Lieutenant Governor believes, an enormous influence in the market in these provinces and in the native states which adjoin them, and he is inclined to think that the ordinary consumer would be ready to pay a higher price for (say) the best Bareilly sugar than for the imported article. The objects which we have to place before ourselves are reduction in the cost of manufacture, extension of the area under cane cultivation, and an increase in outturn per acre. The experiments of Khan Bahadur Muhammad Hadi seem to the Lieutenant Governor to give every hope that it will be found possible, if allowance is made for the profit from the by-product of molasses, to place locally-produced sugar, similar to the Bareilly sugar in taste, but admittedly superior to it in purity, on the market at as low a price as that at which imported sugar now sells. No opportunity should be lost of familiarizing the people with the details of the new process. That even now the growing of sugarcane is a profitable business may be inferred from the figures given in the final report on the sugarcane crop for 1906-7, which may, the Lieutenant Governor thinks, suitably be reproduced here. The area under the cane crop in that year was 1,386,710 acres compared with 1,228,936 acres in 1905, and is the largest since 1895, when 1,388,889 acres were sown. The increase since 1905 amounts to 157,774 acres or nearly 13 per cent., and is shared by all the divisions of the provinces. Compared with the average areas of the preceding five and ten years, the increase amounts to 17 and 14 per cent. respectively. Unless the information given to the Lieutenant Governor during his recent tours is incorrect, there is every likelihood that the area under sugarcane in 1907-8 will in many places be even higher than in the past year. These statistics are, it appears to Sir John Hewett, very encouraging, and he is not without hope that, if a determined and sustained effort is now made to popularize the economical and efficient method of manufacture devised by Khan Bahadur Muhammad Hadi, the sugar industry in those provinces may be placed in a very satisfactory condition and the maintenance of the cane cultivation permanently assured.

4. The history of the famine has been written elsewhere, but its results are clearly reflected in the revenue returns. The balance of uncollected rent is estimated to be seventy-six lakhs less than the normal, and the bulk of this was in the two most distressed divisions. But the remissions of revenue sanctioned for both harvests were over thirty-six lakhs of rupees, of which thirty-two lakhs were in the two divisions chiefly affected; while revenue to the extent of Rs. 1,40,000 was suspended. Owing to the complete abolition of the further or famine rate and of the patwari rate proprietors were relieved of a demand amounting to thirty-nine lakhs. Advances under both Acts were given freely, and they reached the abnormal figure of $21\frac{1}{3}$ lakhs under the Agriculturists' Loans Act and nearly five lakhs under the Land Improvement Loans Act. These prompt and liberal measures of assistance explain why in a year of stress it was found possible without any exceptional resort to coercive processes to collect as much as 99·8 per cent. of the realizable demand. There is some increase, but not a great increase, in the figures of such processes. The tendency to substitute the more efficacious method of citation for a writ continues, and there was a marked rise in the number of attachments of movable property, though in comparatively few instances (196 out of 8,402) were they followed by sale.

5. The Lieutenant Governor has been impressed with the remarkable differences in the methods of collection followed in different districts. The matter has attracted attention before, and it is understood that Commissioners have taken the opportunity of their tours in the past cold weather to examine the figures for the districts in their divisions, and endeavour, when great diversities are found, to ascertain their cause. A separate report on the result of this examination should be submitted for the information of Government.

6. Dry seasons led to an enormous resort to artificial irrigation, and the area watered by canals was exceptionally large. The demand for occupier's rate was as much as ninety-eight lakhs, and the real balance two lakhs. There is some doubt whether in all cases remissions of canal rates on account of failure of crops or for similar causes were given with sufficient liberality. The Lieutenant Governor will be glad if the Board will consider the question and submit such proposals as are needed to ensure closer co-operation between the canal and the revenue authorities in this respect.

7. One of the most important subjects with which the report deals is the question of rent law litigation in Agra. The number of cases instituted rose by 10 per cent. and a heavy additional burden of work was thrown on the courts. The main features of the year's litigation may be briefly noticed. Suits for arrears of rent rose by 11 per cent., the bulk of the increase being in the famine-stricken tracts of the Agra division and Bundelkhand, where the prospects of a good kharif led to landowners endeavouring to recover some of their unpaid rents; and applications to eject for non-payment of decreed arrears rose in concert. The number of suits for distraint rose by 9 per cent., and suits for enhancement, which have to be filed in the monsoon months when agricultural conditions were favourable, increased by 4 per cent. Surrenders show a remarkable rise of 46 per cent.; the explanations advanced for the variations under this head are admittedly inadequate, and in the present year the subject should receive special attention. The area held under leases for not less than seven years was larger by 78,000 acres, but the expansion is mainly in large estates or for special reasons.

Ejectment suits, after the adjustment of the figures made by the Board, were 18 per cent. over the number in the preceding year; but taking both years together, the number for the past four years has remained steadily at 40 per cent. above the former normal. Favourable conditions prevailed in the months when these suits are filed, and landlords saw their way to obtain enhanced rents by using ejectment as a lever. Appendix XX-C, which gives information regarding the classes of tenants ejected and their treatment after ejectment, should be retained till the result of the investigation of the figures in the present appendix is known.

The question of altering the dates fixed by the Tenancy Act for the institution of suits for ejectment was discussed in connexion with the report for 1904-5, and proposals are now under the consideration of Government. A suggestion was made last year that the procedure should be simplified by obliging the landlord to file with his plaint a certified copy of the entries in the most recent land records regarding the tenant. The attendance of the patwari would thereby be avoided in uncontested cases, though the cost of the suit would be added to slightly in contested cases. The opinion of the Board on this suggestion should have been furnished to the Government.

8. In Oudh there was a general increase in litigation in the year under report, but the only feature of special interest is a large advance of 36 per cent. in relinquishments, for which, as in the case of surrenders in Agra, no very satisfactory explanation is forthcoming.

9. The burden of the work to be done by the courts goes on increasing. In Agra the pending file rose during the year from 75,336 to 84,223 cases. It is true that the bulk of these cases are filed in the last three months of the revenue year and cannot be decided till the following year, but the result remains that there has been a real and most undesirable accumulation of work. Cases pending for over three months have risen from 1,449 to 3,929, though no less than 2,745 of these were in one district alone. The Lieutenant Governor agrees with the Board that in the circumstances of the year the courts are to be congratulated on their success in keeping their files as low as they were. It is now clear, however, that the work in certain districts has grown beyond the power of the staff to deal with, and that the high pressure of case work has tended to affect injuriously the manner of disposal. In June of last year proposals were submitted by this Government for a permanent increase to the cadre of deputy collectors, and the orders of the Secretary of State are awaited. Meanwhile the power to give aid where it is needed is fettered by the conditions which govern the appointment of temporary additional deputy collectors, and the necessity of allowing this Government more discretion in the matter is indicated by the state of the files, not only of rent, but of partition, cases in districts where the need is greatest. The staff in Budaun has been temporarily strengthened, but it has been at the expense of other districts.

10. Partition work continues very heavy, and, though the number of partitions actually carried out was larger than in the preceding year, the pending file has increased. The need for a special partition officer is felt in several districts where work has accumulated, but the cadre is not large enough to admit of help being given. The Board have not yet submitted definite proposals to limit the size of pattis formed by imperfect partition, but it is understood that they will reach Government shortly.

11. The Lieutenant Governor desires to acknowledge the earnest work of the district officers and their staffs, the efficient supervision exercised by Commissioners of divisions, and the thorough manner in which the Board have controlled revenue business during the year. The incidents of the revenue administration of the provinces in 1906-7 are clearly and concisely described in their report.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, for the information of the Board.

Ordered also that a copy of this resolution be published in the

SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,

TO

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT,
REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 13th March 1908.

SIR,

Present:
THE HON'BLE
MR. A. W.
CRUICKSHANK,
L. A. S. PORTER,
Esq., C.S.I.

I AM directed to submit the following as the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending on 30th September 1907.

§§ 1-3—Introductory.

2. With the retirement of the Hon'ble Mr. R. G. Hardy, C.S.I., on 9th October 1906, the temporary office of third Member of the Board was abolished, having been in existence since 8th November 1902. On the 5th December 1906 the Hon'ble Mr. J. Hooper, C.S.I., also retired. The news of his death, which occurred shortly after, was received with great regret by the Board and large numbers of the official and non-official community of the provinces. The Hon'ble Mr. A. W. Cruickshank, C.S.I., then became Senior Member, and Mr. L. A. S. Porter, C.S.I., was appointed Junior Member though he did not actually take up the duties of the post until after the close of the year under review. Mr. Cruickshank was absent on privilege leave for three months during which period the Hon'ble Mr. H. W. W. Reynolds officiated as Member. Mr. Porter being on deputation, Mr. H. Z. Darrah, C.S.I., officiated as Member until his departure on furlough in January 1907, when his place was taken for the remainder of the year by the Hon'ble Mr. D. C. Baillie. For the greater part of the period under review, therefore, the Members of the Board actually on duty as such were Messrs. Cruickshank and Baillie.

3. Six of the divisional reports by the Commissioners were received shortly before or after the fixed date, but the Allahabad divisional report was nineteen days, that of Agra twenty-two days, and that of Rohilkhand thirty-one days late. The explanation is, doubtless, the pressure of work due to the scarcity impending at the time the reports were due, and the same cause appears to the Board to have affected the quality of several of the district reports. The assistance of the Government Press, however, has made it possible to submit the Board's review with fair punctuality.

4. The year 1905-06 was one of vicissitudes, and in the Agra and Allahabad divisions a succession of bad seasons led to famine in the hot months of 1906. The rains were, however, plentiful and the outlook at the beginning of the year under review was generally promising.

5. The monsoon of 1906 broke in the last week of June and gave rain which was copious throughout the provinces and somewhat in excess of the normal in the western divisions. In July the first twelve and the last six days of the month brought good general rain. There was then an almost complete break in the first half of August, and during the month the total fall was generally less than the normal.

Excessive rain, however, fell in Bahraich, Gonda, Basti and Gorakhpur at a time when the rivers were already full, with the result that the Gogra, Rapti and Gandak caused serious floods. In September there was generally good rain, but the eastern districts did not get enough. A few showers fell in the eastern divisions in October and in the western divisions in December, but there was no more general rain until February. The greater part of that month was damp and cloudy and all districts received over an inch of rain, while the weather in the hills was exceptionally severe. March, too, was unseasonably wet and hailstorms were somewhat frequent, while in April there were further heavy falls. It may be said of the year as a whole that the monsoon rains were exceptionally favourable except in the east and north-east, but that the cold weather was unsatisfactory—too dry in the first half, and much too wet later in the season.

6. The sowing season in the kharif was generally favourable, and with high prices prevailing at the time there was every inducement to take advantage of the weather. The kharif area slightly exceeded 24 million acres, giving an increase, as compared with the previous year, of 4·3 per cent. and being more than  $1\frac{1}{2}$  million acres or 5 per cent. in excess of the normal. To the increase all districts contributed except Sitapur and those in the east central tract comprising Jaunpur, the north of Allahabad and Southern Oudh, where there was a fall, attributed partly to an exceptionally large kharif in the previous year, and partly to local excess of rain at the sowing time. The rabi sowing season was also generally favourable and high prices continued. The total area sown was 19·9 million acres, showing an increase of 4·8 per cent. as compared with the previous year and being 1 per cent. above normal. In many districts the increase was large. All those in which the kharif area was short, except Jaunpur, are among those showing substantial extensions. The dryness of September caused decreases of some importance in Benares, Ghazipur, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad and restricted the increase in Mirzapur, Jaunpur, Ballia, Basti and Gonda. In a few of the western districts there were slight decreases which the Director of Land Records and Agriculture attributes to want of room. The districts concerned grow large areas of late kharif which cannot be followed by a winter crop in the same year, and a large extension of the kharif area in them is usually followed by a reduced rabi. As for the zaid, or extra hot weather crops, Mr. Moreland notices an increase in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, following on the short rabi, and points to the large decrease elsewhere (amounting to over 25 per cent. for the provinces) as indicating a distinct relaxation of the pressure on the people. The nett result of the sowings for the whole year was an area 3 per cent. above normal, and a twice-cropped area 6 per cent. above normal. From this point of view the year was quite satisfactory.

7. To the general increase in the kharif area the crops which mainly contributed were rice, millets, sugarcane and cotton. There was a slight decrease in the area under maize and miscellaneous crops. Rice, with an increase of more than half a million acres, regained the position it had lost in a series of dry years, and, among the millets, juar and the smaller varieties to some extent replaced bajra, an inferior crop of which an exceptionally large area indicates a sowing season unfavourable for the better staples. The falling-off in maize was mainly due to the heavy early rains in Gonda and Bahraich where about one-fifth of the maize crop of the provinces is usually grown. Cotton, with a large increase of 99,000 acres, is thought by the Director to be regaining popularity. He points with satisfaction, in which the Board share, to the fact that a large part of the increase occurred in Farrukhabad, Budaun, Hardoi, Moradabad and Unao, all of which districts lie along the fringe of the great cotton-growing tracts of the doab and yet do not extend into the important cane tract further north. The increase in the area under sugarcane was no less than 139,000 acres and is attributable not only to the rain in the spring of 1906, which facilitated sowings, but also to an undoubted revival of the popularity of the crop. The oilseed til also occupied an extended area, but indigo continued to decline in popularity, being sown in only 53,000 acres, or about 10,000 acres less than in the previous year.

8. Among the rabi crops the most remarkable increases occurred in the area under wheat (over half a million acres), under other food grains (over 300,000 acres) and under linseed (69,000 acres). The area of wheat, though it did not reach the high figure of 1905, almost touched seven million acres, a figure about 2 per cent. above the normal. Among the other crops gram and barley showed the greatest increase in area, but peas, which are commonest in the eastern divisions, were less widely sown than usual owing to the absence of sufficient moisture at the sowing time. An important decrease of 19,000 acres occurred in the area under poppy, but in 1905-06 the crop had been unusually popular owing to the need of money at the time when opium advances were distributed. The decreased area was, however, still about 9 per cent. above the previous normal and exceeded 419,000 acres.

9. Injury to the crops in an otherwise prosperous year was caused by devastating floods in August 1906 in Gorakhpur, Basti, Gonda, Bahraich and Ballia; and to a less extent by the Jumna in Muzaffarnagar, Bulandshahr, Muttra and Aligarh; by several hailstorms, of which the most severe occurred in Agra, Fatehpur, Banda and Bahraich; and lastly by the wet spring of 1907, which damaged an exceptionally promising rabi everywhere except in Bundelkhand. The floods were the most serious local calamity of the year. A certain amount of kharif is always sown speculatively in the affected areas, but whereas, in a normal year, the loss is 1 to 1½ lakh of acres, in 1906 four lakhs of acres were destroyed. The floods came, too, at a most inopportune time. The maize was nearly ripe and was destroyed when it seemed fairly safe, and in places the floods lasted long enough to damage even the rice. The trouble was accentuated by deficient rainfall after the floods in Gorakhpur and parts of Basti, and it was impossible to sow the rabi in many parts, and at last, the standing crops being injured by rain, measures of relief became necessary in Gorakhpur. Basti fared rather better.

10. As was natural in the season above described the kharif as a whole was a very good crop. Juar, bajra, sugarcane, cotton and indigo yielded at least the full normal; maize yielded 80 per cent. of the normal; and the most serious failure occurred in the case of late rice, which gave only a 70 per cent. crop, the main cause being deficient rain in September in the eastern districts. There are, however, as usual, local variations. Juar would probably have yielded a crop above normal but for damage caused in Aligarh, Muttra, and Etah, and to a less extent elsewhere, by heavy rain in September. Maize was usually a good crop, but the floods in the eastern and north-eastern districts brought down the average. Rice, too, was at least normal except in the Benares, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions. The rabi crops generally were less successful. The yield of barley, gram and opium was 85 per cent. of the normal, but of wheat only 75 per cent., while oilseeds gave only 75 to 80 per cent. The money-bringing crops were, therefore, disappointing. The exceptions were in Bundelkhand and the extreme north-west, where wheat escaped the general injury caused by rust and excessive rain in the spring. It may be said, however, that the yield of food-grains was fairly good, except in the eastern divisions.

11. The general result of the year under review was to restore the provinces to a condition of prosperity after a period of depression and, in parts, of actual famine. The monsoon of 1907 has, however, been unfortunate and many parts of the provinces are now in the throes of a famine which promises to be more widespread than any since 1897. The Benares and Gorakhpur divisions and some isolated tracts elsewhere had the good fortune to receive useful rain at the end of June and the beginning of July. General rain did not set in until after July 20th, from which time, however, it was fairly continuous, though capriciously distributed, until the end of August. At that time there was hardly any rain to benefit the kharif or to help the sowing of the rabi. The last good fall occurred in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions in the first week of September and nothing beyond light showers, of little value, was received elsewhere. Generally speaking, the kharif sowings were nearly a month late, but almost a full normal area was sown, some divisions showing an area actually in excess of the normal. The most serious deficit (and that only 7 per cent.) occurred in the Allahabad division. The area under rice was curtailed by 8 lakhs of acres, but the deficit was largely made up by small millets and bajra, which between them covered an area of more than 6 lakhs of acres above normal. The early cessation of the rains was, however, disastrous, and the effects of drought were aggravated by high west winds. Even in canal-irrigated fields the yield was barely three-fourths of the normal and in unirrigated fields much less, being in many cases almost nothing. Late rice in particular was almost entirely lost. Maize and cotton generally gave no more than half a crop and juar and bajra about 40 per cent.: early rice rather less. Cane too, has been damaged to some extent. In the canal-irrigated districts of the Meerut and Agra divisions the average yield of all crops has been about 55 per cent. and elsewhere from 20 to about 45 per cent. Apart from the canal districts those which fared best were those of the eastern districts, which received rain in June and do not depend largely on the crop of late rice. The prospects at the end of the year were thus extremely gloomy and in marked contrast to the bright outlook at the beginning; but it will be the province of the next report to describe the measures which have been taken, and their effect on the people and the administration of land revenue.

12. The closing months of 1906 were unhealthy, fever being specially prevalent. The deaths in January and February 1907 were also rather above normal. In the months of March, § 12.—Health.

April and May plague was very virulent and widespread, and over a quarter of a million deaths were reported as due to that disease alone in those months, the worst of which was April with nearly 110,000 deaths. In the later months of the year there was no unusual mortality. Cholera, though not entirely absent in any month, was never epidemic in a large area. The Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions generally recorded a greater mortality throughout the year than in the previous year; so also did the Agra division, in which, however, there was a slight decrease in the last quarter. The first six months of 1907 were generally unfavourable to all divisions except Kumaun, but the first and last quarters brought decreased mortality to the Benares, Gorakhpur, Lucknow and Fyzabad divisions. In the hills alone was a slightly decreased death-rate observable throughout the year. On the whole, therefore, the western divisions, in which plague was exceptionally virulent, were more unfortunate than the eastern.

13. The statistics of trade are compiled by the financial year and are not available in full for any date after 31st March 1907.

§ 13.—External Trade.

A consideration of them is, however, relevant to this report and I am to indicate the most important variations. The principal features of the statistics of imports were a diminution in the movement of grain and pulse from Bengal and of salt from Rajputana and Central India. Grain and pulse were, however, imported in larger quantities from the Punjab, Rajputana and Central India. The nett decrease in imports of all kinds was 11½ lakhs of maunds and 14 lakhs of rupees. Exports, on the other hand, increased by 48¾ lakhs of maunds in weight and about 357 lakhs of rupees in value, the principal increases being in raw cotton and oilseeds despatched to Bombay, oilseeds to Calcutta and grain to Bengal. The exports of grain to the Punjab, Rajputana and Central India showed a decrease. One unmistakable sign of returning prosperity was a large increase of over 1 lakh of maunds in the import of European piece-goods and a small increase of about 7,000 maunds in Indian piece-goods. The imports of kerosine oil also showed a very large increase, and have more than doubled since 1903-1904. The imports of unrefined sugar (principally from Calcutta and Bengal) rose largely in consequence of the inferior local crop of 1905-1906. The exports fell off for the same reason, for, although an exceptionally large area of cane was sown, the outturn was rather poor, particularly in the western divisions. The nett decrease in the export of the raw product was 10½ lakhs of maunds, but there was an increase of nearly 1 lakh of maunds in refined sugar, the total export of which was about one-half of the total import. The exports of grain and pulse exceeded the imports by over 15½ lakhs of maunds. In the preceding year there had been a decrease of 206 lakhs of maunds in exports in consequence of the inferior rabi and kharif harvests of 1905. The rabi harvest of 1906 was not plentiful and the kharif was a partial failure in those districts which suffered from excess of rain. Accordingly, although there was a recovery in the export trade, it was only partial. As already noted, cotton was, in 1906, raised on an extended area, and the season being favourable the yield was the best for several years past. This fact is reflected in the export returns, which show a record figure of 25¾ lakhs of maunds despatched from the provinces. The increased exports are localised principally in the Allahabad and Rohilkhand divisions. The traffic in raw hides and skins was stimulated by a strong demand in foreign markets and high prices, so that there was an increase of over 22,000 maunds in the total export. The total of 6·3 lakhs of maunds was only once before exceeded, six years previously. Hemp, too, shows a large increase, owing, probably, to the high price of jute in Bengal and the consequent substitution of hemp for it when possible. The export of oil-seeds, which was at a very low ebb in 1905-06, recovered to some extent, but the linseed crop was a poor one on a small area, and the improvement was but partial. Rapeseed, however, was better by 17 lakhs of maunds and til or gingelly showed a satisfactory improvement. Finally, it may be noted that a less weight of 36,000 maunds of ghi was exported, a fact which Mr. Moreland notes as indicating a satisfactory improvement in the resources of the provinces.

14. In comparing the various trade blocks it may be noted that the Meerut and Rohilkhand and Oudh blocks imported less than they exported to other blocks and to other provinces, the balance being greatest in Oudh (23 lakhs of maunds) and Rohilkhand (19 lakhs). In the Agra, Allahabad and Benares divisions the balance was the other way, the excess of imports over exports being in Agra 31 lakhs of maunds, in Allahabad 61 lakhs, and in Benares 27 lakhs. It will be remembered that a large part of the Allahabad block and a smaller part of the Agra block experienced actual famine in 1906, a fact which is strongly reflected in the excess of imports over exports. The losses by floods in the Benares block may also account for the heavy imports and the low exports in that quarter. It is interesting to note the main sources of the food supply of the distressed areas. They all drew extensively on the Punjab and to a less degree on Rajputana and Central India, while the Allahabad block was substantially helped by imports from the Central Provinces. From within the provinces, however, large supplies were drawn, Oudh contributing nearly as much as the Punjab to Allahabad and Benares. The Meerut block also came to the assistance of Allahabad and Agra, and the Allahabad block (presumably through the collecting centre of Cawnpore) to that of Benares.

15. The extension of the area put under crops in 1906 has already been noted as having been partly due to high prices. Without exception the prices of the principal staples were, at the beginning of October 1906, higher, and with hardly an exception, considerably higher, than they were a year earlier. Six months later, at the end of March, there had been no substantial change. Juar and bajra only at that time were selling at perceptibly easier rates. Wheat was still quoted at about 12½ seers, barley at 16, common rice at under 9, gram at about 14, arhar under 8 and maize at about 16. With the early promise of a good rabi the price of wheat was easier until the end of May, when it had again risen to 13½ seers, the lowest price recorded in any of the principal marts. At the end of August the cheapest price was again 12½ seers and at the end of September it was 11 seers. Barley was fairly cheap until the end of June, being quoted at over 26 seers in one market at the end of April, but by the end of September the price had again risen to 16½ seers and even 12 seers in places. Juar did not fluctuate greatly until July, when prices began steadily to rise until, at the end of September, its cheapest price was 15 seers. Bajra prices followed those of juar and the cheapest rate at the close of the year was 16½ seers. Maize having begun the year at about 16 seers was slightly cheaper in April, but by the end of September the price had risen to 12½ seers; gram, at harvest time, fell to 20 seers in places, but at the end of September the prices quoted were 12 to 14 seers. Arhar alone showed some improvement after April and this was maintained through the year, prices at the close running from 8¼ to 11¼ seers. Generally, it may be said, the turning-point from high to very high prices was reached about the middle of June, when the prospects of an early monsoon were unfavourable. From that time onwards the tendency towards famine rates was marked, and in many districts famine prices were touched before the end of September.

16. The rise in the area of holdings which has been remarked for the last few years continued in 1906-07. The increase of the year amounted to 330,000 acres and is due to the favourable conditions at sowing time already noticed. The increase is common to all divisions and to all districts except Ballia, where there was a trifling decrease. In the province of Agra the increase is distributed over all classes of tenure except sir, which decreased by over 34,000 acres. In the other classes the greatest extensions occurred in khudkasht (77,000 acres), land held on seven-year leases (62,500 acres), occupancy (53,000 acres) and non-occupancy held for 12 years or more (58,000 acres). The fall in sir is general and natural, as the accrual of fresh rights is strictly guarded by the Tenancy Act. The increase in expropriatory holdings (24,500 acres) is also general and is a normal feature. The area is not so large as to be disquieting in any district and the chief increase (4,500 acres in Mainpuri) is due to revision of records rather than to actual changes within the year. In occupancy holdings, recorded as such, there is really a small general decrease in all districts but one, but the revision of records in Mainpuri has added 115,000 acres to the previous record, so that there is a net gain. The area under leases has again risen substantially but is still only a small proportion of tenants' land. The subject is further noticed in chapter III. In Oudh the only marked changes are in ordinary tenants' land and in khudkasht, in which classes increases, corresponding with the extension of cultivation, are observed.

17. The percentage of rental collections to demand in the province of Agra showed a further rise in 1906-07, being 89 as against 85, but in Oudh there was a slight retrogression from 97 to 95. The demand on which the percentage is calculated is however merely the current demand of the year. In Agra the actual collections were better by 42 lakhs on current account and by  $17\frac{1}{4}$  lakhs on arrear account; in Oudh current collections increased by  $5\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs but arrear collections were less by 13 lakhs. In Oudh, however, large collections of arrears had been made in the previous year and the arrear demand was probably not so large as before. The current demand in Oudh was rather less in 1906-07 than in 1905-06 and the increased collections on current account therefore represent a considerable improvement. In Agra the current demand was about 16 lakhs greater than in 1905-06, and the increased collections (42 lakhs) are similarly satisfactory. The improvement is common to all divisions, and is most marked in the Agra and Allahabad divisions which had shown poor results, owing to scarcity, in the previous year.

18. In the last report it was noticed that the average rate of cash rent continued to expand, and that there had been a substantial rise in preceding years. There was a further addition to the cash-rented area and to the rental demand upon it both in Agra and in Oudh in 1906-07. The amount of addition to the demand was about 16 lakhs in Agra and 8 lakhs in Oudh, and the average cash rent per acre further increased in both provinces by more than 0.6 per cent.

CHAPTER II.—FINANCIAL.

19. The total demand on account of all the sources of income dealt with in this report was Rs. 8,38,85,729, or, with various adjustments, Rs. 8,36,04,277. Considerable increases occurred under the head of land revenue, current and arrear demand, and agricultural loans, principal and interest. There was, however, a large decrease under owners' and occupiers' rate amounting to about  $1\frac{1}{4}$  lakh under the former and 13 lakhs under the latter. Patwari rate disappeared entirely from the accounts. The collections under all heads amounted to Rs. 8,32,01,313, and remissions to Rs. 53,730. The balance in arrear was thus Rs. 3,49,234, of which over  $2\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs was due on account of agricultural loans, principal and interest. Arrears under other heads were relatively and absolutely small.

20. The land revenue accounts are shown in statements I, II and III, but it is convenient to deal with all the statements together. The arrears for recovery in 1906-07 were Rs. 2,70,218, made up of Rs. 2,64,149 in statement II and Rs. 6,069 in statement III. Rather more than half the arrears in statement II consisted of revenue suspended in the Muttra, Agra and Unao districts. The remainder was made up of ordinary arrears, the most important items of which were outstanding in the Jalaun, Aligarh and Muttra districts. The fixed land revenue demand of the year (revenue on the roll) was Rs. 6,43,75,942, so that the total for collection at the beginning of the year was Rs. 6,46,46,160. The demands added during the year were Rs. 25,446 (revenue not on the roll), being mainly due to petty summary settlements ; but on the other hand there were considerable reductions (shown as nominal balances in all three appendices) amounting to Rs. 1,96,486. The greater part of these are due to reductions of revenue in Cawnpore, Bundelkhand and Naini Tal, to diluvion, to the acquisition of land for public purposes, and to assignments of revenue for loyal services. In addition there were items aggregating Rs. 47,456 shown in the statements as irrecoverable. Almost the whole of this sum is accounted for by remissions of revenue on account of floods, hailstorms and local drought. The nett demand of the year, allowing for all additions and reductions, was thus Rs. 6,44,27,664.

21. The real arrears at the end of September 1907 amounted to the insignificant sum of Rs. 34,474, and of this again Rs. 16,140 was postponed or formally suspended. The principal item (Rs. 15,637) not suspended, which should ordinarily have been collected within the year, was outstanding in the Aligarh district. It is an old arrear due from an attached estate, and was expected to be cleared in November last. The year is thus remarkable for the very large number of districts in which the current demand was practically cleared in full.

22. The nett increase in the land revenue brought on the roll in 1906-07 § 22.—Alterations in revenue on was Rs. 68,687. By regular settlement increases, the roll. Statement XVIII. mainly progressive, occurred in several districts, and the total addition thus made was Rs. 1,26,136. There were substantial decreases by regular settlement in Cawnpore and Banda and small decreases in Hamirpur and Naini Tal. All these amounted to Rs. 56,444. The additions and reductions due to other causes, mainly summary settlements of alluvial mahals and the acquisition of land for public purposes, resulted in a small decrease of Rs. 1,005.

Statement IV.

23. The real demand for malikana was collected in full. The arrears shown in statement IV are nominal.

24. There was a falling off in the area irrigated in 1906-07, but the decrease § 24.—Irrigation and canal rates. is not so great as might have been expected in a year of comparatively heavy rainfall. The explanation is, Statements V and VI. doubtless, that the winter rains came so late that irrigation of the rabi crops had to be generally resorted to, wherever possible. The total area irrigated was over 10,617,000 acres—about 30 per cent. of the nett cropped area. In the rabi nearly 44 per cent. of the whole cropped area was irrigated. Tanks, jhils and streams provided water for about 2,624,000 acres, Nearly 900,000 non-masonry wells were in use, while 19,347 new masonry wells were constructed, bringing the total available to over 561,000. The number of masonry wells actually used was over 457,000 ; and the total area irrigated from wells of all kinds was 5,938,000 acres, or 267,000 acres less than in 1905-06. The area irrigated from canals also declined to 2,055,000 acres, or 437,000 acres less than in the previous year. The demand for occupiers' and owners' rate naturally fell off with the area. For occupiers' rate it was a little over 84 lakhs as against 98½ lakhs in 1905-06. For owners' rate the demand fell from over 3 lakhs to under 2 lakhs. Apart from decreases due to the season, the revision of settlement in Cawnpore caused the abolition of owners' rate in many mahals. Collections were altogether very satisfactory, the total demand of over 86 lakhs for occupiers' rate (including nearly 2 lakhs of arrears) being realised, with the exception of a small amount of Rs. 17,111. Remissions were, however, granted to the extent of Rs. 56,960. The whole demand for owners' rate was collected with trifling exceptions in two districts. Fifteen out of the 22 districts in which the demand arose show an absolutely clear sheet, and arrears were important only in Saharanpur, Muttra and Fatehpur. In Saharanpur there was no adequate cause. In Muttra and Fatehpur part of the demands appear to have been communicated by the canal officers late in the season, while the absence of mahalwar jamabandis in Fatehpur caused difficulties which should not recur. In Muttra some of the defaulters were poor and could not pay during the year. The district reports contain no complaints of a short supply of water for the kharif of 1906 and the rabi of 1907, but the sowing of the kharif of 1907 was in places retarded by the canals running low. No difficulty seems to have been experienced in obtaining remissions in cases of hardship, but measures have been taken to secure greater co-operation between the Irrigation Department and Collectors. The question of again lowering the irrigation rates for sugarcane, which had been raised, was taken up during the year and the former rates have been restored since its close.

25. In a year when the collection of land revenue was full, the accounts of rates and cesses, to which the first collections are credited, are naturally satisfactory. The total demand for the 10 per cent. local rate in the temporarily-settled districts in the province of Agra was over 43½ lakhs and the collections were only Rs. 634 short of the demand. The consolidated local rate, the rural police rate and the village watch cess in Oudh were collected absolutely in full (omitting nominal and irrecoverable items) the total demand being over 19 lakhs. The rates and cesses levied in the permanently-settled districts are shown in statement VIII. Collections were good in these districts also, Azamgarh showing a clear sheet and all other districts, save Mirzapur, only petty balances. The Mirzapur balance is, however, swollen by a nominal item and the real balance is only Rs. 85. Patwari rate has entirely disappeared from the accounts and the petty school and dāk cess levied in Mirzapur has been abolished with effect from the current year.

26. In 1905-6 advances were made on a large scale, principally as a result of distress in the Agra division and in the Bundelkhand districts of the Allahabad division, and of the floods and drought in Gorakhpur at the close of the year. In 1906-7, with seasons not on the whole unfavourable, the demand for State loans naturally declined. Under the Land Improvement Loans Act (XIX of 1883) rather less than 2¼ lakhs were advanced and under the Agriculturists' Loans Act (XII of 1884) rather more than 13 lakhs. Substantial sums were required to further assist the recovery of the distressed areas, the Bundelkhand districts receiving over 7½ lakhs and the Gorakhpur district nearly 1½. In Bareilly, a considerable sum of nearly Rs. 74,000 was advanced towards the close of the year for seed and bullocks; in Ballia nearly Rs. 67,000 were advanced for like purposes; but in no other district was any exceptional sum required. The demand for advances under the Land Improvement Loans Act received a stimulus in the Benares division owing to the initiative of the former Commissioner, Mr. Baillie, and over Rs. 97,000 were distributed to assist the construction of masonry wells. In Lucknow Mr. Butler's efforts resulted in the grant of nearly Rs. 21,000 for the same object, and an exceptional sum of nearly Rs. 32,000 was advanced in Aligarh, of which Rs. 27,500 was for masonry wells. Few of the district reports describe the improvements for which advances were given and the Board will issue instructions to secure that the number of wells and other improvements shall be mentioned in future. During the present year the construction of masonry wells is receiving special attention throughout the provinces and advances on an unprecedented scale are being made. The way has been prepared to a large extent by a well-survey conducted by the Agricultural Department. The benefits of that survey are already appreciated in many districts.

27. The total of outstanding advances under Act XIX of 1883 at the beginning of 1906-7 was about 7½ lakhs and, with the fresh advances made, the total demand became nearly 10 lakhs. Of this, however, rather less than 3¼ lakhs was due for recovery during the year, and very nearly 3 lakhs were actually collected. The balances are not important except in Agra, Muttra, Etawah and Fatehpur. In the three former districts an indifferent rabi following the previous bad seasons made it almost impossible to press collections. In Fatehpur there was no adequate reason for the accumulation of arrears. As for interest it seems probable that some districts continue to include in the statement of demand items which had not become due at the end of the year. In the Farrukhabad district, for instance, although there was an arrear of principal of only Rs. 42 under Act XIX, the arrears of interest are shown at Rs. 1,616; in Mainpuri and Bareilly, with no arrear of principal, balances are shown under interest. The attention of Collectors will be again drawn to this matter. The total demand for interest, as returned, was Rs. 67,181 and the collections only Rs. 54,827. With the exception of Farrukhabad, the only districts showing important arrears are those in which the collections of principal also were short.

28. The outstanding loans under Act XII of 1884 amounted at the beginning of 1906-07 to 23½ lakhs. The addition of over 13 lakhs advanced during the year brought the total to over 36½ lakhs, but of this about 22¼ lakhs only were due for recovery. Of this large amount no less than 20¼ lakhs were recovered; the collection of about 1 lakh was formally suspended, and one lakh was merely not recovered. The heaviest unsuspended balances accrued in Muttra, Etawah, Fatehpur, Hamirpur and Ballia and considerable amounts were suspended in Muttra and Hamirpur and Gorakhpur. The same causes operated to prevent full collections of advances in Muttra, Etawah and Fatehpur as in the case of loans under Act XIX. In Hamirpur the unsuspended arrear, though apparently large, is relatively small, being little more than Rs. 20,000 out of a total for collection of nearly  $5\frac{1}{4}$  lakhs. The failure to make full collections was marked in one tahsil only, and in that tahsil the demand was greater than in any other, whilst nowhere else had the resources of the people been so severely taxed by the famine and previous bad seasons. In Ballia an indifferent rabi in the flooded villages on the Gogra is assigned as the principal cause of the arrears, and in Gorakhpur the tracts which received most advances failed to secure a good crop. On the whole, however, the collections of advances under Act XII were remarkably good, and in Bundelkhand even phenomenal. In Jalaun and Hamirpur sumsequalent to considerably more than half the land revenue demand for the whole year were collected, and the results in Jhansi and Banda, where the demand was less, were equally satisfactory. The disquieting feature of statement XVI is the large total amount of loans outstanding in some districts, such as Muttra, Agra, and the Bundelkhand districts, which are suffering from famine at the present time. It is impossible to hope that substantial remissions may not be required in these districts, although the Board are of opinion that remissions of takavi should not be sanctioned without the strongest cause shown. They concur in the opinion of the Commissioner of Allahabad, agreeing with his Collectors, that the mere failure of a loan to secure the object for which it is granted is not in itself sufficient reason for remission.

29. During the year the rules for the grant of takavi were completely revised and re-issued. The changes made have been principally in the direction of simplification of procedure in dealing with applications; further facilities for distribution have been provided; the requirements as to security have been made more elastic, and, in particular, the principle has been recognised that joint personal security may be accepted; and a system of equated payments for long-term loans has been introduced. The new rules have been welcomed as being generally a great improvement on the old, but it is possible that the system of accounts may permit of further simplification, which is particularly desirable when large sums are being disbursed in a short time. Joint personal security was accepted experimentally in some districts in 1906-07 and is noted as having been particularly successful in Hamirpur. In the next report it will be possible, after a full year's working, to estimate more fully the advantages and defects of the new rules.

§ 29.—Takavi rules.

30. The subject of advances under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act has not been dealt with in former reports, but the Board think it will be convenient to notice it in this and future reports. After the settlement of debts by the Special Judges and the sale of the debtors' available property, other than proprietary rights in land, the debtors' proprietary rights were valued with a view to the liquidation of the balance of the debts. If the estimated value of the proprietary rights was sufficient, under the conditions prescribed by the Act, either a loan was granted direct to the proprietor under section 21(a), to be repaid within a term not exceeding 15 years, or the debts were liquidated by the Collector, who assumed direct management of the property under section 21(c) as if the settlement had been annulled for an arrear of revenue. In the latter case the income, after the Government revenue is paid, is devoted to repayment of the advance with interest. From the commencement of liquidation proceedings up to 30th September 1907, by which time they were almost completed, a total sum of Rs. 25,97,171 was advanced in these ways, and recoveries had been made on account of interest to the amount of Rs. 1,34,351, and of principal to the amount of Rs. 1,73,877. The balance of principal outstanding on 1st October 1907 was thus Rs. 24,23,294. The greater part of the recoveries have been made from proprietors who were granted loans direct under section 21(a). Some postponements were necessary in 1905-06 on account of scarcity and it is probable that more will be required in the current year. The question of the ultimate recovery of postponed instalments was recently referred to Government, and orders have been passed, adopting the principles governing the recovery of suspended instalments of takavi advances.

§ 30.—Advances under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act.

31. The total number of State properties rose from 526 in the previous year to 667 in the year of report, of which 24 were disposed of before its close. The bulk of the properties acquired were bought in under section 24 (2) and (3) of the Bundelkhand

§ 31.—State properties.
Statement XII.

Encumbered Estates Act and consisted of fractional shares in mahals. The total demand of the year showed little change, rising only from Rs. 3,36,443 to Rs. 3,39,258. Apart from the increases due to acquisition in the Bundelkhand districts there were increases in Kheri, owing to better sayar receipts and to progressive rental demands, and in Gonda owing to more land being taken over for cultivation by Barwars. In the Allahabad estates there was a considerable decline, due mainly to the writing-off of irrecoverable costs of suits and lessened demand under certain miscellaneous heads. In Ballia and Rae Bareilly diluvion and alienation of land accounted for the smaller decreases.

Of the total actual demand Rs. 3,39,258 (inclusive of Rs. 10,951 arrears), Rs. 3,25,624 or 96 per cent. were realised leaving a balance of Rs. 13,634 of which all but Rs. 2,574 are considered recoverable. Most districts reported a fair season with high prices for produce, and collections were generally good. Balances were large only in Agra, where the crops were attacked by insects, and Banda, where the lessees were backward in paying their rent. In a number of districts the demand was collected in full. After payment of land revenue and rates, the net income was Rs. 1,95,768 of which Rs. 54,023 was spent on establishment, contingencies and improvements, leaving a balance to Government of Rs. 1,41,745. Expenditure on contingencies rose, mainly owing to the measures taken for providing land and cattle for the Barwars in Gonda. The bulk of the properties are too small to admit of much being undertaken in improvements, but in the Allahabad estates a sum of Rs. 10,479 was spent, principally on well construction.

32. The total demand recoverable within the year on account of the price
 § 32.—Sale of waste lands, &c. of confiscated, escheated and waste lands was Rs. 283, Statement XIV. of which all but Rs. 40 were collected.

33. Miscellaneous demands amounted to Rs. 1,56,317 as compared with § 33.—Miscellaneous Land revenue. Rs. 1,52,795 in the year 1905-06. The rise is Statement XIII. chiefly due to an increased demand for stone from the Mirzapur stone quarries. The whole demand was collected, with unimportant exceptions.

34. The figures of coercive processes show what appears to be a very

 Statement XVII. citations to appear, warrants of arrest and attachments of moveable property. For most districts, however, the returns include processes which have not been shown in previous years. This is particularly the case in respect of writs of demand issued for the recovery of fees and fines in mutation cases when the person in whose favour mutation has been ordered is not present in court when the order for the levy of the fee or fine is passed. By rule such writs are served free of charge, and being free, they have hitherto been generally omitted from the annual statements. Their inclusion results in raising the recorded number of writs to a figure more than double any figure reported in recent years. The whole number of processes issued in mutation cases was only slightly less than 50,000, and rather more than 58 per cent. of the whole number of processes issued for the recovery of all demands. The number of writs was more than six times the number of those issued for the recovery of land revenue and cesses and canal dues. The total amount of fees and fines for the recovery of which processes were issued was, however, only one lakh of rupees, approximately (about half the total demand under this head), and the amount of trouble involved in its collection is out of all proportion. For the collection of the actual land revenue and cesses, there is a uniform tendency to a more free use of citations to appear in preference to writs of demand. Thus for this purpose only 5,918 writs were issued as compared with 18,955 citations. Nearly all district officers and tahsildars testify to the superior efficacy of citations, which, through the sanction afforded by a possible prosecution for disobedience, compel defaulters either to attend at the tahsil to explain their position or intentions, or to pay off the arrear. Generally speaking, the demand for land revenue and cesses, which has in former paragraphs been shown to have been collected almost in full, was realised with considerably less resort to coercive processes than usual, very few of the more severe processes being used at all. There are few notable exceptions and even these are explained, not by increase in the difficulty of collection, but by the substitution of regular for irregular methods. Thus, in Basti, the number of processes shows an increase, but Mr. Morgan is not satisfied that the returns present a true picture of the actual methods used. He believes the employment of unauthorized chaprasis to have been stopped, or at least to have become dangerous to the tahsildar employing them, the result being an increase in the number of processes; but chaprasis proper are, he says, still used in irregular ways. In Fatehpur, where Mr. Rix has evidently made earnest efforts to purify the system of collection, there has been a very large rise in the number of citations issued, a check having been put upon the former system, which appears to have resembled that indicated as prevalent in Basti. From some other districts similar reasons are reported. Many district offices, however, admit, or confess to suspecting, that irregular methods are still used, and the Board do not share the complacency with which the matter is regarded by some Collectors and Commissioners; nor do they accept the opinion expressed by the Commissioner of the Allahabad division that writs of demand and citations are valueless. The general experience is that citations at least are a very useful process. From Unao it is reported that a watch is kept for defaulters who may happen to visit the Civil Court or the registration office at the tahsil head-quarters. When found they are brought informally before the tahsildar. Neither the Deputy Commissioner nor the Commissioner appears to realise the opening afforded to a dishonest peon deputed on this errand. In Sitapur it is admittedly the practice for peons to be deputed from a tahsil A to "assist" the tahsildar of tahsil B in recovering revenue payable in tahsil A. This method is possibly in vogue elsewhere. It is not easy to understand why the tahsildar of tahsil B requires assistance if he uses strictly regular processes. The question of the methods of collection attracted the attention of Government last year, and a separate report has been called for. Most Commissioners, however, have asked leave to defer their reports until they have completed their tours in the present season, and the matter will be more fully discussed later. I am to say now that the Board do not contemplate uniformity, as seems to be supposed by some officers, but they do desire to repress irregular processes which may and do result in hardship and harassment. To effect this the attention of district officers and Commissioners must continue to be devoted to this matter and legal processes must be used in a rational manner. The Board see no reason to suppose that revenue cannot be collected if only legal methods are used, and if Commissioners and Collectors would set their faces against the use of illegal methods, nothing but good would result.

35. The number of estates attached during the year was 290 as compared with 165 in the previous year. Inclusive of those remaining over from the previous year there were in all 368 estates under attachment of which 253 were released during the year, leaving 115 under management at the close. The increase in the number of estates under management was due mainly to action taken under section 45(2) of the Land Revenue Act. In Fatehpur 67 and in Bijnor 45 estates were attached owing to the failure of the co-sharers to nominate a lambardar and consequent difficulties in realising the revenue. Of the total demand of Rs. 1,34,799, Rs. 99,356 or 73·7 per cent. were realised, leaving a balance of Rs. 35,443 at the close of the year. A sum of Rs. 53,910 was credited to land revenue and cesses, and Rs. 7,733 was spent on management. The majority of the estates remained only a short time under attachment and realisations were consequently small. Considerable arrears accrued in the estate in the Aligarh district, already mentioned in paragraph 21, and the bulk of the expenses of management were incurred in the administration of this estate. No estates were taken under direct management after annulment of settlement during the year.

CHAPTER III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

36. The returns for 1906-07 throw little new light on the subject of the working of the Agra Tenancy Act. Certain amendments of the Act which were referred to in paragraph 35 of the last report have been subjected to further examination, but no definite action was taken during the year. The total volume of new litigation under the Act increased from 291,616 suits and applications to 324,662, involving a further serious addition to the work of the courts. The most notable increases occurred in the institutions of suits for arrears of rent and of suits for ejectment. The former increase affects mainly the courts of tahsildars.

§ 36.—General remarks on litigation in the province of Agra.
Statements XIX A and XX A.

and the latter the courts of Assistant Collectors at head-quarters. The variations under other heads were not of great importance and will be noticed later in their proper place.

37. The number of suits for arrears of rent instituted during 1906-07 reached the high figure of 142,772 in the province of Agra (excluding Kumaun)—a record number, though less than two per cent. in excess of the previous year's figures, which were themselves high. The increases occurred in the four western divisions, though in Allahabad the increase was not large, while there were slight decreases in the eastern divisions. In Oudh also there was a small increase of 2·8 per cent., but the total figures in that province were exceeded in each of the three years succeeding the famine of 1896-97.

The increases and decreases are not, however, uniform in any division; but in every division, with one exception, the total number of suits both in 1906-07 and the preceding year shows a substantial increase when compared with the figures of 1904-05. Taking the two years 1905-06 and 1906-07 together the figures of rent suits indicate a vigorous endeavour to recover the arrears which had accumulated in previous bad seasons. The frost damaged the rabi of 1905, particularly in the western divisions, while two indifferent harvests followed, and the comparative prosperity of 1906-07 coupled with high prices was undoubtedly the cause of activity in the attempt to reduce the outstandings. In some districts the effort began before the close of 1905-06 when the prospects of the kharif were assured: in others action was less prompt and the larger number of additional suits were filed in 1906-07. Thus in Agra, Muttra and Etawah, which suffered severely in 1906, there was a substantial and progressive increase in the two years; so also in Budaun and Moradabad; and in Bundelkhand the general increase of 1905-06 was more than maintained. Again, in several districts where there had been a large increase in 1905-06, the decrease on the figures of that year in 1906-07 still left the total number of suits higher than in 1904-05. In only three districts was there a progressive decrease in the two years. Some district officers mention certain minor causes which may have contributed to the increase. One is a ruling of the High Court to the effect that separate suits should be filed to recover arrears due on more than one holding. Another is the increasing tendency for each co-sharer to collect his own share of the rent. A factor which operated in the other direction, or at least tended to keep the increase in suits lower than it might have been, was the grant of remissions in the areas which had been most severely affected in 1906.

38. There have been no very remarkable variations in the figures of applications under section 59 of the Agra Tenancy Act. The number rose substantially with the very high figures of suits for arrears of rent in 1905-06 and shows only a small decrease of 273 in 1906-07, or less than 1 per cent. The correspondence between suits and these applications has thus been generally maintained. The percentage of cases in which ejectment was ordered was under 20, or slightly less than in the previous year. The area from which ejectment took place was also less, being 37,381 acres as against 38,906 acres. The Board believe that the threat of ejectment is one of the most powerful inducements to a tenant to pay up arrears decreed against him. The procedure appears to be adopted in about one-third of the successful suits for arrears, and its efficacy is shown by the fact that about four-fifths of the applications do not result in ejectment, being dismissed on settlement of the decree.

39. The total number of suits connected with distraint showed a small further decline of 70 cases. These suits are not numerous in most districts. They are frequently used to obtain a ruling as between co-sharers, or as between co-sharer and lessees, or as between tenant and sub-tenant, to decide a question of title to collect rent or the status of a party.

40. The general rise in suits for arrears of revenue and profits continued, but nowhere are such suits very numerous except in the Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions. The Meerut district maintains its pre-eminence, but with a total reduced to 835 from 952 in the previous year.

41. The cases of resumption of rent-free tenures show a slight increase, common to all divisions except Meerut. The total figures of no district are very remarkable, exceeding 100 in Fatehpur, Benares and Jaunpur only and exceeding 50 in only three other districts.

§ 41.—Resumptions.
Statement XIX-A.

42. Suits for enhancement of rent can only be filed, under the law, between 30th June and 1st October, and the number of institutions is consequently to a great extent influenced by the character of the monsoon and the prospects of the harvests. The monsoon of 1907 was extremely unfavourable; the khari failed extensively in many districts and the prospects of the rabi sowings were gloomy. These conditions are strongly reflected in a large decrease of no less than 1,751 in the number of enhancement suits filed in 1907. The total figure 6,230 is in fact lower than it has been in any year, save two, since the famine of 1897, and, but for an entirely abnormal number of cases in Dehra Dun (544), would have been less than in any year of the period. The exceptional years were 1901 and 1902, but in them both the figures were near 6,000. The decrease is marked in the Agra division, all districts except Mainpuri showing a decline. In Rohilkhand also all districts except Bijnor (which has a small increase) show substantial reductions. In the other divisions these suits are generally less common. In the Meerut division the Muzaffarnagar and Bulandshahr districts follow the general rule and the important exception is found in Dehra Dun. Elsewhere the Cawnpore and Mainpuri districts alone exhibit any important increases. In them, as in Dehra Dun, the cause is to be found in the recent settlements, for landowners are still occupied in adjusting their rents. In the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions the totals are generally not high and the variations are small. In the Ghazipur district, where there was a sharp rise in 1906, the relatively high figure was maintained in 1907 by the institution of no less than 165 suits by one zamindar.

§ 42.—Enhancements.*
Statement XIX-A.

43. The number of applications for the service of notices of surrender on landholders declined in the province of Agra as a whole by over 13 per cent. The decrease is most marked and most general in the Allahabad division. In 1905-06 there had been a general tendency to an increase, more especially in the western divisions: and it seems probable that the comparatively good seasons of 1906-07 have checked this tendency. Notable exceptions are found in the Bulandshahr and Budaun districts where there were great increases of 710 and 492, respectively. In Bulandshahr the cause assigned is the expiry of large numbers of seven-year leases. Mr. Pearson (Budaun) notes that the practice of giving private notice of intended suits for ejectment is extending, and that tenants who do not wish to contest such suits formally surrender. Mr. Walker suggests as a possible cause of the general decrease which has occurred since the Agra Tenancy Act passed into law that the latest date fixed by the Act for the giving of notice is March 31st, a month earlier than the date fixed by Act XII of 1881. The law being unaltered in other respects, and other explanations having failed, it seems to the Board that this suggestion has some force. It is probable, Mr. Walker observes, that a tenant will seldom contemplate a surrender until he has reaped his rabi crop, say the middle of March. He then sends his notice by registered post and by the time it is returned to him, refused by the landholder, it is too late to file an application for service through the tahsil. On the other hand, the corresponding date in Oudh is 15th March, and there is a striking decrease in Oudh also. The causes which are indicated in a later paragraph as having led to an increase in ejectments ought, however, on general grounds, to contribute to a decrease in surrenders also, and the fact that surrenders have decreased serves to strengthen the conclusion put forward with regard to ejectments.

44. The year 1906-07 shows a further large increase of no less than 10,701 in the number of ejectment suits, the total being 98,406. The increase is common to all divisions save Allahabad, where there was a small decrease. In the Meerut division the number, though higher than in any of the four preceding years, is not substantially higher than the average of the four years (1895-99) preceding the disturbance caused by the anticipation and passing of the new Tenancy Act. In the Agra division the figure has exceeded the high total of 1902-03 and is nearly 33 per cent. higher than the average of 1895-99. In Rohilkhand also the total is now higher than in any of the preceding four years, and no less than 139 per cent. higher than the average of 1895-99. In Allahabad though the number of suits in 1906-07 was slightly less than in some years since 1902, it is still nearly double the average of the period 1895-99. In Benares the number is not absolutely high, but still 20 per cent. higher than in 1895-99, and in Gorakhpur there has been an enormous increase with reference both to the figures of the years subsequent to 1902 and to the previous normal period, 1895-99. The figures of 1906-07 in this division are very nearly three times the average of the period before the passing of the Act. Taking the province of Agra as a whole the percentage of increase since 1895-99 is over 70 per cent.

§§ 44-46.—Ejectment on other grounds.
Statement XX-A

* NOTE.—When the last day of the revenue year is a holiday large numbers of enhancement and ejectment suits are filed on the first working day in October. The figures relating to such suits in this chapter have been adjusted so as to show all cases in the years to which they properly belong. They do not, therefore, correspond to the figures of actual institutions shown in Statements XIX-A and XX-A.

45. An examination of the divisional figures in greater detail shows that a considerable part of the increase in the Meerut division is due to suits to eject tenants holding under expired or expiring leases, and not merely from year to year. In the Agra division the increase is not general, four districts showing an actual decrease in suits against tenants-at-will. The Agra and Muttra districts (particularly Agra) show an increase in such suits, and in Etah there were a large number of suits (1,486) against tenants holding under leases. No adequate explanation of this unusual number of such suits is forthcoming. In Rohilkhand the Bareilly district alone shows any decrease; the most remarkable increases are observed in Budaun (10 per cent.) and in Moradabad (over 20 per cent.). Each of these districts had in 1905-06, with totals of 8,098 and 8,670, respectively, more than double the number of ejectment suits in any other single district except Bareilly, and of 1906-07 this would be again true were it not for an abnormal rise in the Gorakhpur district, which now runs Budaun close. In Moradabad there were in 1906-07 no less than 1,532 institutions more than in Budaun, the total being 10,451. The increase in Budaun is attributed by Mr. Pearson to an attempt on the part of the landholders to take advantage of the unfavourable seasons and to vague rumours as to a revision of the Act. The former explanation does not appear to the Board very cogent. The latter may be valid. Without giving figures, Mr. T. K. Johnston, officiating Collector of Moradabad, suggests that the increase is partly due in that district to the expiry of the first term of five years since the Act came into force, which may have led to suits by exproprietary and occupancy tenants to eject sub-tenants. This suggestion seems to assume that many exproprietary and occupancy tenants sub-let their holdings for five years immediately after the passing of the Act, an assumption which requires justification. In the Allahabad division the Fatehpur and Allahabad districts show substantial decreases, and Cawnpore a small increase. There was some increase in Bundelkhand of which there is no convincing explanation. In the Benares division there was a substantial increase in all districts, save Mirzapur. The explanation offered is that the determination to secure enhanced rents, one of the principal objects of ejectment, grows stronger. Specific instances are given by some officers of new purchasers, or proprietors of mahals newly formed by partition, filing large numbers of ejectment suits. In the Gorakhpur division the very large increase is most marked in the Gorakhpur and Basti districts, especially in Gorakhpur. For Gorakhpur it is suggested, as in Budaun, that the unfavourable seasons may have tempted landholders to take tenants at a disadvantage, and a rumour is reported that ejectments will not be allowed in future. In Basti the efforts which have recently been made to improve the condition of the land records are stated by Mr. Morgan to have forced landholders to resort to regular ejectment in the courts instead of relying upon the patwari to manipulate the records, and upon a complacent tenantry to make no complaint.

46. On the whole, therefore, the experience of 1906-07 affords little that is new to be said on the vexed subject of ejectments under the Agra Tenancy Act. It will be seen that an increase in ejectment suits is found in Oudh also, and that the percentage of increase since 1895-99 is even greater in that province than in the province of Agra. This fact tends to confirm the conclusion reached last year that the increase in Agra is not entirely due to the operation of the Agra Tenancy Act, but to other causes; and the principal cause is probably that indicated by Mr. Lovett, namely, the determination of the landholders, great and small, to secure as large a share as they can of the present high profits of agriculture, which are due to the undoubted rise of prices in the last few years. Conversely, it has been seen that there is a corresponding decrease in the number of surrenders by tenants. The motive for pressing for an enhancement is greatest when prices are high. There is nothing in the history of the year to suggest that the number of ejectment suits has reached the maximum and will fall in the near future. The Board hope, however, that the pressure of this enormous amount of litigation on the courts will be relieved by certain changes in procedure which are under consideration.

47. The character of the ejectments which were effected in 1905-06 as a result of the suits filed in the season of 1904-05 is exhibited in Statement XX-C, which is compiled by reference to the records of 1906-07. The number of institutions in 1904-05 was less by 7 per cent. than in the previous year, and the area from which tenants were ejected fell by nearly 30,000 acres or 18 per cent. The area formerly held by ejected tenants who ceased altogether to hold either as tenants or sub-tenants, fell by 12 per cent. The area in respect of which ejectment was ineffective was also reduced from 37,000 to 27,000 acres. As in the preceding year, however, ejected tenants held other lands, not the subject of ejectment, of an area nearly equal to that from which they were ejected. The district reports do not all show that any effective check was applied to the figures reported in the statement, and, indeed, such a check on a large scale is practically impossible. Taking the figures as they are, there is nothing to show that the conclusions already reached are wrong, and it seems improbable that further light will be thrown on the matter. The Board therefore propose, with the approval of Government, to discontinue the preparation of Statement XX-C. It is clear that the law has been ineffective to prevent or even check ejectments by means of the provisions requiring complete dispossession of a tenant for a year. The obstacle intended by the law is easily surmounted and the effect of these provisions is only to put the tenants in a worse position than they were before.

§ 47.—Character of ejectments.
Statement XX-C.

48. The total area held under long-term leases for terms of not less than seven years shows a further increase of over 62,000 acres and the total is now 626,246 acres. No district of which the figures are complete shows a decrease, save

§ 48.—Long-term leases.
Statement XXXIV-A.

Mirzapur, and, with very few exceptions, there is some increase everywhere. The decrease of about 850 acres in Mirzapur is not explained. The general progress, though slow, is satisfactory, but, as observed last year, wherever the area is large, it is due to special conditions and confined to large estates.

49. The Agra Tenancy Act having now been in operation for five complete years the Board think it will be instructive to examine the extent of the protection now enjoyed by tenants. I am therefore to append the following figures:—

In examining the above figures it must be borne in mind that the general tendency of the area held by occupancy tenants recorded as such is to contract, owing to the lapse of occupancy rights by death or by ejection for arrears of rent, and that expansion can only occur by a revision of records. The expansion in the twelve years dealt with in the above two tables of about half a million acres must therefore be attributed to regular revisions of records, at settlement or otherwise, the increase representing the excess of the areas newly and definitely classified as occupancy holdings at such revisions over the areas in which occupancy rights had lapsed. But while the occupancy holdings recorded as such have increased by half a million acres there has been no diminution in the area held by those tenants who practically have a right of occupancy, that is, tenants who have held for 12 years continuously. There is therefore an actual gain of the full area of half a million acres, and the most remarkable fact is that the increase has been steady, and comparatively rapid, since 1903, nearly 450,000 acres or 90 per cent., of the half million having been added in the last four years. If the partially protected area held under long-term leases be added it is found that the area in respect of which arbitrary ejection and enhancement is impossible exceeds  $13\frac{1}{2}$  million acres, being 66 per cent., or almost two-thirds of the total area ( $20\frac{1}{2}$  million acres) held by tenants other than permanent-tenure holders and fixed-rate and exproprietary tenants. And not only is the protected area a large portion of the whole, but it is actually a greater percentage of the whole than in any year of the twelve shown in the tables. In the first table, showing the period prior to the passing of the Tenancy Act, and in the second table up to 1903, the protected area is shown to be steady at about  $63\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the whole. Since 1903 there has been a progressive rise in the percentage to 66, and this with a steadily rising total area which is now greater than in any year of the twelve. Without asserting that this satisfactory increase is entirely due to the operation of the Tenancy Act, the Board think that the fact may be provisionally placed to its credit as a partial set-off to the increase in litigation generally attributed to it. Another matter which may perhaps have been overlooked in the past is the relative insignificance of the area from which ejection actually occurs. The maximum area from which ejection took place (omitting holdings of sub-tenants) in any year for which Statement XX-C has been compiled is 148,541 acres, little more than 2 per cent. of the unprotected area of about 7 million acres; and in a fairly large percentage (at least 20 per cent.) of the area from which ejection was carried into execution the ejection was ineffective. There is thus a great mass of litigation without any widespread disturbance in the unprotected area. This fact encourages the Board to confine its recommendations for the present to matters of procedure, with the object of facilitating the disposal of the great mass of litigation, which must apparently arise annually so long as the interests of landlord and tenant continue to be opposed.

50. By far the greater part of the litigation in Oudh consists of suits for arrears of rent and various proceedings connected with ejection. The number of notices of relinquishment served through the tahsils is not large, but the statistics in regard to them are interesting. It has already been remarked that there was an increase in the number of suits for arrears of rent as compared with 1905-06. The increase is not common to all districts ; in fact, six districts show a decrease, but, with the single exception of Gonda, the figures of 1906-07 are still higher than those of 1904-05. In Gonda it is stated that the comparatively low number of suits is due to the death of the Maharaja of Ajodhya, which naturally interrupted the regular course of management in his large estates. It may be said therefore that rent suits have followed in the two years 1905-06 and 1906-07 the same course as in the province of Agra. The total number of institutions is not, however, so high as it was in several years up to 1900, though higher than in any year since. The reasons assigned for the increase in Agra appear to hold good for Oudh also.

51. Applications for ejectment under section 61 of the Oudh Rent Act have followed the institutions of suits for arrears of rent with the same regularity as in the province of Agra. In previous years, when the number of suits for arrears increased, so also did the number of applications under section 61 and vice versa. In 1906-07, however, although there was in both provinces a small rise in the number of suits for arrears, there was a slight fall in the number of applications for ejectment in pursuance of the decree. This may be due to an improvement in voluntary payments indicated by the satisfactory collections of rents noticed in paragraph 17.

52. Ejectments on other grounds are dealt with by the courts in Oudh in the following ways. The commonest case is that of an ordinary tenant whose statutory term or whose term under a lease for eight years or more, is about to expire or has expired. The landlord serves upon him a notice under section 55 of the Rent Act, and usually invokes the assistance of the tahsil staff in doing so. Notices may also be served on thekadars under this section. Liability to ejectment may be contested by suit under section 56. If the notice is uncontested or the tenant's suit has failed the landlord usually applies under section 60 (1) for assistance to eject. Suits may also be filed by a landlord for the ejectment of tenants on other grounds specified in section 62 or for breach of the terms of a lease. The number of applications filed to serve notices on statutory tenants and their heirs was 18,545 : on tenants holding under long leases 491 ; and on other persons (principally thekadars) 8,607. In considering the figures for the province of Agra all suits of all descriptions were taken into account, as the percentage of suits other than those for the ejectment of non-occupancy tenants is insignificant. To compare those of Oudh it is necessary to eliminate the figures of ejectments of thekadars and suits for ejectment on the ground of breaches of the conditions of a lease which form a large proportion of the whole. Taking only the notices served on statutory tenants and their heirs and tenants holding on long leases the figures were between 8,000 and 9,000 in each year from 1897-1900. The next year showed a sharp rise to over 14,000, and the next a further rise to 17,500, corresponding generally to the entirely abnormal figures in Agra. For the next three years the applications varied between 13,000 and 15,000. In 1905-06 they exceeded 16,000, and in 1906-07 they reached a record figure of over 19,000. There can be little doubt therefore that causes other than legislation have been at work. The probable cause has been indicated in the notice of the Agra figures ; and Mr. Saunders actually assigns for the Lucknow division the reasons put forward by Mr. Lovett from Benares.

53. The number of notices of surrender or relinquishment served through the tahsil offices continues to be low though not materially lower than the average of the period since 1899. The figures already noticed for Agra correspond remarkably with those for Oudh, and the same causes probably operate in both provinces. In Oudh there has been no change of date which may possibly have contributed, in Agra, to the notable decrease.

54. The collection of under-proprietary rents under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act by official agency forms a considerable addition to the labours of the revenue establishment in some districts of Oudh, notably in Fyzabad, Sultanpur, Bara Banki, Gonda, Partabgarh and Hardoi. The total number of applications filed during the year was rather larger than in the preceding year, but the amount for recovery was rather less. So also was the total amount for recovery (Rs. 3,20,835) including that of cases pending from the previous year. The total sum recovered was Rs. 2,81,372, and at the end of the year 233 cases were pending, involving the recovery of Rs. 39,061. The balance was slightly higher than at the beginning of the year. In the districts where the balance is greatest the majority of the pending applications were filed late in the season, but in Sultanpur delay was caused by the attachment of 61 mahals. Mr. Pike has succeeded in reducing the number of applications in Partabgarh, and the file of pending cases, by insisting on some effort being made towards collection by the superior proprietors themselves, and by demanding a detailed account of the collections and the arrears due by each co-sharer.

55. In the Kumaun division the volume of litigation was as usual very small, there being in the three districts only 596 cases for disposal of no specially remarkable character. No cases had been pending for over three months at the close of the year.

§ 55.—Litigation in the Kumaun division.
Statements XIX-C and XIX-D.

56. The year 1906-07 opened with a large pending file of 85,446 suits and applications under the rent law in the province of Agra (excluding Kumaun) and 1,925 in Oudh. The total addition to the work for disposal was 291,843 cases in Agra and 58,504 in Oudh, in both provinces a larger number than in the preceding year; but while in Oudh the pending file at the close of the year was reduced to 1,216, the decrease being common to all but three districts, it rose in Agra to 102,329. In Oudh the Fyzabad division is accountable for 72 per cent. of the arrears, and for 918 cases pending over three months as against 18 in the Lucknow division. In the Fyzabad division again half the arrears are found in suits for arrears of rent, presumably in the courts of tahsildars for the most part. The Partabgarh district shows the heaviest pending file (214 cases), but Gonda with 208 cases, of which no less than 89 were pending over three months, is the most prominent. Even these arrears, however, are not very heavy. The greater part of the heavy pending file in the province of Agra consists of ejectment and enhancement suits which are filed in the last quarter of the year. No less than 90,273 of the pending cases were of these two classes. The file of other cases shows a slight reduction from 12,775 to 12,056. All districts of the Gorakhpur division and all save Saharanpur in the Meerut division show an improvement; in the Benares division also there is a general reduction. In the Agra, Rohilkhand and Allahabad divisions, on the other hand, there is a general tendency to increase. There was a satisfactory reduction in Bijnor and Etah in these divisions. The most important increases occurred in Budaun, Moradabad and Jaunpur, where the year opened with a heavy balance. Jaunpur had the large number of 1,180 cases pending, Budaun 1,025 and Moradabad 668: a few other districts had over 500 cases pending. Dehra Dun, Pilibhit, Jhansi, Jalaun, Hamirpur and Ballia, on the other hand, had a pending file of less than 100 cases. Of the total of 12,056 pending cases no less than 7,430 were suits for arrears of rent and 2,518 suits for arrears of revenue and profits, the bulk of which were presumably pending in tahsildars' courts. The state of the files in the courts of Assistant Collectors at head-quarters is reflected in the numbers of cases pending over three months in enhancement and ejectment suits. Bareilly shows a balance of 52 under these heads; Budaun had 91, and Gorakhpur, 31. These cases represent suits filed a year or more before, as they were probably instituted in the quarter ending 30th September 1906. The figures of Budaun, however, compare very favourably with those of the previous year, in which no less than 2,055 ejectment cases were pending for over a year.

§ 56.—Work in courts of original jurisdiction
Statements XIX-D, XXA and XX-B.

57. With the growth of suits for arrears of rent, the great majority of which are dealt with by tahsildars, there has necessarily been a steady rise in the number of appeals to Collectors. The number filed in 1906-07 was in Agra 4,678, and in Oudh 1,203. The latter figure has never been exceeded and the former only once, in 1903-04. The highest number of institutions in 1906-07 is found in the Meerut district, where the total for disposal was 533 appeals. The Collector disposed of all but 12 of these during the year. The large increase follows the great increase in the number of suits for arrears of rent. Elsewhere the institutions exceeded 200 only in the Etah, Budaun, Moradabad, Ghazipur, Ballia, Gorakhpur and Azamgarh districts. In most of these districts appeals were filed in about one-seventh of the appealable cases, but in Ghazipur and Ballia the proportion is much higher, being greater than one-fourth. The only noticeable number of appeals pending at the close of the year is that of Azamgarh, where 85 remained undisposed of. Of these 38 had been pending for more than three months. These figures show a marked improvement on the preceding year, but the Collector, Mr. Crawford, who was also Settlement Officer, was unable to devote sufficient time to his file of appeals. The arrears of settlement appeals, however, have now been reduced, and it is expected that the file of rent law appeals will be reduced to a normal figure during the current year. The percentage of unsuccessful appeals to the total number of appeals decided was nearly 64 for the provinces as a whole.

§§ 57-60.—Rent law appeals.

58. The number of appeals to District Judges, arising mainly out of the suits for arrears of rent and profits decided by Assistant Collectors of the 1st class, rose from 1,907 to 2,064 and the total number for disposal rose from 2,577 to 2,872. Appeals were lodged in about 22 per cent. of the appealable cases and in over 57 per cent. of the decided appeals was the original decree entirely confirmed. The pending file was reduced to 730 appeals, of which 246 had been pending more than three months at the close of the year.

59. The number of appeals to Commissioners under the Agra Tenancy Act generally follows the number of ejectment suits filed in the preceding year: and the same feature is observable with reference to appeals under the Oudh Rent Act. The number of ejectment suits in Agra and applications in Oudh having risen in 1905-06, there was a rise in the appellate work of Commissioners from 4,472 to 5,387 cases in Agra and from 1,244 to 1,517 cases in Oudh. In both provinces the percentage of appeals to appealable decisions was between 17 and 18. As usual the heaviest burden of work fell to the Commissioners of the Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand divisions in the Province of Agra, and to the Commissioner of the Fyzabad division in Oudh. Only in the Rohilkhand and Agra divisions and in Oudh is it, apparently, the practice to deal with a certain number of appeals, under section 551 of the Civil Procedure Code, without sending for the record. The Board agree with Mr. Tweedy in the opinion that this section might be more generally used, to the advantage of appellants in the matter of costs and of respondents in money and trouble. The attention of Commissioners has been drawn to the subject. The heavy arrears in the Agra division were cleared off in consequence, apparently, of more methodical work under Mr. Cobb's superintendence. There is a substantial pending file in Meerut, owing partly to the fact that the Commissioner was on leave during the year, the Collector being in current charge of the office only, without power to hear appeals. The arrears in the Rohilkhand division are more serious, reaching the high figure of 488, and of these no less than 62 had been pending for more than three months. No doubt the appellate work in this division is heavy, there being on the file no less than 2,126 appeals under the Tenancy and Land Revenue Acts. The Commissioner disposed of the large number of 1,566 appeals in all, but in the Agra division a considerably larger number (1,826) were decided. The arrears (114) in the Gorakhpur division and in the Lucknow division (95) are also somewhat heavy, the total number of appeals for decision having been only 680 and 604, respectively. In the Fyzabad division no less than 237 appeals remained undisposed of (47 for more than three months) out of a total file of 978. The Commissioner was absent on leave during September and no officer was acting for him. In the provinces generally nearly 69 per cent. of the appeals decided were entirely unsuccessful, the best results being apparent in the Meerut and Allahabad divisions, and in Oudh, with percentages varying from 71 to 76. The worst results appear in the Agra, Benares and Gorakhpur divisions with percentages of 64 to 65 per cent. Some Commissioners commend the work of the Assistant Collectors and express the opinion that their judicial work is generally satisfactory, the exceptions being attributable, for the most part, to the excessive pressure under which many of the cases are decided. The Board are disposed to endorse these views. They recognise that the burden of case-work in many districts is crushing and consider that the state of the pending files, the low percentage of appeals filed, and the percentage of unsuccessful appeals, is satisfactory and creditable to all the district officials concerned. The results have been achieved at the cost of the health of many officers who, in some districts, had to deal with a great mass of criminal as well as of revenue case-work. The only remedy, a further increase of the staff in some districts, cannot be dealt with at length in this report.

60. Before the Board there were 742 appeals under the Agra Tenancy Act and 435 under the Oudh Rent Act. Of these 991 were disposed of, the orders of the lower courts being disturbed in less than 15 per cent. of the cases. There were 847 cases of revision under the Agra Tenancy Act and 2 under the North-Western Provinces Rent Act. The latter were disposed of, with 724 of the Tenancy Act applications. The orders of the lower court were disturbed in about 12 per cent. of the cases. There is no provision in the Oudh Rent Act for revision by the Board. Five cases were disposed of under the Kumaun rules. The pending file of appeals and applications under the rent law was reduced from 477 to 404. The total number of judicial appeals and applications arising from the whole of the provinces under the rent and revenue laws, the Kumaun rules, and from the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares was 3,049. Of these 2,512 were disposed of, the pending file at the close of the year being reduced to 537 as compared with 833 at the beginning.

CHAPTER IV.—SETTLEMENT.

61. The revision of settlements is approaching completion, being now confined to six districts in the province of Agra. For Dehra Dun and Jhansi the final reports were submitted to Government, the settlement being sanctioned in each case for 30 years. The report for Cawnpore was received within the year, but was submitted and sanctioned after its close.

62. It was anticipated that all work in connection with the Dehra Dun settlement would be completed by 31st December 1906. The fairing of records was, however, delayed for want of a competent staff of clerks and the settlement was not finished till the 31st March 1907. Since the close of the year the settlement has been declared to be closed.

63. In Moradabad the work of attestation is finished in all tahsils. The assessments of tahsils Moradabad and Thakurdwara have been sanctioned, and the revised records have been faired. Pargana Sambhal with an area of 468 square miles was inspected by the Settlement Officer, Mr. Boas, and pargana Bilari with an area of 333 square miles by his assistant, Mr. Gaskell. The rent-rate reports of both parganas were received and considered, and the assessments of the former pargana are being reported by circles as soon as they are completed.

64. The actual work of assessment in Cawnpore was finished by Mr. Gracey before he left the district, and the Collector was placed in charge to supervise the winding up of operations. The revised revenues of parganas Bhognipur, Derapur South and Ghatampur were declared and distributed. The current settlement of pargana Ghatampur, which had suffered more severely than others from famine, expired on 30th June 1907, and in order to give relief to the proprietors it was decided that the revised revenues, which were adjusted to the present condition of the villages, should take effect from kharif 1906, except where they exceeded the revenues fixed at settlement.

65. The difficult and intricate settlement of Azamgarh, which has been in progress since November 1900, is approaching completion at last, and it is hoped that the end will be reached by 31st March 1908. As noted last year, the major part of the work remaining consisted of the disposal of cases relating to the revision of the records and enhancement of rents. It was anticipated that by the end of March 1907 the file of settlement appeals, which was by far the heavier portion of the work, would be considerably reduced: but though considerable progress was made Mr. Crawford required some help. He was therefore relieved of the charge of the district and placed on special duty for two months to hear settlement appeals, and an extra Deputy Collector was added to the staff to dispose of cases of enhancement of rents. Of 8,401 cases, of which 6,959 were pending from the previous year, only 2,773, or less than a third, remained to be disposed of, while only 150 out of 1051 appeals had still to be decided.

The fairing work is practically completed and all but 61 patwaris of tahsil Ghosi had returned to their circles at the close of the year. As observed last year the new records have been started on a satisfactory basis; and although it is premature yet to draw any general conclusions, there is every prospect that the revision of the records will not result in an increase in the civil litigation of the district.

66. The work of revision under the special rules was in progress in three districts in Bundelkhand.

§ 66.—Bundelkhand.

67. Mr. Pim made over charge of the Jhansi settlement on 22nd December 1906. The revised revenues of tahsil Mahroni and parganas Lalitpur and Bálábehāt of the Lalitpur sub-division were declared and distributed. All work that remained to be done has been completed, and the settlement has been declared to be closed.

§ 67.—Jhansi.]

68. The revised revenues of parganas Banda and Pailani were declared and distributed. The classification of cultivated area into established and nautor was completed in the four parganas which were to be inspected. Parganas Kamasin and Girwan, with an area of 692 square miles, were inspected by the Settlement Officer, Mr. Humphries, and parganas Baberu and Badausa, having almost an equal area, by his assistant, Mr. Drake-Brockman. The rent-rate reports of Kamasin and Baberu were received and disposed of. That of Girwan was passed after the close of the year. Settlement work has been seriously delayed by the withdrawal of patwaris first for the khari partal and again for preparing estimates of crop damage, and to minimise the delay which their frequent withdrawal from head-quarters is likely to cause, a branch office has been opened at Karwi. Even so, survey and record work is much behind-hand, and it is scarcely possible to complete the operations within the sanctioned term of three years.

§ 68.—Banda.

69. The work of attestation of khewats has been completed, and in 484 mahals the revised records have been faired. Parganas Rath and Mahoba, having an area of 714 square miles, were inspected by the Settlement Officer, Mr. Raw, and parganas Jalalpur and Muskara, the area of which is 411 square miles, by his assistant, Mr. Alan Fremantle. The rent-rate reports were received and considered, and the assessments of all the parganas are now under the consideration of the Board. Mr. Raw proceeded on six months' leave during the hot weather, and the Assistant Settlement Officer was placed in charge of the settlement. The work which has been carried on expeditiously will, it is hoped, be completed within the sanctioned period. Since the close of the year Mr. Fremantle has reverted to district work.

§ 69.—Hamirpur.

In parganas Hamirpur, Sumerpur and Maudha, the assessments of which were sanctioned last year, it was feared that recovery from the effects of the famine would not be complete by the date of introduction of the revised assessments, and a suggestion made that the year should be treated as one of ordinary revision, and reductions of revenue given wherever the area of established cultivation was less by 10 per cent. than the area of the year of verification. An examination of the statistics of the more recent years however showed that these fears were groundless and special action was not considered necessary.

70. The proceedings which were instituted to correct the inaccuracies in the settlement records of the hill pattis of the Naini Tal district were brought to a close, and a report was submitted to Government. The result of the revision, which was carried out by the Deputy Commissioner and Pandit Manik Lal Joshi, showed clearly that a revision was absolutely necessary. In pargana Nanakmata and the six villages of parganas Rudrapur and Gadarpur of the same district the revised revenues, which have been sanctioned for ten years, have resulted in a small enhancement on the old demand.

§ 70.—Miscellaneous.

71. Survey work was finished in Hamirpur and the Deputy Collector on deputation as Assistant Survey Officer, was transferred in a similar capacity to Banda, to relieve Mr. J. B. Smart, who was appointed to the independent charge of the survey of pargana Bhitauli of the Bara Banki district.

§ 71.—Survey.

72. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 18,573. Including 15,883 cases outstanding at the close of last year, the total for disposal was 34,456, of which 22,334 were decided. The balance of 12,122 is composed chiefly of rent cases, which number 4,890 in Moradabad and 1,696 and 1,819 in Dehra Dun and Azamgarh respectively.

§ 72.—Original case work.
Statement XXVII-A.

73. Appeals to the Settlement Officers numbered 1,335, of which 1,133 were decided. Commissioners disposed of 150 out of the 181 appeals filed before them.

§ 73.—Appellate work.
Statement XXVII-B.

74. The cost of settlement operations during the year was Rs. 3,04,679. In Jhansi, Cawnpore and Dehra Dun, the only districts where the accounts were closed, the cost of settlement was respectively Rs. 32·50, Rs. 118·45 and Rs. 205·81 per square mile. The large expenditure in Dehra Dun is due to the exceptional character of the tract, the conditions of which differ widely from those of an ordinary plains district.

CHAPTER V.—GENERAL.

76. The rise in the number of recorded transfers which has been noticed of late years continued in 1906-07, the total number having risen to 241,935 or by a little more than 2 per cent. The returns are prepared by the agricultural year ending on 30th June, the date on which the land records are closed. The number of sales by order of court and private sales shows only a slight increase and the revenue assessed on the land transferred was actually less than in 1905-06. The numbers are normal and the average revenue of the land transferred by each transaction is between Rs. 30 and Rs. 40. In no district are the figures so large as to be disquieting. There was a larger increase in the number of mortgage cases, but it was almost counterbalanced by an increased number of redemptions. Mortgages were most common in the Fyzabad division, where there was a large increase, for which the Sultanpur district is mainly, and the Fyzabad district in a less degree, responsible. In both districts the great increase is attributed principally to the energetic measures taken to compel patwaris to report old transfers which had not hitherto been recorded in the registers. Similar measures were taken in some other districts with similar, but less striking, results. The number of cases of redemption of mortgage continued to be high in the Allahabad division, an effect of the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. It was large also in the Fyzabad division, though in most districts it was below the number of mortgage cases.

77. Succession cases declined slightly in number on the whole, but the decrease is by no means general. In the Meerut, Agra and Benares divisions there was a considerable falling-off, but generally there was an increase which was most marked in the Allahabad and Fyzabad divisions. The variations are most frequently ascribed to the local variations in the mortality rate, though in some cases, for instance, in Sultanpur, special efforts to correct the records are accountable for increases, while in Azamgarh the return of patwaris to their ordinary duty after a long spell of work in the settlement office resulted in a large addition to the number of reports. In Saharanpur where plague was severe until late in the hot weather, and mortality was consequently high, there was a considerable decline in the number of reports, but this will probably be more than made good in the current year. In Muzaffarnagar and Bijnor, where similar conditions prevailed, it is believed that many cases remained unreported, although there was no noticeable fall in Muzaffarnagar and an actual rise in Bijnor. On the whole it appears to the Board probable that the proprietary registers are maintained in fairly good order and that the omissions are not important. The provisions of the Land Revenue Act which deny to unrecorded proprietors access to the revenue courts have undoubtedly made it more than ever necessary for the parties to watch their own interests. The Board, however, notice with approval the system adopted by Mr. Pike in Partabgarh by which the patwari's report is made to serve also the purpose of a report by the parties. This is effected by the simple expedient of directing the patwari to obtain their signatures on his report. Action is then taken at once in the tahsil and the trouble of inflicting and collecting fines for belated reports is avoided. The Board will consult the Director of Land Records as to the advisability of prescribing this system in the rules. There is no doubt that fines, frequently enhanced by costs of recovery, are in petty cases a serious tax on the value of the property, while the trouble of recovering them, already alluded to in Chapter II of this report, is out of proportion to their amount. It is probably not advisable to abolish them altogether, but it seems to the Board that the provisions of rule 31(vi) of the rules for mutations are perhaps overlooked, and that rule 33, which permits Collectors to reduce fines in special cases, is not sufficiently used. Attention will be separately drawn to these rules.

§§ 76-77.—Mutations in the revenue registers.
Statement XXVIII.

78. The number of applications for partition filed in 1906-07 was much the same as in the previous year, there being an increase of only 83 applications for perfect, and 33 for imperfect, partition. The total number of cases for disposal, including the large number (4,292) pending from previous years was 8,421. The number of partitions actually carried out was 2,877, or 258 more than in 1905-06; the number of cases otherwise disposed of was 1,062, and the balance pending at the close of the year was 4,482, a number greater by 190 than the arrears at the beginning. In spite, therefore, of an improvement in the number of partitions actually carried out, the staff, as a whole, were not successful in keeping pace with the work and reducing the pending file. The number of new applications for perfect partition was not absolutely high in any district, Aligarh being the most prominent with 91 cases, Cawnpore next with 72, and Meerut and Jaunpur with 69. The total number of cases for disposal was 245 in Meerut, and between 100 and 200 in Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Etah, Cawnpore, Gorakhpur and Basti. The number did not exceed 100 in any other district. The applications for imperfect partition numbered 321 in Gorakhpur, 241 in Almorah, 229 in Basti, and between 100 and 200 in Muzaffarnagar, Meerut, Budaun and Garhwal. The largest totals of cases for disposal are found in Gorakhpur (693), Basti (528), Meerut (447), Budaun (352) and Almorah (325). In Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar and Bijnor the figures exceeded 200. The Meerut and Basti districts show a satisfactory reduction in the pending file of both perfect and imperfect partition cases, and generally there is little room for criticism of the results. The number of partitions actually carried out seems low, with reference to the total number for disposal, in Moradabad, but in that district partition work has been in abeyance during settlement and has only recently been re-opened. In Fatehpur only 4 perfect partitions out of 67 not otherwise disposed of were effected during the year. As 25 cases were pending from the preceding year and one at least dates from 1903 the state of the file cannot be regarded as satisfactory. The Collector appears to have made an endeavour to reform partition procedure with the object of securing greater compactness in the resultant new mahals, and it is to be hoped that the advantages to be secured in future will compensate for the delay which has been caused for the time being. Several districts show some very old cases as pending. The accounts given of them in the district reports indicate that the delay is generally due to numerous objections and appeals in the revenue courts during the progress of the cases, and by other litigation in the civil courts. Occasionally the result is due to nothing but bad work on the part of the amins and to want of strict supervision, but the Board are glad to believe that such cases are rare.

79. During the year the scale of pay of the partition establishment was considerably improved; the staff of many districts was materially strengthened, and amins and clerks were granted the benefit of a provident fund. The amount of work to be done, and consequently the establishment is too variable to permit of the grant of pensions. A new system of levying fees was also introduced. Instead of a fixed fee, a fee is now levied on a calculation of the actual work of various kinds involved in the partition, and the pay of the staff employed. A standard of work has been tentatively introduced and seems to be satisfactory in most districts. It had, however, been in operation for six months only at the end of the year and had not therefore been subjected to a long test. The experiment of employing patwaris to carry out partitions is generally reported to be unpopular and unsuccessful. The zamindars seldom prefer a patwari to an amin, and the work done is not usually satisfactory. The Board will await another year's experience before considering whether the system should be discontinued. In practically all districts the whole work connected with partitions is entrusted to a single Assistant Collector, who, in some districts, is employed on that work almost to the exclusion of all other. The block of partition work in some districts cannot, however, be relieved without some further addition to the gazetted staff. Such additions have been made so far as officers are available and the special needs of the various districts are known to Government.

80. The subject of adopting some measures to decrease the ever-growing evil of the minute sub-division of property by imperfect partition was thoroughly examined by the Board during the year and their conclusions were reported to Government. It was held that some minimum limit should be fixed for the size of a patti, but the Lieutenant Governor intimated that no immediate action was necessary and that a revision of the Land Revenue Act should be awaited. Meanwhile the Board have directed district officers to notice the creation of undesirably small pattis in their annual reports, and nearly all have done so. Instances of such pattis are common, but it will suffice to mention cases in the Meerut division, where pattis of 1/20 bigha, 16 poles, and 9/80 bigha have recently been formed. Similar examples might be quoted from several districts. Obviously such diminutive pattis can serve no useful or desirable purpose.

81. The use made by lambardars of section 184 of the Land Revenue Act, that is, the number of applications filed for the summary recovery of revenue paid by a lambardar on account of a co-sharer, shows little variation as compared with 1905-06. The number of applications was rather less, but the amount to be recovered was much the same. In the Meerut district there was a substantial decline in the number of applications following an abnormal rise in the previous year, and in Banda there was a rise from 66 to 128 applications, attributed by the Collector to satisfactory progress in realising revenue through lambardars. A progressive increase in the use of the section is noted in Aligarh. Including arrears of the previous year there were, in the provinces as a whole, 1,582 applications involving the recovery of Rs. 81,397. The amount actually recovered was Rs. 54,361. The figures are not remarkably different from those of the previous year. The balance remaining for recovery at the end was Rs. 21,824 on 308 applications. The district and divisional reports deal briefly with the subject and suggest no fresh comments on the working of the section.

82. In 1905-06 there was a very large decrease in the amount of land revenue, rates and cesses, remitted to the tahsils by money order, the total having dropped to less than 47 lakhs as compared with over 53½ and over 54½ lakhs in the two preceding years. In 1906-07 the total was again nearly 54½ lakhs, representing about 7¾ per cent. of the total collections which might have been remitted in this way. The increase is very general, being common to all but nine districts, but the variations are, as usual, not easy to explain. There were notable increases in the Bundelkhand districts in which, no remissions having been granted, there was more revenue to collect than in the preceding year. In the eastern districts, where the lambardari system is practically extinct, efforts have been made to prepare correct báchhbandis, in order to show each co-sharer exactly what he has to pay; and this process has made it possible to remit through the post and avoid a visit to the tahsil. Elsewhere special causes are not, and perhaps cannot be, assigned. The amount of miscellaneous revenue (including canal rates) remitted by money order reached the large figure of nearly 12½ lakhs, the number of orders being double that of 1905-06 and the amount 50 per cent. higher.

83. Money orders were used in 1906-07 for the remittance of over 17½ lakhs of rent, nearly 2½ lakhs more than in the previous year. There has been a steady rise in the popularity of rental money orders, with only a slight check in 1904-05. They are relatively most popular in the Rohilkhand, Meerut and Agra divisions, in which they were used for the remittance of nearly 13 lakhs of rent, and among districts Bijnor, with a total of nearly 2 lakhs, and Muzaffarnagar, Aligarh, and Moradabad, with totals of over one lakh, are most prominent; but in only one of these is the total appreciably more than 2 or 3 per cent. of the total rent collected in the year. The chief causes of the local popularity of these money orders appear to be, first, convenience, increased last year by the prevalence of plague; secondly, a desire to obtain a proper receipt, not always obtainable for direct payments to landholders or their agents; and thirdly, the wish to make a tender of rent in cases where there is a dispute, or the zamindar is putting pressure on the tenant. It is probable that the extensive use of money orders in the districts where they are most common is symptomatic of tension between landholders and tenants in parts of those districts. The contrast between Oudh and the province of Agra is remarkable, for, while in Agra the percentage of rent remitted by money order to the total recorded collections approaches 2, in Oudh it is barely one-fourth.

84. The number of appeals filed under the Land Revenue Act in the courts of Collectors was 9 per cent. higher than in 1905-06, reaching the considerable figure of 6,101, the highest for several years past. With 872 appeals pending from the previous year the total for disposal was 6,973; of these 6,130, nearly 700 more than in the previous year were decided, leaving 843 pending at the end of September. The pending file was thus reduced, and there was at the same time a highly satisfactory reduction from 217 to 127 in the number which had been pending for more than three months. In only four districts did the number of such appeals exceed 10, namely Saharapur (28), Gorakhpur (32), Azamgarh (17), and Bara Banki (14). In Gorakhpur the delay was due to the great total number (590) for decision; in Azamgarh to causes already referred to; and in Bara Banki it is not explained. Several of these appeals arose out of partition cases, and such appeals, under section 132 of the Land Revenue Act, can only be decided at certain stages of the partition proceedings. The total number of appeals undecided at the end of the year shows a satisfactory reduction in Meerut and Budaun, and is not now noticeably high in any district, save Gorakhpur with 129 cases.

In Commissioners' courts 2,543 appeals were filed during the year, and the total number for disposal was 2,830, a number frequently exceeded of late years, but rather higher than in 1905-06. Of the total number 2,372 were decided and the balance pending at the close of the year was 458, of these 38 being of more than three months' duration. The Gorakhpur division is responsible for about one-third of the whole balance and for 18 of the long-pending cases. The latter were delayed by the want of further evidence or reports called for from subordinate courts, and the bulk of the other appeals consisted of partition appeals filed after July 1st. Among other divisions Meerut alone requires notice, the arrears having risen from 34 to 118. The cause has been indicated in the previous remarks on appeals under the rent law.

Before the Board there were 713 appeals and 253 applications for revision under the Land Revenue Act. Of these, 609 appeals and 231 applications were disposed of, the orders of the lower court being disturbed in 98 and 62 cases respectively. The pending file of appeals was reduced from 256 to 104, and of applications from 90 to 22. The other judicial business of the Board has already been noticed.

85. The total number, including arrears, of decrees transferred by the civil courts to Collectors in the province of Agra under section 320 of the Code of Civil Procedure was 5,826. Of these, 2,414 were disposed of by the satisfaction of the decree in full by the debtor, or on formal grounds; in 1,273 cases the whole property was sold; in 136 a part only was sold; in 34 farming or direct management was adopted to save the property; in two, mortgages were effected by the Collector; and in 88 cases time was given to the debtor to raise the money privately by the sale, mortgage or lease of a part, or the whole, of the property. In Oudh the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor was sought under section 20 of the Oudh Laws Act, 1876, to the sale of ancestral land in execution of 992 civil court decrees and 339 rent court decrees. Sanction was given with reference to 821 of the former decrees and 276 of the latter, but sale actually took place in only 343 and 118 cases respectively. There were only 62 sales of self-acquired land carried out with the sanction of Commissioners under the same section, though sanction had been granted in 109 instances.

Statements XXXA and XXXB.

86. Compared with the previous year there was a considerable reduction in the work involved in land appropriation. The total area of land acquired during the year was 6,561 acres against 11,418 acres in the previous year, and the amount of compensation disbursed was 8 lakhs against 12 lakhs. Of the total area acquired 3,206 acres were for canals, 1,766 acres for railways and the rest for other public purposes. Five hundred and sixty-two acres were restored, the price realized being Rs. 27,848. Compensation was paid at a noticeably high rate only in Naini Tal, for a plot of land required for a municipal market.

87. At the close of the last revenue year the Thomason College Press had on hand for reproduction four tahsili maps. Ten tahsili maps were sent during the year under report. Of the total number, viz., 14 tahsili maps, seven were printed and issued during the year, leaving seven maps in hand.

§ 87.—Maps.

88. During 1906-07 there was a slight increase in the work on the revenue side of English offices in districts, the total number of letters received and issued being 368,054 or about 9,000 more than in the previous year. The increase is fairly general, but the Allahabad division shows a substantial decrease of about 13,500 letters, the scarcity in the previous year having swollen the volume of correspondence. The substantial increases in the Agra and Gorakhpur districts are not commented on by the Collectors. In Almora the correspondence was heavy and proposals have been submitted for revising the district establishment. The total number of letters received and issue by the Board was 50,163, about 1,200 less than in the previous year.

§§ 88-89.—Total work in district offices.
Statement XXXII.

89. The total number of cases instituted in the vernacular departments increased by nearly 77,000 and reached a total exceeding  $1\frac{3}{4}$  millions. There was a pending file at the beginning of the year of over 200,000, and the total for disposal was higher than in any year since 1902, being 1,962,279. The disposal of work was creditable. The increase of about 16,000 in the pending file at the end of the year corresponds almost exactly with the increase in the pending file of cases under the rent law shown in statement XIXD, so that it may be taken that in miscellaneous business the staff generally was able to keep pace with the work, though not to reduce the substantial pending file. There are, however, numerous inequalities. The Budaun, Moradabad Azamgarh, Gorakhpur, Bareilly and Meerut districts, in the order in which they are named, are prominent for the high number of pending files. If, however, original cases under the rent law be eliminated, Azamgarh stands out with a very high balance of over 10,000 cases; Gorakhpur is next with over 5,000, while Meerut, Budaun and Moradabad have more than 4,000 and Bareilly about 3,600. The position in Meerut is particularly satisfactory. The number of miscellaneous cases instituted was over 62,000, the highest in the provinces, and 5,000 more than in the preceding year; yet the pending file rose by ten cases only. In Gorakhpur there were 3,000 cases less than in 1905-06, though still more than 58,000, and there was a slight reduction in the pending file. In Moradabad there was an increase of over 6,000 in the number of cases instituted, the total for disposal being over 55,000 new cases, with about 2,650 pending from the previous year, but there was an increase of about 1,350 only in the pending file. In Budaun there was a similar increase of about 6,500 in institutions, though the total of new cases was under 40,000; and the balance rose by almost the same number as in Moradabad. In Azamgarh there was an enormous increase of nearly 13,000 in cases instituted, and it is not surprising that the pending file should have increased by about 2,600 during the year, although the staff was strengthened by the deputation of an extra Deputy Collector. In Bareilly the cases instituted increased by 4,000 over the previous year's total of nearly 35,000, and the pending file rose by over 900 cases. There is no doubt, therefore, that in all these districts there has been a determined effort to keep pace with the work, but that in all, except Meerut, its volume has been so great as to be beyond the power of the staff. In all of them, apart from original cases under the rent law, the heaviest arrears appear in cases of mutation, correction of the land records and execution of decrees. According to the classification adopted by Mr. E. B. Alexander in 1892, when the last general revision of district establishments was made, the Meerut and Gorakhpur districts were placed in Class I, Moradabad, Budaun and Azamgarh in Class II, and Bareilly in class III. The figures now quoted certainly suggest that the classification requires re-examination at the present time, and the Board were glad to learn during the year that the matter will shortly be taken up by Government.

90. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 6,30,214 as against Rs. 613,052 in the previous year.

§ 90.—Assignments, &c., of land revenue.
Statement XXXIII.

91. The rules regarding the maintenance of revenue accounts were revised, with the sanction of Government, during the year, it having been found possible to amalgamate the accounts of land revenue, rates and cesses for the purpose of collection, the distribution of the various receipts over the various heads being subsequently adjusted. The Board believe this to be an important reform which will result in a substantial reduction of the labour imposed upon the hardworked staff of the tahsils.

92. The striking feature of the year was the return of comparative prosperity after a succession of poor seasons, which culminated in 1905-6 in famine in Bundelkhand and in parts of the Agra division. Evidence of that prosperity is afforded by many parts of this report. The cultivated area, both in the kharif and rabi, was above normal; the commercial crops of cane and cotton were raised on extended areas and gave an excellent yield; the autumn harvest was generally very good, and the spring harvest at least moderately good; calamities were very local: the collection of rents by landlords improved: the revenue was collected with ease: large amounts of takavi were repaid; the construction of wells received a great impetus; and the export trade showed a distinct recovery. On the other hand, the year was unhealthy, plague being specially virulent in the western districts. Prices were high, though for the agriculturist this is an advantage, and the pinch was felt only by these persons, comparatively few, whose livelihood depends on a fixed income of small amount. Even the landless agricultural labourer, who in the past suffered when prices were high, has undoubtedly succeeded in securing a higher wage, in common with the industrial worker; and there is universal testimony to the great demand for labour throughout the year. Some officers note the remarkable assistance rendered to the eastern districts by the emigration of labourers to various industrial centres. Such men do not sever all connection with their rural homes, but, on the contrary, they remit substantial sums, amounting to several lakhs in the aggregate, for the assistance of the relatives who are left behind. The Board have no hesitation in agreeing with the opinion of Mr. Moreland, Director of Land Records and Agriculture, that the people were, at least until June last, substantially better off than a year before. In the opinion of most offices, too, the position was much stronger than in 1896, just before the last general famine in the United Provinces. Probably the sole exception is to be found in Gorakhpur and the neighbouring country, where scarcity appeared in the hot months of 1907. This conclusion has an important bearing on the capacity of the provinces generally to weather the present stress, following upon the disastrous monsoon at the close of the year, but the discussion of this matter will fall more naturally into the next report.

93. Several railway extensions were opened during the year; new lengths of canal were constructed in various districts; in Bundelkhand the improvement of irrigation from tanks continued; and apart from the mere statistics of agriculture and revenue and rest there are other signs of progress. The movement in favour of co-operative credit made a remarkable advance and there is no doubt that a good start has been made. District or other central banks, intended to finance rural societies, have been established in several places, and the number of village banks continues to increase. The effect of the present unfavourable year on their stability and development will be noted with special interest. A few rural banks have been closed, but these are mainly the remnants of the system which has now been superseded by sounder co-operative methods. The Board view the extending popularity of co-operation with special satisfaction, for they hold that its development gives the greatest hope of strengthening the position of the tenants and of the petty cultivating proprietor. The co-operative principle is not, however, confined to agricultural finance. It has extended to the weaving industry, notably in Unao, Benares and Bara Banki. Private enterprise also is not wanting. The fine cotton crops of the past two years encouraged the establishment of new ginning mills and presses in several centres, and the returns have been excellent. A great advance is marked by the establishment at Hathras of a spinning mill in which the motive power is to be electricity, while a considerable Muhammadan landlord has started a ginning mill in the Aligarh district. The demonstrations of sugar manufacture conducted by Saiyid Muhammad Hadi, of the Agricultural Department, have been a great success, and some installations of the necessary plant have been erected by private owners. But this is not the only result. Many young men of good status and education have attended the demonstrations and have learnt to interest themselves in machinery and its management. Thus from Unao the Board learn that a talukdar's son contemplates setting up and managing a sugar refinery of his own, having undergone the necessary training. From Basti it is reported that certain zamindars have sent out the young men of their families to study the use of machinery in the manufacture of sugar and rice, and the pressing of oil. All these are signs of an industrial awakening, and the Board believe that the main obstacle to a rapid development of industrial enterprise lies not so much in the want of will to embark upon it, as in the absence of skilled mechanics. They are aware that His Honour the Lieutenant Governor has at heart the provision of facilities for a sound technical education, and they are confident that in a few years the difficulties will be overcome, and that great progress will be made to the advantage of all, and not least of that large part of the community which depends upon the produce of the land for its subsistence.

94. The one matter of grave concern brought out by the present report, apart from the agricultural distress which is now being so manfully faced, is the increasing litigation between landlord and tenant. The Board have recorded the opinion that the causes are not to be sought only in the Agra Tenancy Act, to which the remarkable tendencies observed from the statistics were at first attributed. What has been said in previous paragraphs shows that this view has a substantial basis; but the existing state of affairs is none the less deplorable, and the Board would welcome any practical legislation which could tend to reduce the opportunities for a contest in the courts.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

P. HARRISON,

Secretary.

* A large reduction in the figures of area and land revenue assigned or alienated shown against description "(a) for the maintenance of public servants" as compared with the figures shown last year is due to the rectification this year of misclassification in previous years.

The differences as compared with the figures of the last year have been satisfactorily explained.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No.  $\frac{1107}{1-268}$  OF 1908.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 9th May 1908.

READ—

Lettre from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no.  $\frac{1166}{XII-163A(4)}$  dated the 18th March 1908, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1907.

OBSERVATIONS.—The year ending on the 30th September 1907 was a moderately prosperous one. The rains of 1906 were on the whole plentiful; the areas of the kharif harvest of 1906 and of the rabi harvest of 1907 were large, and that of the hot weather crops of 1907 was small, as is usual in normal seasons. The crops of which the sowings were extended were rice, cotton, sugarcane, wheat, and other rabi food grains and linseed, that is to say most of the better crops. The poppy alone of the more paying staples was less grown. The rise in cultivation was attended by an increase in the area of cultivating holdings, by a slight rise in the rent demand and by a considerable improvement in rent collections. The only serious agricultural calamity that visited the province were the floods in the eastern tract, particularly the district of Gorakhpur, which reduced the food supply in those parts. But a severe visitation of plague fell upon the country, particularly the western districts. The returns of trade also indicate the character of the year, displaying plenty of movement and business.

Unfortunately the favourable year was closed by a bad monsoon which has caused the distress now prevailing in a large part of the province; and the high prices of the beginning of the year, after a moderate fall, rose rapidly at the end to famine rates.

2. The nature of the Government demand was materially altered during the year. The patwari rate was abolished; the owners' rate for canal irrigation progressed towards extinction; the occupiers' rate fell largely with a shrinkage in the area irrigated. The land revenue rose somewhat, the progressive enhancements imposed in completed settlements, largely in Oudh, being partially counteracted by substantial decreases in the new settlements of Cawnpore and Banda. The real revenue demand of the year, after allowing for necessary remissions for calamities was Rs. 6,44,27,664; at the end of the year only Rs. 34,474 remained for collection. The collections of local and police rates were, as is customary, complete; those of canal rates and of the minor heads of demand were open to little objection.

The collections of payments due against takavi advances were creditable, if not so complete as the revenue collections in all districts. The Board view with apprehension the large outstandings of these loans at the end of the year in districts in which since then it has been necessary to make further large advances. They are averse from remissions of takavi except for the strongest cause and consider that the mere failure of a loan to secure the desired object is not in itself such a cause. The Lieutenant Governor does not differ from this view, but is of opinion that circumstances may exist to justify the remission of old loans owed by distressed agriculturists who have suffered in certain areas from a recurrence of famine conditions within a short period.

With regard to the methods used for collection His Honour cordially agrees with the remarks made by the Board. He will be interested in the special report promised on the subject. He is ready also to consider any proposals which may be found practicable for reducing the mass of processes necessary for the collection of petty dues for mutation of names. It might be found possible to collect such dues along with the land revenue kists, the mutation cases being recorded after the entry of the demand due in each case has been made in the land revenue khatiauni. But the fact that the liability for these dues is on individuals only and not on all the sharers of the mahal, may be an obstacle to such a method.

3. In the chapter of their report dealing with rent law litigation (with the exception of the statement that the total volume of new litigation in Agra increased from 291,616 to 324,662) the Board have used figures which do not correspond with those in the attached statements. This has been done in order to avoid shewing as instituted within the year of report cases which really belonged to the preceding year. When the real figures are thus obtained, the noticeable points in this litigation are almost wholly confined to the ejectment proceedings. There was a moderate growth of suits for arrears of rent, which is not remarkable and is perhaps wholly nominal, being due to the cessation of suits against more holdings than one, and to the substitution of suits by individual sharers for one suit by the lambardar.

In the matter of ejectment the history of the year is the same in Oudh as in Agra; surrenders and relinquishments of holdings largely decreased, ejectment proceedings largely increased. Applications for ejectment upon failure to satisfy decrees for arrears of rent fell in number, as was natural in a year when rent payments were high. But suits for ejectment in Agra rose from 87,705 to 98,406; in Oudh the total of suits and of applications for assistance to eject (for reasons other than non-satisfaction of a decree) rose from 20,928 to 24,415, while the total of suits and of notices of ejectment grew from 29,335 to 34,625. The whole of the increase in Agra is probably not due to the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901, and the reason for an advance suggested by the Commissioners of Benares and Lucknow and accepted by the Board, viz. that landowners desire to secure their share (in an enhanced rent) of the high profits of agriculture in an era of risen prices, no doubt explains much of it. It is likely also, especially in backward districts, such as Gorakhpur and Basti, that the efforts made to improve the land records and to secure that the demands entered in those records are the correct demands legally enforceable, may have lent powerful aid to the general tendency, by necessitating the substitution of regular procedure for irregular.

4. The Board have made a comparison of the ejectment suits of recent years in Agra with those in a period which appears to have been accepted as a normal period, viz. 1895—1899. There is a very large increase, but the divisional figures suggest that the cause is to be found rather in the economic conditions,—the increased value of the tenure of land where agricultural conditions have become more stable—fluctuations in the value of particular crops, development of communications, and range of prices of staples—of the several tracts, than in any one general cause.

Moreover the returns of actual ejectments given in statement XX-C for the several years shew that in no year does ejectment actually take place in more than '81 per cent. of the tenants' holdings in the province, and that the area of which tenants are really dispossessed has never exceeded '37 per cent. of those holdings.

The Lieutenant Governor will defer passing orders upon the proposal for the abolition of the statement abovementioned. In his opinion the statistics collected indicate that under the Act of 1901 material assistance is being afforded to the stability of tenures. One remarkable result is the rapid growth of long leases; the area covered by these has more than doubled in four years, and is now 9 per cent. of the area held by tenants at will. The Board have pointed out that the growth is due to special conditions, but it is none the less of importance and is a hopeful sign.

It is however possible to look at the matter from another point of view, and to regret that nearly a hundred thousand ejectment suits are annually filed in Agra with little result save to cause expense to both landlord and tenant and to effect a small increase in the rent. Whether there is any action possible that would avoid the necessity for these suits is a grave problem; but the Lieutenant Governor is not hopeful that a solution of it will easily be found.

5. The work falling upon the courts in Agra was materially larger than in any previous year. But the main growth occurred in the three western divisions and in Gorakhpur. The increase was well met. The courts in that province disposed of 274,960 cases against 249,599 during the previous year, and the cases left pending at the end (omitting the enhancement and ejectment cases filed at the close of the year) were less than 400 per district, a very satisfactory result.

The appeals to Collectors, Judges, Commissioners, and the Board in the two provinces were more numerous; but the same despatch was shewn in their disposal, and the results of the appeals were more favourable to the decisions appealed against, save in Commissioners' courts, where they were practically unchanged. The disposals of revenue cases were also good. The Lieutenant Governor concurs in the commendation expressed by the Board of this satisfactory and creditable record. He is aware of the pressure upon the staff and is considering further measures for its relief. Such measures include a revision of the staff of revenue officers of the province, and the question whether their services cannot be placed more directly at the disposal of Commissioners, who know the necessities of each district, is being considered. The amendment of the procedure regarding ejectment cases enjoined in the Agra Tenancy Act, 1901, is also under examination.

6. The progress made during the year in the current settlement operations was in general accordance with anticipations. It is worth noticing that the assessments declared during the year give a new land revenue of Rs. 16,89,434 in place of an expiring demand of Rs. 17,38,157.

7. There remain but few matters requiring to be noticed. The year was noticeable for (a) the reorganization of the system of calculating the fees for partition cases and of employing, paying and rewarding the staff of amins, a standard of work required from them being also established; (b) the revision of the rules regarding agricultural loans, including the introduction of equated repayments; and (c) the amalgamation in the tahsil accounts of the collections of land revenue and rates. These three changes are, the Government agrees with the Board, likely to facilitate the work of officials and to simplify the problems of the public that deals with the revenue offices.

Concurrently with the revision of the loan rules the groundwork has been laid for a consistent and progressive takavi policy, it being now made clear that the Government desires the extension of improvements and that for all reasonable demands funds will generally be available.

On the other hand the following questions require further consideration :—(i) whether there is any legal justification in the law or rules for calling upon talukdars to prove anything beyond a formal demand before the Deputy Commissioner takes action under section 185 of the United Provinces Land Revenue Act, 1901;—(ii) what can be done to quicken the disposal of partition cases, and whether any addition is required, and can be provided, to the gazetted staff for this purpose.

8. The report, which was received only six days after the prescribed date, is a complete and excellent narrative, and the summary contained in the concluding paragraphs of all the developments of the year which bear upon the interests of the land of the province is an indication of the attention devoted by the Board to the revenue administration of the province. The Lieutenant Governor shares to the full the belief expressed that an industrial awakening would be to the advantage of agriculture and of the landed interest. He has pleasure in acknowledging the capable work of the Members of the Board and of the revenue officers serving under them.

In particular he wishes to place on record the appreciation by Government of the work of the late Senior Member, Mr. A. W. Cruickshank, C.S.I., who retired from the service of Government at the end of March. Mr. Cruickshank served for over thirty-five years in these provinces, in the course of which he held every revenue office and held it with credit, his judgment being sound and his industry unflinching.

Sitapur. The monsoon strengthened in the third week of July and by the end of the month all districts except Lucknow and Bara Banki had received sufficient rain for the time being. Rain continued until nearly the end of August in most districts, but for some time there was a deficiency in the eastern submontane tracts. The Gorakhpur and Basti districts were fortunate in receiving a final heavy fall, but in Gonda, Bahraich and Kheri the rainfall of the month was quite inadequate for the system of cropping practised in the locality. After the end of August there was no useful rain except in the Gorakhpur division (excluding the west of Basti), and the districts of Benares, Ghazipur and Ballia. Such showers as were received elsewhere were of no appreciable value, as their effect was counteracted by the dry west winds which prevailed during September. In October and November there was practically no rain. The result of the irregular distribution and abrupt termination of the monsoon rain may be said to be that in the Meerut and Agra divisions and practically the whole of the Allahabad division, in the Rohilkhand division, except Shahjahanpur and Pilibhit, the Lucknow division, except Kheri and part of Sitapur, and in the districts of Fyzabad and Bara Banki the period covered by the rain was about five weeks only, the sowing season being a month late and the growing season a month or more short. In Shahjahanpur and Pilibhit, a small part of the Allahabad division, Mirzapur, Jaunpur, Kumaun, Kheri, Bahraich, Sultanpur and Partabgarh the rainy season extended over eight weeks, the sowing season being normal, and the growing season again a month or more short. In the rest of the Benares division, and in the Gorakhpur division (excluding the west of Basti) the rain lasted long enough to secure moderately good crops of all staples except late rice. The season for the sowing of spring crops opened with the soil much too dry, in most places, for the preparation of the seed-bed, and there was no relief until good rain fell in January, nearly five months after the monsoon had withdrawn from the Provinces. The end of January or the beginning of February brought further useful rain almost everywhere.

6. In spite of the lateness of the monsoon over the larger part of the Provinces the area sown with kharif crops was little less than in 1906-07 and was still  $3\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. in excess of the normal, being considerably short of the normal only in Saharanpur, Naini Tal and Bundelkhand. Clearly the people made the most of their opportunities. The total area under kharif crops was 24.15 million acres; and the Director of Land Records and Agriculture notes that the maintenance of so high an area is partly due to the extending practice of sowing cotton and some other crops with irrigation. This is particularly the case of the districts in the middle of the Ganges-Jumna doab. The effects of the drought were plainly exhibited in the great restriction of the rabi area, which was only 13.6 million acres, or 68 per cent. of the normal of 20 millions. The falling off is particularly marked in the double-cropped area, normally 8.5 million acres, but in 1907-08 only 5.7 million acres. The soil was in many places far too dry after the autumn crop had been reaped to permit of the sowing of a spring crop. Where no irrigation was possible the area reserved for the spring crop remained unsown. That so much as 68 per cent. of the normal area should have been sown, however, is remarkable, in view of the highly unpropitious conditions of the sowing season, for except in a few favoured localities the seed-bed could not be prepared without a preliminary watering, while everywhere the cost of seed was exceedingly high. The result is due to the extensive canal system and the energy of the cultivators in digging temporary wells, for which object they were liberally assisted with State loans, as a later part of this report will show. The total area approached or exceeded three-fourths of the normal in the Meerut, Agra, Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, the comparative success being due in the first two largely to the canals, and in the others to the fortunate fall of rain after August. Mirzapur, however, comparing unfavourably with the rest of the Benares division, sowed little more than half the normal area, while Muzaffarnagar and Muttra were least successful in the west. In Rohilkhand a 70 per cent. area was sown, in Oudh 62 per cent. and in the Allahabad division 50 per cent. The worst districts in Oudh were the northern districts, Gonda, Bahraich, Kheri, Sitapur and Hardoi, while in the Allahabad division Banda, Hamirpur and Jalaun show the smallest areas, the last-named district having sown less than one-fourth of the normal. The hot-weather crops were sown on a much larger area than usual—362,000 acres as compared with a normal of 213,000 acres. The area exceeded 20,000 acres in four southern Oudh districts—Rae Bareilly, Sultanpur, Partabgarh and Bara Banki—and exceeded 10,000 acres in Farrukhabad, Budaun, Moradabad, Allahabad, Gorakhpur, Sitapur, Gonda and Bahraich. A bad year is generally marked by an increase in these extra crops, and 1907-08 has proved no exception.

7. Although the total kharif area was not substantially different from that of 1906-07 the distribution of the various crops was much changed. Thus in a total area of about 24 million acres, the area under rice was less by 627,000 acres and that under juar by 314,000 acres than in the previous year. The shortage was made good by an increase of 327,000 acres under bajra, 583,000 acres under small millets and 112,000 acres under sugarcane. Cotton, however, showed a decline of 31,000 acres. The extension of the area under bajra is a usual feature of an unfavourable sowing season. The increased area under cane is due to the propitious moisture of the soil in the beginning of 1907, and the area under the crop was the highest on record, being 1,472,000 acres. The decrease in the area under cotton is not serious, being due to the lateness of the rain in the districts where it is an established crop. It is gratifying to note that the northward extension of the cotton belt was not only not checked, but actually progressed during 1907, the districts of Farrukhabad, Budaun, Unao and Hardoi each showing a largely increased area. The oilseed til showed a further small extension, but indigo was sown in not quite 48,000 acres, about one-fourth of the former normal area.

8 Among rabi crops, wheat maintained its proportionate area on the reduced total, but was grown in  $2\frac{1}{2}$  million acres less than in 1907: poppy was raised on about the same scale as in the previous year, but linseed was hardly grown at all as an unmixed crop, and gram and peas were grown on an area very much less than any recorded in recent years. Barley alone among the staple crops was raised on an area greater than in 1907, having supplanted the pulses to a large extent. As Mr. Moreland has observed, this result may be attributed to the experience of the famine 11 years before, when barley was comparatively successful in land prepared for sowing under similar abnormal conditions.

9. The net cropped area during the year was 32·4 million acres, and of this area 11·5 million acres received irrigation. The Director of Land Records discovered, however, that the returns in some areas did not include fields which had been prepared for sowing by means of a preliminary watering and afterwards received no artificial irrigation. The total irrigated area was, therefore, greater than the statistics show. The net area, as returned, was 930,000 acres more than in 1906-07 and was considerably the highest on record, being nearly 400,000 acres more than the previous maximum, reached in 1905-06. Of the total area irrigated, water was supplied from canals to 2·6 millions of acres, from wells to 7·7 millions and from other sources to 1·2 millions. The canals supplied water to 570,000 acres more, while wells were used for watering 1,794,000 acres more, than in the previous year, but "other sources" supplied irrigation to 1,459,000 acres less. These sources are for the most part streams, swamps and ponds and the supply of water is unstable. The smaller streams, swamps and ponds dried up rapidly in September, and the water left in them was used chiefly for the withering kharif crops. These sources are usually available for watering the rabi in the early cold weather, but on this occasion they were not, and wells had to be used instead where they could be made. But in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions and in Oudh, where most reliance is placed on these sources, the failure of the supply was not entirely made up by increasing the number of wells, and the total area irrigated was substantially less than in 1906-07. Exceptions are found in Bara Banki, Partabgarh and Sultanpur where the net areas irrigated show an actual increase.

10. If, however, the double-cropped area be allowed for the area of crops irrigated shows a larger net increase of 1·7 millions of acres, 1·3 millions more having been watered in the kharif, and 0·3 million in the rabi, the remaining increase occurring in respect of hot-weather crops. The increase is most remarkable in extent at the kharif, but less than 16 per cent. of the whole kharif area was irrigated, while over 66 per cent. of the whole rabi area received water.

11. It may be noted that owing to the lowness of the water in the Ganges and Jumna, which supply by far the greatest amount of irrigation through canals, the supply was not always equal to the demand and that, in some cases, water could be given only for a preliminary (pa'eo) watering. Substantial remissions of canal rates amounting to nearly  $2\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs were made in such cases. The newly-constructed Ken canal (in the Banda district) began to be used in September 1907, but the people were unused to drawing supplies from canals, and did not always prepare the necessary channels to lead water to the fields in good time, so that altogether the canal was not so fully useful as an old-established canal would have been. Nevertheless its opening undoubtedly had the result of assisting the growth of crops in a considerable area where none or few could have been raised.

12. In a year like that under review the resources of the Provinces in respect of wells are of special interest. Over half a million masonry wells are returned as having been used and 586,000 as available : while 1,370,000 non-masonry wells were used and 1,445,000 returned as available. The number of new masonry wells constructed during the year is returned by the Director of Land Records at 15,568, a figure not indicating any exceptional rapidity of construction in consequence of the drought. The next chapter will, however, show that the sinking of large numbers of new wells was commenced during the year with the aid of State loans. Only those actually completed in time to be of use appear in the Director's returns, and it is very probable that, without these loans, well-building would have shown a decline. Of temporary wells the number in existence was nearly half a million more than in the previous year, but the numbers newly constructed must have been much greater than the mere difference in numbers indicates, for in a large part of the area where such wells are most easily made, annual reconstruction is necessary ; and in the four districts of Bareilly, Budaun, Shahjahanpur and Hardoi alone it is practically certain that about 400,000 of these wells were constructed as a direct result of the drought. The total number available is far above any number previously recorded. It is strange that so many as 85,000 masonry wells and 75,000 temporary wells should be returned as not having been used and the figures probably exaggerate the facts. No doubt in a year of drought many shallow wells are for the time unfit for use, but it has already been noted that the preliminary watering for the preparation of the seed-bed was often not recorded, while it is certain that many temporary wells were dug expressly for this purpose.

13. In the kharif none of the food crops yielded more than half a normal outturn, maize and the small millets doing best with 50 per cent. These suffered least, as their growing season is comparatively short, but the results differed widely in the various tracts. The monsoon was not unfavourable to them in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, where a three-quarter crop was obtained. In most districts of the Meerut, Agra and Rohilkhand divisions the yield was about half a normal crop: also in parts of the Fyzabad division. In Gonda, Bahraich and Bara Banki, in the Lucknow division generally, and in Bundelkhand, these crops were almost a total loss. The later unirrigated food crops, juar and bajra, with the low-growing pulses which are sown with them, suffer severely from drought in September, an important month in their growing season, and the result was an average yield of only 35 to 40 per cent. Where irrigation was possible and employed small areas gave fair results, but only in Saharanpur, Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Jaunpur, Ghazipur, Ballia, Gorakhpur, Rae Bareilly and Partabgarh was a 50 per cent. crop secured. In other districts the average varied from 45 to 20 per cent. and even less. Early rice was not a total failure, fair crops having been obtained in Jaunpur and Gorakhpur, but only 50 per cent. or less elsewhere. Late rice, however, did not on the whole return even the seed, and was a total loss except in a few small areas within reach of the canals. The streams and lakes from which a final watering is sometimes given, if necessary, were in 1907 dry too soon. The commercial crops of the season, cotton, sugar and til also gave poor yields. The outturn of sugarcane is estimated at a 60 per cent. crop and of cotton at 50 per cent. They were therefore rather better than the general crops, but til gave a poor return nearly everywhere. The hills shared the misfortunes of the plains, the crop being less than half the normal in the Kumaun division and probably not more than one-fourth in the hill areas of Dehra Dun.

14. In the rabi season of 1908 the areas sown with wheat and barley gave crops 75 per cent. and 85 per cent. respectively of a full normal crop, the result, acre for acre, being no worse than in 1907. Other crops were, however, much less satisfactory, gram yielding only 60 per cent., linseed 50, rapeseed 50 and opium 65. The Meerut division (except Aligarh) and the Muttra district, which lie in the tract where the rainfall of 1907 was least favourable, gave disappointing results in spite of the canals. The supply of canal-water was not always sufficient, and the sub-soil was unprecedentedly dry. The return was from 62 to 72 per cent. only of a normal crop. The Agra division (except Muttra), however, and Aligarh were more successful, an average of 80 per cent. being reached, with 94 per cent. in the Agra district. In Rohilkhand and the adjoining Kumaun tarai the yield was from 70 to 80 per cent.; in the Gorakhpur division and most of the Benares division from 80 to 90 per cent.; in Mirzapur only 70 per cent., but in Jaunpur well above the normal. In the Allahabad division, outside Bundelkhand, the average was 75 per cent., but in Bundelkhand, Banda and Hamirpur obtained only a 65 per cent. yield, and Jalaun only 50 per cent.; Jhansi, however, secured a normal crop on the area. In Oudh too there were very divergent results. The whole of the Lucknow division obtained an 80 per cent. crop or more, except Kheri, where the yield was less than one-third. The southern districts of the Fyzabad division secured 75 per cent., but Bara Banki only 50, Gonda 37 and Bahraich 31. On the area sown, therefore, the plains did fairly well, except in the upper doab, north Oudh and Bundelkhand. In the hills the spring crop, like the kharif, was probably less than half the normal.

15. The Director of Land Records and Agriculture has estimated that, taking both area and yield into account, the loss due to the drought was about 7 million tons of food-grains, 4 million tons in the kharif and 3 million tons in the rabi, and that the value of the money-bringing crops, other than wheat, was about 15 crores of rupees (£10,000,000 sterling) less than the normal, this loss being altogether apart from the loss of food-grains.

16. At the end of June 1908 the hills and submontane districts received fairly heavy falls of rain, and kharif sowings were started betimes. Early in July the rains extended over the whole Provinces and were as a rule copious, timely and well distributed. In the Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions, however, there was a considerable, and in the Lucknow and Benares divisions a less marked, deficiency: but in the Meerut, Agra and Allahabad divisions there was an excess. August was generally a wet month, but while there was an excess of rain elsewhere, the Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions again received less than their normal fall for the month. More rain was needed over the north-east and east of the Provinces and fine weather in the south, west and centre. Light rain fell everywhere during the first week of September and with it the monsoon closed in the Meerut and Agra divisions. The second week brought the last rain of the season to Rohilkhand. Elsewhere in that week the rain was light or moderate, and then a definite break set in, to last till the end of the month. In the last few days of September and the beginning of October a fresh advance of the monsoon occurred, giving welcome rain to the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions and to parts of Oudh and the Allahabad division. Taking the season as a whole, the Meerut and Agra divisions received rain slightly in excess of the normal, and Allahabad practically the normal amount, but there was a deficiency increasing from 14 per cent. in Rohilkhand to 25 in Benares, 31 in Gorakhpur, 35 in Lucknow and 46 in Fyzabad. The small decline in the kharif area in 1907 was again made up in 1908. The Bundelkhand districts, and Sitapur, Gonda and Bahraich exhibit large increases of area. The sowings of rice were again curtailed, a further area of  $11\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs of acres not being sown with this crop. On the other hand the area under small millets rose by  $7\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs of acres; under maize by 3 lakhs, and under juar and bajra by about 7 lakhs of acres. The crops suffered from floods in the low-lands of the Meerut and Agra divisions and in Banda, and there has been injury in the valleys of the various rivers in Budaun, Moradabad, Hamirpur and Ballia. On the other hand injury has been caused by drought in Gonda, Bahraich, part of Basti and in the east of Sitapur. Generally the supply of labour was affected by malarial fever and harvesting was delayed in consequence. Maize, small millets, juar and bajra have, however, given a good yield almost everywhere: early rice was indifferent in the east, but generally fair in the west, while late rice has been very largely again a failure. The pulses too were very poor in the area where they are most important. Til has been fairly ol, but cotton suffered considerably in the latter part of the season and the early hopes of a good crop have not been fulfilled. Taken as a whole, the crops have been relatively inferior in Muttra, Mainpuri, Jhansi, and parts of Bahraich. Elsewhere, late rice excepted, they have been fairly good.

17. In spite of the short outturn of the crops and high prices the death-rate was not abnormal until December 1907, but even in that month the physical condition of the people was fair. The prevalent diseases were fever, small-pox, plague and measles. In January excessive cold and fog, following upon the winter rains, brought on pneumonia and lung diseases, which, with the still prevalent small-pox and fever, caused the death-rate to be considerably above normal. In February the rate continued high, though lower than in January, but in a few districts it was appreciably above normal, small-pox and plague being the principal causes. In March the excess above normal was slight, but the rate was in parts higher and elsewhere lower than the normal. The excess was rather more in April, but again small-pox, plague and measles were chiefly accountable. In May and June the death-roll was swollen by outbreaks of cholera. More normal conditions prevailed, however, in July and August, at the close of the famine period, the death-rate being only 2·83 per one thousand during the latter month, as compared with a normal of 2·55. In September, however, a widespread outbreak of malarial fever occurred and the total deaths in that month were higher than in any of the preceding 11 months, though that total was nearly approached in December 1907. The effect of the famine on the public health has been fully discussed by the Government and it is unnecessary to deal with that matter here. It is sufficient to note that measles and small-pox were prevalent to an unusual degree, but not so seriously as to disturb the agricultural economy: cholera, though present at times in many districts, was not very widespread or virulent: and the Provinces enjoyed comparative immunity from the great scourge of plague. From the present point of view the most serious epidemic was that of malarial fever which began in September 1908 and continued for some months, the result being scarcity of labour and the prostration of whole villages, and, consequently, delay in harvesting the kharif and in sowing the rabi. The outbreak was most serious in the western half of the Provinces, and the Government establishments shared the misfortunes of the general public, with results apparent in several passages of this report.

18. The trade returns, being compiled for the financial year, do not permit of a review of the statistics for the whole period covered by this report. They do, however, strongly reflect the condition of the Provinces. For instance, in 1906-07, there was a net export of wheat amounting to 1·7 million maunds, while between April 1907 and March 1908 there was a net import of nearly 4 million maunds: and while in the former period the net import of other grains and pulses was about 100,000 maunds only in the latter it was no less than 16·6 million maunds. An examination of the total exports and imports of all food-grains shows that in every trade block without exception there was a balance of imports, that is to say, the supply of food-stuffs had to be reinforced, before the end of March. The Allahabad division (excluding Cawnpore city), however, imported a net quantity of four lakhs of maunds only, and the figures of the Meerut division (17 lakhs) are not high. The four districts of Gonda, Bahraich, Kheri and Sitapur made a net import of over 31 lakhs of maunds, and the other eight districts of Oudh (including Lucknow city), required nearly 60½ lakhs from outside their boundaries. The figures of the other blocks show varying results between these limits. Wheat and gram came largely from the Punjab in the last six months of 1907, and rice began to be imported from Burma in October, the supply being supplemented later from Bengal. From January onwards the scale of importation decreased and by the end of May 1908, the net excess of imports over exports was small. In fact, from April the Gorakhpur, Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions began to export more than they received. For a time, shortly after the rabi harvest, the Lucknow division also showed a slight excess of exports, but the Allahabad, Fyzabad and Benares divisions showed a net balance of imports throughout the famine period. The Government, who were in possession of special figures, recorded in October last that from the latter half of April, outside the famine districts exportation was generally in excess of importation, and that the largest net importations appeared in Bahraich, Lucknow, Bara Banki and Kheri.

After March, the Bundelkhand districts, which had up to that time proved almost self-supporting (having secured fine harvests in 1906-07), began to import largely, more particularly the Banda district. The railways and private enterprise proved fully equal to meeting local needs throughout, and only in south Mirzapur and in the Himalayan districts were any special measures necessary.

19. In respect of merchandise other than food-grains it may be noted that the imports of piece-goods fell off, as a whole, up to March 1908, particularly in the Allahabad, Benares and Oudh trade blocks. Refined sugar was, however, received in larger quantities than in the preceding year; but less unrefined sugar was brought in. Raw cotton, the crop of 1907 having given an inferior yield, was exported to the extent of nine lakhs of maunds less than in the previous year, the value of the exported material being less by 144 lakhs of rupees. The traffic in hides and skins, which had expanded greatly in the two preceding financial years, fell off greatly in 1907-08, one contributing cause being, probably, the large local demand for leather for well-buckets. The crop of oilseeds having been a good one on a large area in the spring of 1907, the export traffic in them increased substantially, but til, the chief oilseed of the kharif, shows a falling-off of  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs of maunds. Prices being high the local consumption of ghi was reduced, and more left the Provinces than usual. The exports of sugar (mainly the product of the good crop cut in the cold weather of 1906-07) were greater in respect of both refined and unrefined sugar, but the raw product was less extensively sent away than in the previous year, the movement having been checked in 1907 by the unfavourable prospects of the coming crop.

20. Throughout 1906-07 prices had remained at a high level and were rising in July 1907, when the rains were delayed.
 § 20.—Prices. At that time the price of wheat was in most places about  $10\frac{1}{2}$  seers per rupee, but by the end of October there had been a sharp rise. From November 1907 to February 1908 wheat fluctuated from 7 to 8 seers per rupee. Prices became slightly easier from March and the commonest price till the end of the year was about  $8\frac{1}{2}$  seers, varying to  $9\frac{3}{4}$  seers in some markets. The cheapest rate recorded in any of the principal markets was reached in May when  $10\frac{1}{4}$  seers were obtainable. The prices of other grains, as soon as scarcity became assured, approximated more closely to that of wheat than in normal seasons, a phenomenon usual in similar circumstances. Thus, whereas in July 1907 the cheapest grain obtainable was quoted at 15 seers as compared with  $10\frac{1}{2}$  seers for wheat, in December the respective rates were 9 and 7 seers. The divergence was more marked again in June 1908, when wheat was selling at about  $8\frac{1}{2}$  seers and the cheapest of other grains at about  $11\frac{3}{4}$  seers. The price of gram was high, usually about 9 seers, throughout the year, falling to about 10 seers just after the harvest. Its price was occasionally even higher than that of wheat. Barley, on the other hand, having been relatively successful, was for several months the cheapest grain in the market over a large part of the Provinces, selling at about 14 seers in many places ever since the harvest. In September, however, maize began to be quoted at 17 to 18 seers. The price of gur was extraordinarily high. There was a large demand for it in the autumn of 1907, and as the promise of the new crop became unsatisfactory, the price rose, in some markets, above six rupees per maund. As the new season's produce came on the market the price fell and steadied at the end of December to about five rupees per maund. Independent growers of cane thus recouped themselves in part for the loss due to the bad season, but refiners who had not secured stocks in advance suffered from the effect of high prices. In parts of Rohilkhand the unusual phenomenon was observed of cultivators breaking their contracts to deliver juice to manufacturers, and making gur for their own profit instead. Where, however, manufacturers were able to enforce their contracts they have undoubtedly strengthened their hold over the growers, who were unable to deliver juice in full satisfaction of their advances.

21. The only exceptional epidemic among cattle was that reported last year.
 § 21.—Agricultural stock. Rinderpest had broken out in Jhansi, and during 1907-08 it spread northwards: it gained a footing in Banda, and several animals succumbed to it in Naini Tal and Kheri. Other diseases did not prevail to an abnormal extent, but the failure of the rains and the short area of the rabi reduced the supply of fodder available locally, and the underfed cattle were often overworked in the attempt to provide food for their owners. An extensive fodder famine was anticipated in Bundelkhand and parts of Oudh, but events showed that the people had saved larger stocks than had been supposed. The areas of acute scarcity were eventually limited, parts of Banda being most affected. The measures taken to reinforce the fodder supply have been fully described in the Resolution of the Government on the famine operations and the Board of Revenue have no direct concern with them, save in so far as part of the large advances under the Agriculturists' Loans Act were devoted to the purchase of fodder. This matter will be again referred to in the next chapter.

22. The total area returned as included in holdings shows a further rise of 105,000 acres (64,000 in Agra and 41,000 in Oudh). The rise in Oudh is real, being made up of substantial extensions in Gonda and Bahraich and small increases in all other districts except Bara Banki. In Agra the figures include accumulated increases of several years in Banda (35,500 acres), and Azamgarh (46,500 acres), as statistics for Azamgarh are at last complete and those for Banda are complete for the greater portion of the district. Excluding the figures for these two districts, there is a net decrease in Agra of 18,000 acres. The only important real increase is in the Gorakhpur district (18,000 acres), while the chief decreases are in Saharanpur (13,000), Muzaffarnagar (12,000), Meerut (13,000) and Mirzapur (7,000 acres). The fall in the last-named district can probably be accounted for by the unfavourable season: more than half of it occurred under khudkasht, a fact which suggests that landholders were unable to cultivate the usual area of vacant land. The decreases in the Meerut division are not adequately explained: the figures indicate that landholders cultivated less than in the previous year, and also that some unprotected tenants have abandoned their holdings: probably, however, the decrease should be regarded as a partial reaction after the marked rise in the previous year.

The main changes in the classification of the holdings area are as follow:—

| In Agra.                                 |     |     |     | Acres.   |
|------------------------------------------|-----|-----|-----|----------|
| Sir ...                           | ... | ... | ... | + 33,512 |
| Khudkasht ...                     | ... | ... | ... | — 50,565 |
| Ex-proprietary ...                       | ... | ... | ... | + 5,157  |
| Occupancy ...                            | ... | ... | ... | + 31,611 |
| Non-occupancy 12 years or more ...       | ... | ... | ... | + 63,023 |
| Non-occupancy on 7-year leases ...       | ... | ... | ... | + 9,311  |
| Non-occupancy for less than 12 years ... | ... | ... | ... | — 26,143 |
| In Oudh.                                 |     |     |     |          |
| Khudkasht ...                     | ... | ... | ... | — 36,363 |
| Ordinary tenants ...                     | ... | ... | ... | + 79,079 |

23. In Agra, sir continues to decline in almost all districts, but nearly 63,000 acres have been added in the settlement of Hamirpur and Banda, leaving about 30,000 acres as the usual annual decrease in the rest of the Province. The decrease in khudkasht is more than accounted for in the same two districts, that is, it is due to correction of records: the actual figures for other divisions show a marked increase in Gorakhpur, a slight increase in Rohilkhand and slight decreases elsewhere. The normal growth of ex-proprietary rights is obscured by the correction of records in Hamirpur, which has reduced the area by nearly 10,000 acres.

24. The recorded occupancy area includes a large addition (over 106,000 acres) resulting from the revision of records in Azamgarh: the remaining districts show aggregate losses of about 74,000 acres, which is substantially less than the corresponding figure in the previous year, and should be still further reduced, by a substantial but unascertained amount, to allow for the exclusion of obsolete entries from the records in Banda and Hamirpur. The real loss is more than made good by the growth of unrecorded occupancy rights (holdings for over 12 years), the real increase in which amounts to 164,000 acres (allowing for the decrease due to record of occupancy rights in Azamgarh). The whole area in which occupancy rights have presumably accrued has increased during the year by nearly 95,000 acres.

25. The increase in the area held under seven-year leases is much less than in recent years. Increases are most marked in—

Statement XXXIV-A.

|           |     |     |     |     | Acres. |
|-----------|-----|-----|-----|-----|--------|

| Aligarh   | ... | ... | ... | ... | 6,818  |

| Etah      | ... | ... | ... | ... | 4,035  |
| Bareilly  | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,794  |
| Basti     | ... | ... | ... | ... | 2,714  |

—but on the other hand there is a decrease of over 9,000 acres in Meerut and nearly 12,000 acres in Bulandshahr owing to expiry of the first leases granted. The distribution of these leases over districts shows no marked change.

The decrease in the non-occupancy holdings is the natural result of the factors whose working has already been explained.

26. Oudh as usual presents few features of interest: the decrease in khudkasht is almost uniformly distributed, while the increase in tenants' holdings occurred in all districts, but was most marked in Sitapur, Fyzabad, Gonda, Bahraich and Partabgarh.

27. The total demand of rents, current and arrear, for the whole Province shows a fall of  $4\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs of rupees. Cash rents have increased by 24 and siwai items by 3 lakhs, but grain rents have fallen by  $31\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs, the rise in prices being quite insufficient to compensate for the loss of produce resulting from drought. The following table illustrates the fluctuations in grain rents in some typical districts: the rents are given in lakhs of rupees:—

| Bareilly  | ... 4.5     | 5.3         | 4.3         |
| Bijnor    | ... 6.1     | 6.6         | 4.3         |
| Pilibhit  | ... 4.6     | 5.3         | 4.0         |
| Sitapur   | ... 20.6    | 16.9        | 9.7         |
| Kheri     | ... 10.4    | 8.0         | 5.7         |
| Gonda     | ... 9.1     | 8.4         | 5.5         |
| Bahraich  | ... 21.4    | 18.8        | 10.7        |

In the circumstances of the year a marked fall in collections was to be expected: the following statement shows the percentage of recorded collections (current and arrear) to the year's demand. The classification of collections as current and arrear is in practice made by the landholder and the patwari, and no great importance can be attached to the result:—

| Division.              | 1313 fasli. | 1314 fasli. | 1315 fasli. |
|------------------------|-------------|-------------|-------------|
| Meerut                 | ... 89      | 90          | 73          |
| Agra                   | ... 72      | 93          | 63          |
| Rohilkhand             | ... 92      | 90          | 69          |
| Allahabad...           | ... 78      | 88          | 47          |
| Benares                | ... 81      | 84          | 74          |
| Gorakhpur              | ... 95      | 88          | 82          |
| Lucknow                | ... 95      | 94          | 60          |
| Fyzabad                | ... 98      | 96          | 57          |
| Total—United Provinces | 89          | 91          | 65          |

The percentage given for the Gorakhpur division is probably too high, as the demand is still understated in parts of the division: excluding these doubtful districts, the highest collections were in Rae Bareli (87) and Ghazipur (84); and the lowest in Jalaun (13) and Hamirpur (9). The figures are sufficiently explained by the character of the season.

CHAPTER II—FINANCIAL.

28. The total demand on account of all the sources of income dealt with in this report was  $905\frac{1}{4}$  lakhs or, with various adjustments,  $903\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs, as compared with 839 lakhs and 836 lakhs, respectively in 1906-07. The principal changes are due to increases in the land revenue demand, current and arrear, canal rates and agricultural advances (principal and interest) and to the inclusion, for the first time, of an account of the loans under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. The total collections were only  $715\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs, nearly 81 lakhs (chiefly land revenue and agricultural advances) having been remitted. The balance of nearly 107 lakhs is chiefly due to suspensions of land revenue, agricultural advances and Bundelkhand loans though there are substantial unsuspended balances under most heads of the account, such a result being inevitable in a famine year.

29. The land revenue accounts are shown in statements I, II and III, but it is convenient to deal with them all together. The arrear outstanding at the end of 1906-07 were Rs. 35,049, made up of Rs. 32,067 in statement II and Rs. 2,982 in statement III. The fixed land revenue demand of the year was Rs. 6,44,44,629, so that the total for collection at the beginning of the year was Rs. 6,44,79,678. The demands added during the year were Rs. 39,841 (revenue not on the roll), due to summary assessments of resumed muafi land, revisions in alluvial mahals and similar causes. On the other hand there were considerable reductions, shown as nominal or irrecoverable balances in all three statements, amounting to Rs. 1,10,441. Nearly half this total is due to reductions of revenue by summary revisions in Bundelkhand and Kashipur: nearly Rs. 29,000 are due to periodical settlements in alluvial mahals: over Rs. 12,000 to assignments for loyal services and over Rs. 10,000 to remissions on account of land acquired for public purposes, the balance being due to various petty causes. The real demand under all heads was Rs. 6,44,09,078.

30. The total collections on account of land revenue were Rs. 4,91,61,665, being short of the demand by nearly 152½ lakhs. The real arrear, however, that is, the balance uncollected from the demand which might have been enforced during the year, was Rs. 2,57,145 only. The whole of the remaining balance, except Rs. 49,716 postponed by Collectors of their own authority, was either suspended or remitted under the orders of Government. The real balance is made up of Rs. 2,48,096 revenue on the roll, Rs. 7,134 arrears brought forward from the previous year, and Rs. 1,915 revenue not on the roll. For the continuance of old arrears an estate under the Court of Wards in the Aligarh district is almost entirely responsible. The other real arrears shown in statements II and III are trifling and have been adequately explained. The current real demand of revenue on the roll was collected absolutely in full in the districts of the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, in Meerut, Farrukhabad, Mainpuri, Cawnpore, Fatehpur, Rae Bareilly, Kheri and Fyzabad. The balances in several other districts (among which the Bundelkhand districts may be specially mentioned) are trifling, but they exceed Rs. 10,000, in Almora (Rs. 15,686), Unao (Rs. 20,326), Bareilly (Rs. 22,621), Budaun (Rs. 28,369) and Sultanpur (Rs. 1,16,133). The balance in Almora is due mainly to judicious leniency in collection, a course which was preferred to formal suspension in many cases. From Unao and Budaun no definite explanation of the arrears is offered, but the sums involved are not absolutely large, and the balances are probably attributable to a reluctance to employ severe pressure in a season of distress. In Bareilly the greater part of the arrear accrued in one tahsil which became somewhat disorganised, recovery at the end of the year being impossible owing to the prevalence of fever. The collection of a large part of the balance, too, was definitely postponed by the Collector. The large arrear in Sultanpur was due from two taluqdars, the Amethi estate being responsible for no less than Rs. 1,05,000. The latter sum was however realised early in November last. The case of the Bara Banki district may be specially noticed. Large suspensions, aggregating 8½ lakhs, had been sanctioned at the kharif and rabi harvests, but at the rabi almost all the zamindars ignored the suspensions and commenced to collect rents with vigour. The suspensions of revenue were then cancelled as a matter of course, but nearly five lakhs remained outstanding at the end of the year, nominally suspended but actually due. The whole amount will doubtless be collected in due course. Altogether the results are highly satisfactory in the circumstances of the year and go far to prove the adequacy of the relief sanctioned by Government in the form of suspensions and remissions.

31. Almost the first important step taken when a serious failure of the autumn harvest of 1907 was assured was to call upon Collectors to prepare proposals for the suspension of land revenue. The orders were issued by the Board, under instructions from the Government, as early as 26th September 1907, and throughout the year under report the preparation and examination of proposals for suspension and remission, first on account of the kharif harvest and later on account of the rabi, occupied much of the time of revenue officers of all grades.

Ordinarily relief was granted in the first instance in the shape of the suspension of a definite fraction of the instalments of revenue due at the kharif and rabi harvests respectively, in accordance with the prescribed scale, which allows total suspension when the loss exceeds three-fourths of a normal crop, and suspension of one-half and one-quarter of the instalment when the loss exceeds five-eighths and one-half respectively. In only one district (Muttra) were proposals for the suspension of the kharif revenue worked out on the basis of the loss in individual holdings, the appropriate suspension of rent being first calculated and the consequent suspension of revenue being deduced therefrom. In all other districts the suspension involved either the suspension of a fraction of the rent corresponding to the fraction of revenue suspended, or a suspension of rents equal in the aggregate to double the actual amount of revenue suspended. Remissions were, however, granted in a few districts without preliminary suspension, and in some others relief took the form of a partial immediate remission and a partial suspension. In Bundelkhand in particular not suspension, but immediate remission, was granted in the case of all mahals (unfortunately forming the majority) requiring relief at either harvest, but while the remission at the kharif harvest was uniform for each mahál, at the rabi it was found possible to apportion the relief by holdings and to remit revenue accordingly. Remission was more frequently granted at once in mahals which suffered severely at the rabi harvest, the more especially in those which had required relief at the kharif also, while, after a consideration of the results of the rabi harvest, suspensions granted at the kharif were often converted into remissions. The aggregate of the remissions of revenue on and not on the roll, granted on account of drought, after a consideration of the condition of the two harvests of the year and the previous record of the tracts concerned was no less than Rs. 75,97,375 (over half a million pounds sterling), the remission of about 63·6 lakhs having been sanctioned during the year and of about 12·3 lakhs shortly after its close. Further remissions of suspended revenue have been required on account of local failures of the kharif in 1908, but the history of these belongs more particularly to the current year. Minor calamities, such as hail and fire, resulted in the remission of Rs. 8,168 out of the current demand, and of Rs. 600 out of the arrear demand during the year, while a further arrear demand of Rs. 2,726 was remitted shortly after the close of the year in certain mahals which were injured by hail during the spring of 1907. The aggregate of the suspended demand outstanding at the close of the year was Rs. 73,31,683, but this large total, even when considered in conjunction with the large sum remitted, does not fully represent the extent of the relief granted. The total relief on account of the kharif harvest alone amounted to 114·8 lakhs, and on account of the rabi to 53·5 lakhs, the aggregate of the revenue remitted or suspended for a time amounting to rather more than 168 lakhs, or 26 per cent. of the annual demand. Part of the revenue suspended at the kharif was, however, collected at the rabi, and certain suspensions and remissions were cancelled, owing to the refusal of some zamindars in Oudh to accept them and, generally, because some zamindars collected rents in spite of suspensions and remissions. The total of such cancellations is, however, not large, amounting to Rs. 3,01,312 only. The difference between the 168 lakhs sanctioned and the gross remissions (75·97 lakhs) actually written off plus the suspensions (73·31 lakhs) outstanding—the net difference being about 19 lakhs—represents the amount of suspended revenue collected during the year.

32. A comparison by districts of the remissions and suspensions granted, and the suspended revenue outstanding on 1st October 1908, is interesting. The total remissions represent nearly 12 per cent. of the year's demand, while the total amount suspended for a time in addition exceeds 14 per cent. The suspended revenue outstanding at the end of the year is nearly 11½ per cent. of the current demand. A reference to the figures of each division and the intensity of distress as recorded in the resolution of the Government is made in the following paragraphs.

33. Meerut division.—Except in the hill area of Dehra Dun, no famine relief was necessary. The most serious crop failure occurred in those parts of the Meerut and Muzaffarnagar districts which lie beyond the reach of the canals, and revenue relief representing 15 to 17 per cent. of the year's demand was given in those two districts. Remissions to the extent of 4½ per cent. were given in Meerut. Elsewhere both remissions and suspensions, though they aggregated about 12 lakhs for the division, were relatively small, and the average relief for the division was a little over 11 per cent. About 7 per cent. of a year's demand remains for collection, the highest percentage (12) appearing in the Meerut district.

34. Agra division.—In the Muttra and Etawah districts between 2 and 5 per cent. and in Agra a smaller percentage of the population received famine relief, distress having appeared in the two former by December 1907. These three districts were all for a time classed as famine districts and the others in the division as scarcity districts. The kharif crop was worst in Agra and Muttra, being only 30 to 40 per cent. of the normal; in Mainpuri and Etawah it was from 40 to 50 per cent., and in Farrukhabad and Etah from 50 to 66 per cent. The rabi was generally fair, being less than 66 per cent. (though more than 50 per cent.) in Muttra and Etawah only. The revenue relief amounted to 13½ lakhs at the kharif and 4½ lakhs in the rabi, representing about 21 per cent. of the year's demand. The three famine districts—Agra, Muttra and Etawah—received the greatest relief, varying from 37 per cent. in Muttra to 26 per cent. in Etawah. In the other districts of the division the relief varied from 5 per cent. in Mainpuri to 10½ per cent. in Etah. A small part of the latter district was severely distressed. The suspended arrears remaining for collection exceed 5 per cent. of a year's demand only in Agra (10½), Etawah (17) and Muttra (6). In the latter district floods have recently caused damage and further remissions have been sanctioned. In Agra and Etawah there should be no great difficulty in collecting the arrears almost in full.

35. Rohilkhand division.—None of the Rohilkhand districts were classed as famine districts, though in all of them some relief was required. The crop generally at the kharif was from 40 to 50 per cent. of the normal, but in Bijnor it was only 16 per cent. owing to the failure of rice, the most important kharif crop of the district. The rabi everywhere was above half the normal. The total revenue relief given varied from 21 per cent. in Shahjahanpur to 32 per cent. in Bareilly, remissions varying from 2 to 4 per cent. in Shahjahanpur, Moradabad and Bareilly, to 9 per cent. in Bijnor and 16 per cent. in Budaun. Parts of Budaun suffered severely and liberal remissions were granted, the percentage for the district being thus raised. The suspensions outstanding at the end of the year represent 7 to 8 per cent. of the annual demand in Budaun and Pilibhit, 14 to 18 per cent. in Bijnor, Moradabad and Shahjahanpur, and 20 per cent. in Bareilly. The recent kharif has been good in Rohilkhand and the recovery of arrears should not be difficult.

36. Allahabad division.—The three tracts of this division are the Bundelkhand districts, Jhansi, Jalaun, Hamirpur, Banda and the southern portion of Allahabad; the doab comprising part of Allahabad and the whole of Fatehpur and Cawnpore, the southern portions of which resemble Bundelkhand in many respects; and the part of the Allahabad district lying north of the Ganges, resembling southern Oudh. The whole of Bundelkhand and the doab (except Cawnpore) secured a kharif crop representing less than 30 per cent. of the normal (Jalaun returning only 11 per cent.). In Cawnpore the crop was better, though less than half the normal. The rabi crop varied much even in Bundelkhand, where the Jhansi district records an outturn of 74 per cent., Banda and Hamirpur secured only about one-fourth of a normal harvest and Jalaun less than 20 per cent. Cawnpore obtained nearly a half and Fatehpur rather more than a half crop, while the Allahabad district, taking all its tracts together, secured over 60 per cent. of a normal harvest. The total revenue relief in the division represents 44½ per cent. of a year's demand. In Bundelkhand, where the ordinary scale of relief is more liberal than elsewhere in the provinces, and remissions are at once granted without preliminary suspension, remissions aggregating 27 lakhs were sanctioned, that sum representing between 70 and 80 per cent. of the whole year's demand. The proportion remitted varied from 72½ per cent. in Banda to 80 per cent. in Hamirpur and over 83 per cent. in Jalaun. In the Karwi sub-division of Banda, distress was more acute than in any other part of Bundelkhand, but the rest of the district was less affected, else the percentage of remission must have been higher. At both harvests the results in Jalaun were extremely poor and the district appropriately heads the list for the provinces in respect of remissions. In Cawnpore the total revenue relief was 29 per cent. of the demand, and in Fatehpur about 20½ per cent., the results corresponding generally to the outturn of the combined harvests in the two districts. Remissions represent 11 per cent. of a year's revenue in Cawnpore and 9 per cent. in Fatehpur, and  $15\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. and 5 per cent. respectively remain for collection, part of the suspended revenue having been collected at the last rabi. In Allahabad, suspensions amounting to  $3\frac{1}{4}$  lakhs were given in the areas outside Bundelkhand. They represent 14 per cent. of the total demand of the district, and about 20 per cent. of the revenue of the tracts concerned. The balance is rather high, but so far the Board have no reason to anticipate any difficulty in recovery.

37. Benares division.—The only famine districts were Mirzapur and Jaunpur. Ballia, Benares and Jaunpur secured rather more than half a normal crop at the kharif, Ghazipur less than 40 per cent. and Mirzapur less than 30 per cent. The distress in Jaunpur was confined to the tracts where the important crop is late rice, which crop failed nearly everywhere throughout the division. In Mirzapur the cause of distress was a more general failure of the kharif crops in the upland tracts and the impossibility of securing any substantial area of rabi crops. In all districts except Mirzapur the rabi was fairly good, being returned as two-thirds, at least, of the normal. The revenue relief granted was local in character, being almost entirely confined to those tracts in which the failure of the late rice was not compensated by comparatively good crops of other varieties. Excluding Mirzapur the greatest relief, amounting to only 9 per cent. of the year's demand, was granted in Ghazipur. In Mirzapur however over 29 per cent. of the annual revenue was suspended. The total seems small at first sight, but in the affected tracts the revenue is light, the soil being poor, and the bulk of the revenue is paid from the Gangetic valley which required little relief. The tracts most affected include also the large Government estate of Dudhi, on which no revenue is payable, but in which liberal remissions of rent were given.

38. Gorakhpur division.—The Gorakhpur district obtained on the whole far better crops at the kharif than any other district in the provinces, and, but for the late rice, Basti and Azamgarh were almost equally fortunate. A large tract of Azamgarh and a smaller tract of Basti depend, however, on late rice which, as elsewhere, was almost a total loss. In Azamgarh, as in the adjoining district of Ghazipur, the kharif harvest as a whole yielded less than 40 per cent. of a normal crop, and in Basti the outturn was between 40 and 50 per cent. In all three districts, however, the rabi was good, being fully equal to the normal in Azamgarh, and over 80 per cent. in Gorakhpur and Basti. In Gorakhpur no famine relief was required, but Azamgarh was for a time classed as a scarcity district and Basti as a famine district. Little revenue relief was necessary in Gorakhpur, only 1 per cent. of the year's demand being suspended or remitted. In Basti the relief represented 10 per cent. of the revenue, nearly 6 per cent. being remitted. About  $1\frac{1}{3}$  per cent. of a year's demand remains for collection, and part of this will probably be remitted. The "famine" tract in Basti was restricted to a small area on the borders of Gonda. In Azamgarh the whole of the December instalment of revenue was suspended in the first instance and afterwards remitted in part. The total relief represents  $20\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. of the year's demand and about  $14\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. remained for collection.

39. Kumaun division.—The crops in the Naini Tal district, which lies partly in the hills and partly in the plains, were poor in the autumn and fairly good in the spring and no famine relief was required. The revenue relief was confined to the submontane area and represented only about  $5\frac{1}{4}$  per cent. of the year's demand, about 3 per cent. being ultimately remitted and the remainder collected with the rabi harvest. In the hill districts of Almora and Garhwal the kharif harvest was not very good, but the failure of the winter rains resulted in a very poor rabi harvest in parts of those districts, the crop being most generally poor in Garhwal. Revenue relief to the extent of about 31 per cent. of the year's demand was sanctioned for Almora and 52 per cent. in Garhwal. In Almora, as already noted, leniency in collection was frequently preferred to formal suspension and the district was less affected than Garhwal, where over 44 per cent. of the demand was remitted. In Almora about 12 per cent. of a year's revenue remained for collection and in Garhwal less than 7 per cent.

40. Lucknow division.—Except in the Hardoi district, which secured a yield at the autumn harvest of 40 to 50 per cent. of a normal crop, and Rae

Bareilly with 30 to 40 per cent., the whole of the Lucknow division was unfortunate in obtaining a yield of under 30 per cent. Kheri, Lucknow and Sitapur were the worst, the outturn being only about 20 per cent. of the normal. Hardoi, Lucknow, Unao and Rae Bareilly did much better at the rabi, when from 66 to 77 per cent. of an average crop was secured. In Sitapur the yield was about 61 per cent., but in Kheri no more than 18 per cent. Famine was declared in Kheri, Sitapur and Hardoi, and scarcity only in the other three districts. Kheri was most seriously affected, Sitapur only in parts and Hardoi in a still less degree. Kheri having suffered most severely at both harvests naturally received the greatest revenue relief, to the extent of no less than 87 per cent. of the year's demand. This figure is higher in respect of total relief than that of any other district, not excepting Jalaun, but 65 per cent. only of the revenue was remitted, 22 per cent. remaining under suspension at the end of the year. More remission may be required in view of local failures of the recent kharif. In Sitapur, which, after Kheri, was the most severely distressed district in the division, the revenue relief was relatively small, amounting to little more than 17½ per cent. of the year's demand. In the first instance the then Deputy Commissioner proposed the suspension of the whole kharif instalment of revenue, but the circumstances of the district were not so bad as to justify such a course. The district is moreover largely grain-rented and relief in revenue consequently could not be fully effective in securing relief in rent to the tenants. The grant of revenue relief in grain-rented tracts was therefore confined to coparcenary communities and landlords who were not well-to-do, and many cash-rented tracts required relief only on a moderate scale. In a few cases also, here as elsewhere in Oudh, the landlords refused to accept suspensions or remissions. In the result the total relief granted represents only about 17½ per cent. of a year's revenue, more than two-thirds of the total being sanctioned for the kharif instalments. Nearly 10½ per cent. of a year's demand remains for collection, the rest having been remitted or collected at the rabi. The kharif of 1908 was not good and some further remission has been sanctioned since the close of the year, but the district is lightly assessed and the rents are not unduly high, so that the bulk of the arrears should be capable of collection. In Hardoi, where the grain-rented tracts are less numerous and extensive than in Sitapur, more liberal relief in revenue was sanctioned, the total representing 33 per cent. of a year's demand. The remissions and suspensions were confined almost entirely to the kharif, those for the rabi being relatively small. Over a quarter of the year's revenue has been remitted, and rather more than 7 per cent. remains for collection. The district has undoubtedly received very liberal treatment. In the Lucknow district hardly any relief was required at the rabi, but immediate remissions, representing 23 per cent. of the year's demand, were granted at the kharif. Seeing that the kharif crop of the district was barely 20 per cent. of the normal the relief cannot be regarded as excessive. In Unao also small remissions only were required at the rabi, but the kharif was only a quarter crop and liberal suspensions were granted, representing 35 per cent. of the year's demand. A part of the suspended revenue was collected at the rabi, but over 27 per cent. remains to be recovered. The balance is large, but at present there is no reason to anticipate great difficulty in recovering it. In Rae Bareilly, where the kharif was better than in most districts of the division, suspensions of about one-sixth only of the year's revenue were granted at the kharif and none at the rabi. Part having been collected at the rabi, about 10½ per cent. of a year's demand remains to be collected.

41. Fyzabad division.—In all districts of the Fyzabad division except Partabgarh the kharif crop was less than a quarter of the normal, and in Partabgarh it was little more than one-third. In Gonda, Bara Banki and Sultanpur it was returned at 12 to 14 per cent., in Bahraich at 18 per cent. and in Fyzabad at 23 per cent. The rabi harvest, however, was extremely bad only in Gonda and Bahraich, with yields of 29 and 25 per cent. respectively. In Partabgarh it was good (80 per cent.), in Fyzabad and Sultanpur fair (72 and 69 per cent.), but poor in Bara Banki (42 per cent.). Famine was most severe in Bahraich and Gonda, and severe, but in a less degree, in Bara Banki. It was slight in Fyzabad and Sultanpur, while Partabgarh escaped entirely. The gross revenue relief sanctioned for the division amounted to 39½ lakhs, representing 43 per cent. of the year's demand, that in Bara Banki being equal to the divisional average. The highest figure is reached in Gonda (78 per cent.) and the next in Bahraich (48 per cent.). It is only 20 per cent. in Partabgarh. The figures in Bahraich are low, mainly for causes explained in the case of Sitapur, but also because the Raja of Kapurthala refused to accept suspensions of his kharij revenue, though later he accepted total remission of the rabi revenue of his estates and remitted all his rents. In Gonda they are exceedingly high because the injudicious action of the former Deputy Commissioner forced the Government to sanction the suspension of the whole kharij instalment—a measure which was not really necessary in this or any other district. Remissions exceeding one-fourth of the annual revenue were granted in Bahraich and Sultanpur, of nearly 15 per cent. in Gonda and of over 11 per cent. in Fyzabad. The suspended balances in all districts save Bara Banki and Gonda are moderate, exceeding 20 per cent. of a year's demand in Bahraich only and being less elsewhere. In Bara Banki, as already remarked, the suspensions have been virtually cancelled, the landlords, great and small, having refused to recognise them after the rabi harvest and having collected their rents with vigour. In Gonda the present year started with suspensions exceeding 63½ per cent. of a year's demand. The collection of the balance may be a matter of some difficulty and must in any case be gradual. It may be noted that the whole revenue of the large estate of the Maharaja of Balrampur was suspended at both harvests in order to enable him to finance his tenantry and to provide famine works for their relief. This measure added considerably to the total of the relief in the Gonda district. If the Maharaja's estate be excluded, the outstanding suspensions represent about half the annual revenue of the district.

42. The demand for malikana was collected in full in all but six districts.

§ 42.—Malikana.
Statement IV.

Small balances remained uncollected in Aligarh, Bareilly and Hamirpur. The balance of Rs. 375 in Mirzapur is due in tracts which suffered severely in the famine and is recoverable. The balance of Rs. 750 in Jhansi is due on account of mahals of which the revenue was wholly or partially remitted, the Collector being under the impression that the remission of revenue entailed the remission of malikana. This misunderstanding has been corrected and the arrear will doubtless be collected. The undisbursed balance of malikana was slightly reduced during the year, but where the amounts involved are small, the persons entitled to receive them apply for payment at long intervals and the accounts are not promptly cleared. The constant debit balance shown against the Bareilly district represents an annual payment which has to be made to the Hearsey family. It is doubtful whether the payment in question is rightly described as malikana, and proposals for treating it as a perpetual pension have been submitted to Government.

43. The large extension of the area irrigated from canals has already been noticed. With the rise in area the demand on account of rates, both occupiers' and owners', naturally increased. Occupiers' rate amounted to Rs. 1,02,45,626, nearly 18½ lakhs more than in the previous year, while owners' rate increased from Rs. 1,86,516 to Rs. 2,17,869. The demand for occupiers' rate is the highest on record, having been most nearly approached in 1905-06, when the demand was Rs. 98,34,701. In the Meerut district alone the demand was nearly 18 lakhs, while the Meerut division accounts for more than half the demand for the Provinces, the Agra division being chargeable with more than a quarter. With the arrears of the previous year the total demand for this rate was 102·63 lakhs, of which 100·42 lakhs were actually collected and nearly half a lakh was remitted, leaving an arrear of nearly 1¾ lakhs. Nine districts show a clean sheet and the arrears generally are unimportant, exceeding Rs. 2,400 only in Saharanpur (Rs. 37,117), Bulandshahr (Rs. 16,803), Muttra (Rs. 72,326) and Fatehpur (Rs. 38,486). Except in Muttra and Fatehpur the arrear does not represent as much as 2 per cent. of the demand and it is not serious, but in Muttra it is about 12 per cent. and in Fatehpur about 15 per cent. The Board are aware that the Muttra district suffered severely from the drought, but it is not satisfactory that so large a balance remained uncollected. It must be assumed that the Collector took steps to secure remissions wherever they could be claimed under the rules, and some explanation should have been offered. Fatehpur, as last year, is again prominent for a failure to realize canal dues and the question merits the attention which the Commissioner promises to give it during his cold weather tour. The collections of land revenue have this year been good in that district and the alleged difficulty of persuading lambardars to undertake collections is not an adequate explanation of the large arrears of canal dues. In the matter of owners' rate Muttra is again noticeable as showing the only important arrear in the Provinces. The Board note with satisfaction that in several districts the revenue officers have succeeded in securing remissions where the crops failed and that co-operation with irrigation officers is more common than was formerly the case. The Collector of Meerut was able to relieve the tenants of certain villages from a charge made by the Canal officers for water taken from the Hindan, an impost which seems to have been ultra vires. No demand is shown against the Banda district, for, although the Ken Canal began to be used during the year, no charge was made for water.

44. The total demand for rates and cesses was Rs. 43,67,943 on account of local rate in the temporarily-settled districts in the Province of Agra, Rs. 5,24,890 on account of acreage rate, receipts from surrendered jagirs and road cess in the permanently-settled districts, Rs. 9,26,092 on account of the Oudh consolidated local rate, and Rs. 9,96,887 on account of the Oudh rural police rate—a grand total of Rs. 68,15,812 for the United Provinces. In spite of the fact that the demand of land revenue and these rates and cesses is now consolidated and that collections are first credited to rates, there is an unusual real balance of Rs. 61,393 of account of local rate in Agra, and of Rs. 42,275 and Rs. 50,202 on account of the Oudh local rate and police rate respectively. In the permanently-settled districts, the demand was collected in full. The arrears elsewhere are almost entirely due from mahals in which the whole land revenue was suspended or remitted, the Collectors having used the discretion permitted them by rule in not pressing for these petty demands when the principal demand, that for land revenue, was not enforced. It may be noted that the village watch cess which survived until 1906-07 in the Partabgarh district, and was dealt with in a special appendix (No. XA in last year's report) is no longer in force, and that it was replaced by the ordinary rural police rate in those villages which had not formerly been assessed to that rate.

45. The total number of State properties fell from 633* in the previous year to 623 in the year of report or including the Dudhi Estate, now shown for the first time, 624: twenty-two properties, consisting of fractional shares in mahals, were acquired in the Banda, Hamirpur and Jalaun districts, under the provisions of the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. Twenty-four properties were disposed of in these districts and in Jhansi and Bahraich, and eight properties in the Benares district. The total demand of the year excluding the Dudhi Estate showed a slight decline, falling from Rs. 3,39,258 to Rs. 3,29,322, the decrease being more than accounted for by the release of properties in Banda, which caused the demand in that district to drop from Rs. 31,273 to Rs. 12,852. The Allahabad district contributed an increase of Rs. 5,067, the only other districts which show a marked fluctuation in the demand being Kheri and Bahraich which both exhibit a substantial increase.

Of the total demand only Rs. 2,09,121 or 63·5 per cent. were realized, leaving a balance of Rs. 1,20,201 of which no less than Rs. 46,853 are reported to be irrecoverable. Collections were good in Allahabad, the only district in which State properties are of considerable importance and out of Rs. 1,59,221 collected in the Province of Agra Rs. 1,17,345 appertain to this district. The four Bundelkhand districts and the three Oudh districts—Bahraich, Kheri and Gonda—which suffered most from the famine, contribute the largest items to the outstanding balance, the major portion of which is classed as irrecoverable. The net income after payment of land revenue and rates was only Rs. 1,25,093 as compared with Rs. 1,95,768 in the preceding year. The expenditure on establishment, contingencies and improvements fell, chiefly owing to economy under the second head, from Rs. 54,023 to Rs. 45,540, the balance of profit to Government being Rs. 79,553. With the exception of the Allahabad estates, on which improvements costing Rs. 8,590 were effected, the properties are too small to admit of development. The most important feature of the year was the discovery of embezzlements by a ziladar in the Allahabad district. The culprit was convicted and imprisoned and the system of account employed in these estates is being amplified and improved.

* Wrongly reported last year as 643.

The returns of the Dudhi Government estate in the Mirzapur district are now included in the appendix relating to these State properties, as in view of the orders conveyed in G. O. No. 464/1—53, dated the 15th February 1908, a brief reference is to be made to them in this and future reports. The estate in question, being situated in one of the worst famine districts, passed through a most disastrous year. The rental collections fell from Rs. 21,734 in the previous year to Rs. 12,594 and the forest income from Rs. 2,671 to Rs. 1,733; and the financial results showed a deficit balance of Rs. 3,556 compared with the substantial balance of profit, Rs. 8,257, obtained in 1906-07. Every assistance was afforded the tenantry to enable them to overcome the difficulties of the year and an uncollected balance of rent, amounting to Rs. 9,121, was written off as irrecoverable.

46. Miscellaneous demands amounted to Rs. 1,49,368 as compared with Rs. 1,56,317 in the year 1906-07. The decrease is chiefly due to the falling off of the income of the stone quarries in Mirzapur, where famine conditions and high prices greatly hampered the stone traffic. Out of the total demand Rs. 1,49,882, Rs. 1,42,202 were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 7,680, of which Rs. 1,619 have been remitted as irrecoverable on account of drought, and Rs. 553 suspended, chiefly on account of the revenue assessed on resumed goraits' jagirs in Basti. It would seem that all district officers do not understand what should be included in the statement of miscellaneous revenue and the orders regarding it are difficult to trace. It is clear, however, that important items such as mutation fees and fines and partition fees are not uniformly included. The Board, after further examination of the matter, will issue instructions to ensure the correct preparation of the return in future.

47. The total demand recoverable within the year on account of the price of confiscated, escheated and waste lands was Rs. 613, of which all but Rs. 30 were collected.

48. It has already been mentioned that one of the first important steps taken in September 1907 in view of the approaching scarcity was the preparation of proposals for the suspension or remission of revenue and, consequently, of rents. Another and perhaps even more important step, taken simultaneously, was to ensure the distribution of advances from State funds to cultivators who were unable, owing to the loss of their autumn harvest, to attempt the sowing of rabi crops on the usual scale. The measures taken and their results have already been fully reported to Government and set out in the resolution describing the famine, and it is unnecessary here to do more than summarise briefly the salient features of the year's work. Actual distribution began early in October, and was practically completed for the rabi by the end of November. The principle of joint responsibility, then generally introduced for the first time, was of particular assistance, detailed enquiries becoming unnecessary; but the distribution, conducted as it was on a scale quite without precedent, entailed an enormous amount of additional work on the whole of the revenue staff of districts. The material effects of the distribution were an immediate relaxation of the stringency of credit which resulted from high prices and poor prospects, the sowing of the maximum possible area of rabi crops (practically the whole area which could by any means be irrigated) and an outturn fairly good on the area sown. The moral effect of putting heart into the people was also great. Indirectly the issue of these loans provided much employment, as it enabled the poorer cultivators to employ labour obtainable only at prices which, unassisted, they could not have afforded; and, as a consequence, the appearance of distress was postponed in many tracts, and in several the necessity for general measures of relief was totally avoided. In the same way, aimless wandering and serious crime were, in a great measure, checked. Homes were not abandoned, and the people set to work with vigour to raise what crops they could. In addition to advances for rabi seed and temporary wells, loans were given in the early part of the season for cattle, for sowings of sugarcane, and last, but not least, for well-gear, which was specially expensive owing to the enormous demand created by the large number of wells, permanent and temporary, in use.

49. When the time for sowing the autumn harvest approached the necessity for further advances was foreseen, and large sums were again issued for seed, but on this occasion the people required much assistance to enable them to replace their plough-cattle, worn out by the intense strain of constant work at the wells.

50. The figures given in the appendices do not, unfortunately, exhibit clearly the total of the loans granted for temporary purposes, for in some districts, according to the previous practice, loans for kachcha wells, well-gear and the like are included in statement XIV, having been advanced under the Land Improvement Loans Act (XIX of 1883). In future, if certain proposals which the Board now have under consideration are approved, loans will be classed under Act XIX only if they are issued in connection with some permanent improvement, such as a masonry well or an embankment, all others, granted for temporary purposes, being classed under Act XII of 1884 (statement XV). The total of the advances made during the year came to the enormous sum of Rs. 2,80,67,596 (over £1,871,000 sterling). Of this the advances under Act XII (204 lakhs) and 14 lakhs of those under Act XIX, a total of 218 lakhs, were issued for temporary purposes. The principal items are over 146 lakhs* for seed (99 lakhs for rabi seed and 47 lakhs for kharif seed), over 34½ lakhs for cattle (nearly 4 lakhs in the winter and 30½ lakhs in the summer and autumn), nearly 21 lakhs for temporary wells, over 6½ lakhs for well-gear, 1½ lakhs for fodder and 1½ lakhs for sugarcane. Over 3½ lakhs (the greater part of this sum being included in the above items) were issued to co-operative credit societies to finance their agricultural members, and 6 lakhs were advanced in the Kumaun division to assist the importation of grain into the hills. The divisions in which the largest advances were made were those in Oudh, and Gonda, Bahraich, Sitapur and Kheri are the most prominent districts in these divisions. Gonda alone absorbed nearly 23 lakhs, Bahraich over 12 lakhs, Kheri over 11 and Sitapur over 10½. In all these the famine was more or less severe. In Mirzapur, which also was severely distressed, over 7¾ lakhs were advanced (about 5½ lakhs being issued for the kharif). In Basti, where the condition of the western half of the district resembled that of Gonda, 7¼ lakhs were distributed, and in Agra, parts of which were seriously affected, 8 lakhs, a large portion of which was devoted to temporary wells and well-gear. In few districts in the plains did the total of advances of this class fall below 2 lakhs. The magnitude of the transactions can best be illustrated by the fact that in normal years the total of such advances for the provinces has been 5 or 6 lakhs only.

51. Not only did the necessities of the famine lead to the issue of vast sums for temporary needs, but the Government determined to seize the opportunity of pressing on the construction of masonry wells and other permanent improvements. The way had been prepared in a large measure by the well-survey conducted by the Agricultural Department, and the object-lesson afforded by the success of irrigated crops would, it was thought, have a potent influence in inducing the people to ensure a permanent water-supply. It was made known early in the cold weather of 1907 that large sums would be available to assist cultivators in making such improvements, and so great a demand arose that the resources of the Government were temporarily unable to meet it in full, particularly towards the end of the hot weather. Sufficient provision was, however, made to complete the instalments of loans already issued in part, but the grant of new loans had to be summarily stopped. It is to be hoped that funds will be available in future to meet this large demand, and that the water-supply will be systematically developed. No less a sum than Rs. 61,75,908 was issued in aid of the construction of permanent wells and other improvements (chiefly embankments), over 53 lakhs being assigned to wells and over 8½ lakhs to other purposes. As a result 26,682 masonry wells have been constructed or are under construction, while 4,883 others have been put into a serviceable state of repair. Over 5,200 embankments were made in the Banda district alone, 390 in Jhansi, and smaller numbers in other Bundelkhand districts. In respect of new wells, the following districts are prominent, more than 1,000 new wells having been constructed or being under construction with the aid of takavi in them:—Meerut (1,350), Agra (1,015), Budaun (1,570), Jaunpur (1,008), Basti (3,183), Lucknow (1,375), Rae Bareilly (1,178), Hardoi (1,546), Gonda (1,800) and Bara Banki (1,623). In the four Bundelkhand districts, the numbers varied from 276 in Hamirpur to 383 in Banda. In other districts which suffered severely in the famine the following numbers were constructed or commenced:—Muttra (270), Sitapur (401) and Kheri (404). No new wells were, however, made in Mirzapur. In all other plains districts, except Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bareilly, Pilibhit and Bahraich, the number exceeded 100, varying from 777 in Ballia to 127 in Moradabad. Considered with reference to the number of masonry wells already returned as available, the greatest relative increase has been secured in the Meerut, Agra, Budaun, Moradabad, Shahjahanpur, Basti, Lucknow, Sitapur, Hardoi, Kheri, Bara Banki, Jalaun and Banda districts, where the total of masonry wells previously existing has been increased by over  $9\frac{1}{2}$  per cent. The most remarkable relative increase appears in Budaun, where 1,570 new wells have been added to 4,557 hitherto available.

* The figures differ slightly from those published in the Government resolution on the famine, as advances for seed and kachcha wells were not clearly distinguished in some districts. In other cases the figures have been adjusted since they were reported to Government.

52. The year opened with outstanding balances of principal amounting to Rs. 6,92,134 under Act XIX and Rs. 16,25,622 under Act XII. The new advances made raised the total principal to Rs. 82,93,944 and Rs. 2,20,91,408 under the two Acts respectively, the grand total exceeding 3 crores of rupees (£2,000,000 sterling). Of this enormous sum Rs. 7,81,690 under the one Act and Rs. 62,69,186 under the other were actually due for collection. Of the Act XIX loans Rs. 5,57,016 were actually collected, and Rs. 39,13,619 of those under Act XII, that is to say, about  $44\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs out of a total of  $70\frac{1}{2}$ ; but remissions amounting in all to Rs. 4,13,429 were sanctioned and given effect to within the year. In the Kheri district  $2\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs were remitted. The other remissions were made chiefly in the Agra district ( $1\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs) and represent a large portion of the advances made during the local scarcity of 1906 which had not been collected before the recent famine set in. The remissions elsewhere were small in amount and were given chiefly in Bundelkhand, where the loans concerned were irrecoverable. Of the principal due for collection in the year the balance remaining uncollected and unremitted was over  $1\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs under Act XIX and over 20 lakhs under Act XII, but of this the collection of no less than 11 lakhs was formally suspended or postponed. These postponements were allowed at the discretion of Collectors, under the rules, the outturn of the rabi harvest being, in the tracts concerned, too poor to justify pressure in realizing this demand. They were specially liberal in the Agra, Etawah, Banda, Hamirpur, Jhansi, Jalaun, Mirzapur and Basti districts, where about half the demand and sometimes more was postponed. The unsuspended balance of about  $10\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs is, however, large. It is due in many cases to causes which might have justified a suspension, and in others to a reluctance to enforce collections when hardship might have resulted. It is probable that a little more vigour might have been exercised without evil results in some districts and that the recovery of the first instalments might have been fixed for the last rabi harvest in more tracts. In many of the cases which appear to the Board doubtful the Commissioners have unfortunately not recorded an opinion as to the discretion exercised by Collectors in formally suspending or refraining from the realisation of the demands. Recoveries were, on the whole, satisfactory in the Meerut division, but the Meerut, Muzaffarnagar and Bulandshahr districts show unsuspended balances large in proportion to the year's demand. In spite of the generally favourable conditions of those districts the tracts beyond the reach of the canals suffered severely and probably a judicious discretion was used. The arrears are expected to be made good from the proceeds of the recent kharif. In the Agra division, the real balances are large in Agra, Etawah and Farrukhabad. For the first two districts the unfortunate history of the past few years may be regarded as sufficient justification for leniency, but in Farrukhabad it is difficult to assign any reasonable cause, and neither Collector nor Commissioner attempts to do so. The balance in Muttra is apparently large, but it represents mainly arrears of advances granted before the famine, nearly all of which have since been remitted. In Rohilkhand, Bijnor and Shahjahanpur are prominent, over Rs. 71,000 appearing as an unsuspended balance in the former district and over Rs. 1,15,000 in the latter. From Bijnor it is reported merely that collections were not pressed, while in Shahjahanpur it is probable that the whole sum shown as due was only recorded provisionally for collection. In the Allahabad division the Bundelkhand districts show a record which cannot be deemed unsatisfactory, and the Cawnpore district has excellent figures of collections. In the Allahabad district there is a large arrear of nearly Rs. 86,000, which is apparently due chiefly in the trans-Jumna (Bundelkhand) tahsils, and might have been formally suspended. Fatehpur is, however, backward in this as in some other respects—e.g. the collection of canal dues. In the Benares division, the Ghazipur district shows a clear sheet in respect of its small demand. In Mirzapur the unsuspended balance is small, and only by comparison with districts within the division does Ballia show up badly. Except in Basti (where, however, the unsuspended demand was successfully collected on the whole) the Gorakhpur division did remarkably well, the collections in Azamgarh, considering the large demand, being almost the best in the provinces. The Lucknow and Fyzabad divisions were also very successful, the Fyzabad district showing an absolutely clean sheet. The exceptionally large sums advanced in Bahraich and Gonda were not due for collection within the year. The collections and balances of interest generally follow those of principal. Including arrears of the previous year nearly  $5\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs are returned as due, and nearly 3 lakhs were collected, nearly Rs. 13,000 was remitted with the remission of principal, the balance in arrear being over  $2\frac{1}{3}$  lakhs, of which about Rs. 87,000 was suspended. It is rarely possible to attribute any part of the large arrears to want of attention on the part of the Collectors, but the Board notice with regret that the Superintendent of Dehra Dun and the Collector of Etah attribute some part of their balances to incompetence or negligence on the part of the tahsildars at headquarters, thereby laying themselves open to a charge of indifferent supervision. Reviewing the whole collections, the Board think it may be said that they are on the whole satisfactory and that there is no reason to suggest that Collectors used their discretion injudiciously. The large balance will in many cases have been made good from the recent kharif harvest, a special staff having been appointed to collect current and arrear demands at that season. The work of collection will, however, demand unremitting attention and, in many districts, the retention of the special staff during the next twelve months, and further remissions will be required in areas where the recent kharif has been unsatisfactory.

53. This year, for the first time, a special appendix No. XVA has been prepared, with the permission of Government, to show the progress made in the realisation of loans issued under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. The liquidation of debts settled under that Act was completed early in the year under review and a final report of the proceedings was submitted to Government. Up to the end of September 1907 Rs. 25,97,171 had been advanced, and further advances aggregating Rs. 27,863 were issued in Banda, Hamirpur and Allahabad, bringing the total to Rs. 26,25,034. If the estimated value of the borrower's property was sufficient the loan was made by payment to his creditors, to be repaid by him with interest in equal instalments extending over a maximum period of 15 years [section 21(a) and (b) of the Act]. In other cases the debtor's land was taken under direct management by the Collector as if the settlement had been annulled [section 21(c) of the Act]. At the beginning of October 1907 the total outstandings of principal were Rs. 24,20,744, of which Rs. 16,72,674 was due from the debtors under section 21(a) and (b) and Rs. 7,48,070 from properties held under direct management [section 21(c)]. Equated instalments aggregating Rs. 2,31,322 fell due in the year, but only Rs. 77,486 was collected on account of these, Rs. 43,571 being credited to principal and Rs. 33,915 to interest. In addition an advance payment of Rs. 1,098 was made in the Banda district and was credited to principal. Of the arrears of instalments due no less than Rs. 1,45,363 was formally suspended on account of the famine, suspensions being usually proportionate to the remission of revenue sanctioned for the mahál concerned. The unsuspended balance of principal and interest amounted to Rs. 9,398. The total proceeds of properties under direct management were Rs. 18,159, and in many cases, owing to the famine, the receipts, after paying the revenue and cost of management, were insufficient to pay even interest in full, so that nearly Rs. 16,000 of interest due on loans under section 21(c) remained in arrear. The actual receipts were credited to principal (Rs. 7,218) and interest (Rs. 10,941). The gross result of the year's work was to reduce the principal debt by Rs. 51,887 only and to recover interest amounting to Rs. 44,856. The total balance of principal outstanding at the close of the year was Rs. 23,96,720, and, in the circumstances of the year, progress was naturally slow.

54. The subject of coercive processes and their proper use was exhaustively considered by the Board during the year and their conclusions were reported to Government, a copy of the report being circulated early in October 1908 for the guidance of district officers and their subordinates. Much has been said on this subject in the Board's recent annual reports and some improvement has been visible, but the effect of the detailed exposition of the Board's views cannot be apparent until the returns of the current year are reviewed. Last year it was remarked that the preference for citations as compared with writs of demand was increasing, 18,955 citations having been issued in 1906-07 against only 5,918 writs of demand for land revenue and local rates. The corresponding figures for 1907-08 are 23,651 citations and 3,619 writs, the proportion of the former being still greater than before on a larger total. Several districts hardly used writs at all, and others have been partially converted to a belief in the superior efficacy of citations. The total number of these processes together is not very different from that of the preceding three years, but the amount of land revenue to be collected was, owing to suspensions and remissions, very materially less, so that relatively the number of processes has been high. The number of warrants of arrest (4,685) shows a considerable increase of nearly 1,000 over the figure of 1904-05, the highest in the preceding three years, and an unusually large number (800) of persons were actually detained in custody. Attachments of moveable property (3,765) were, on the other hand, considerably less than in 1904-05 and 1905-06 and only about 300 more than in 1906-07: and the attached property was sold in only 74 cases. Attachments of immoveable property were made to the number of 101, being most numerous in Moradabad (14), Fatehpur (22) and Jaunpur (14). Sixteen transfers of shares were made, 14 occurring in the Allahabad division (9 in the Allahabad district alone). No annulments of settlement or sales of immoveable property were necessary during the year. On the whole, therefore, slightly more real pressure was required and actually used than in more normal years, but an increase was only to be expected, as many revenue-payers in periods of stress defer payment in the hope of ultimate remission. The Board think that the smallness of the increase in the minor processes is in a sense gratifying, in that it shows the relief in revenue to have been adequate. If the increase is partly accounted for by the displacement of irregular methods by legal processes (though it would not be safe to assume that it is) it might be said that collections of land revenue and rates were made without any remarkable difficulty. In respect of other demands processes were, as usual, required to an enormous extent in connection with mutation fees and fines. Over 31,000 writs were issued in respect of fees and fines aggregating little more than Rs. 61,000, while citations were used in 4,526 cases involving a demand of Rs. 8,263 only. Considerable numbers of warrants of arrest were issued in Muttra (149), Budaun (219), Azamgarh (282), and Hardoi (296), the total of such warrants for the Provinces being 1,014, and the demand in respect of which they were issued Rs. 1,751 only. Moveable property was also attached in 6,930 cases involving Rs. 15,725, the largest numbers appearing in Muzaffarnagar (354), Bulandshahr (666), Budaun (314), Fatehpur (410), Basti (657), Unao (476), Fyzabad (1,136), Sultanpur (1,352) and Bara Banki (251). Among these districts Budaun returns no preliminary writs of demand, and Fyzabad reports a number only slightly exceeding the number of attachments. In Meerut also, though the total number of attachments was not large, it was much in excess of the number of preliminary writs. The procedure in these districts requires scrutiny by the Commissioners. No more severe processes were required in respect of the demands under this head, but it is a matter for regret that these petty fees should require so many warrants and attachments, and the Board look to district officers to do all in their power to have the demands regularly communicated to those from whom they are due. The Board will consider whether the abolition of mutation fees and fines, or at least fees, can be recommended. The collection of canal revenue required a moderate amount of pressure in the Meerut and Agra divisions, but little elsewhere. The two sales of immoveable property shown in statement XVI against the Muttra district were due to default in the payment of canal dues. The Fatehpur district is remarkable for considerable arrears under this head, and very few processes, from which it may be assumed (as already suggested) that proper efforts were not made towards collection. Citations seem to have been used with good effect in the collection of under-proprietary rents in Oudh, but no processes are returned from the Bara Banki district, the inference being that no active attempt was made by the Deputy Commissioner to collect the dues of the superior proprietors. It may be noted that, as directed by His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor, Joint Magistrates have been placed in charge of the revenue collections in their sub-divisions, wherever possible.

55. The number of estates attached during the year was 201 as compared with 290 in the previous year. Including the estates which remained over from the preceding year, there were in all 316 estates under management for some portion of the year. One hundred and ninety-three estates were released during the year, leaving 123 under management at its close. As in the previous year, Fatehpur and Bijnor contributed the majority of the estates, 84 estates in them being attached owing to the failure of the co-sharers to nominate a lambardar and 22 in consequence of failure to pay the revenue. No estates were attached in the Gorakhpur or Kumaun divisions, and Sultanpur and Sitapur were the only Oudh districts in which recourse to this process proved necessary. Out of the total demand of Rs. 1,56,797, only Rs. 89,273 were collected, leaving a balance of Rs. 67,524 at the close of the year. Rs. 38,639 were collected in the Sultanpur district alone, in which some large estates were attached. A sum of Rs. 63,832 was credited to land revenue and cesses and Rs. 9,222 spent on management, chiefly in Sultanpur and Azamgarh districts, in the latter of which two large estates remained under attachment from the previous year. Realizations were small, partly owing to the majority of the estates remaining only a short time under management, and partly in consequence of the indifferent character of the seasons.

56. The revenue on the roll was increased at the end of the year by a nett sum of Rs. 3,22,573, the total of Rs. 6,44,44,629 on the roll on 1st October 1907, becoming Rs. 6,47,67,202 on 1st October 1908. The large increase is due principally to enhancements of revenue at regular settlement in Moradabad, Banda and Hamirpur, the first-named district being now chargeable with over 2 lakhs more than in the last year. In several districts also progressive enhancements, due to settlements which have come into force within the last ten years, take effect in 1908-1909 and raise the demand by over Rs. 84,000. One such enhancement (in Bahraich) should have been brought on the roll last year, and not treated as revenue not on the roll. Other increases are due to summary settlements in alluvial mahals and the like. The increase in Banda owing to regular settlement was more than counterbalanced by reductions due to the same cause, and that in some mahals in Hamirpur was partly compensated for by reductions in others. For the reductions shown in statement XVII as due to other causes, revisions in alluvial mahals and the acquisition of revenue-paying land for public purposes are chiefly accountable.

CHAPTER III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

57. The total number of new cases instituted in the Province of Agra during 1907-08 under the Agra Tenancy Act was 304,606, or 20,056 less than in the previous year. There was a decline of 5,078 suits for arrears of rent, and a decline* of 9,007 suits for ejectment and of 3,191 suits for enhancement of rent. Variations in other classes of cases were relatively and absolutely small. Suits of the three classes named formed 80 per cent. of the total number of cases instituted.

58. Suits for arrears of rent were filed to the number of 137,694 in the Province of Agra (Kumaun excepted). The total, although substantially less than the record number of 1906-07, and less than the large number of 1905-06, is still much greater than that recorded in previous years and 33 per cent. in excess of the average of the years 1896 to 1899. There was a large increase in the Gorakhpur division of nearly 3,000 cases, a smaller increase of nearly 1,000 cases in the Meerut division, and little change in the Agra division; but in the Allahabad division there was a decrease of over 6,000 cases, in Rohilkhand of over 2,000, and in the Benares division of over 1,300. The figures of the Meerut, Agra and Gorakhpur divisions are the highest yet recorded, while those of Rohilkhand are higher than in any year except the preceding two. The Benares total has often been exceeded in that division, while that of Allahabad is about the average. The variations are not discussed at great length in the district and divisional reports. It is clear, however, that in those districts where suspensions or remissions of revenue were granted on an extensive scale the result has been a large diminution in the institution of suits for arrears of rent. Of this the figures of the Allahabad division afford a striking example, all the Bundelkhand districts returning far fewer cases than in 1906-07. In other districts variations are usually not explicable on any ground which can be regarded as adequate. In Saharanpur and Muzaffarnagar, for instance, a rise is attributed to the desire of landlords to take tenants at a disadvantage by obtaining a decree for arrears of rent as a first step towards ultimate ejectment. A similar reason is put forward from Etah, but in no other district is such a charge laid against the proprietary body. The cause of a local increase in Ballia is, however, said to be the institution of suits on a large scale on behalf of the Dumraon estate shortly before it was placed under the superintendence of the Court of Wards. In Bulandshahr (where comparatively little relief in revenue was granted) it is asserted that the tenants withheld payment of rent in the expectation of ultimate remission, hoping to reap for themselves the full benefit of high prices. A similar suggestion is made from Mainpuri, but a contributory cause is said to be a growing tendency on the part of co-sharers to sue severally for their shares of rent. On the whole the Board are unable to point to any definite conclusions to be drawn from the year's returns, but it seems extremely probable that the present year will see a very large number of additional suits.

59. With the fall in the number of suits there was a fall in the number of applications for ejectment after decree for arrears, the decline being between 3 and 4 per cent. in both cases. Ejectment was ordered in 7,121 cases from an area of 36,871 acres, less than one-fifth of the total cases resulting in an order for dispossession. The proportion of cases in which ejectment was ordered was high in Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Agra, Muttra, Bijnor, Shahjahanpur, Pilibhit, and Cawnpore, in Bundelkhand and in Ghazipur and Basti. Most Collectors have noted that they instructed Assistant Collectors to allow ample time for payment in these cases, so that any tendency on the part of landlords to take undue advantage of a period of stringency was checked.

60. The number of suits arising out of distrains fell from 2,412 in 1906-07 to 1,919 in the year under review. The figures are unimportant.

61. In suits for arrears of revenue and profits there was a slight decline in numbers, from 8,733 to 8,330. As usual the Meerut district heads the list with 909 cases, Bijnor and Aligarh following next with 646 and 560 cases respectively. These cases give an excessive amount of trouble in the Meerut district.

62. Suits for resumption of rent-free grants were generally instituted on much the same scale as usual, but in the Ballia district the number was suddenly increased by the activity of the Dumraon estate already noticed in connection with suits for arrears of rent.

63. Suits for enhancement of rent can only be filed, under the law, between 30th June and 1st October, and the number of institutions in a given year is consequently influenced to a great extent by the character of the monsoon and future prospects. Also, as a large percentage of the suits are always compromised, it is probable that the majority are instituted only when there is hope of an agreement which can be formally recorded by the courts. During 1907-08 large arrears of rent have accumulated and tenants already in debt are unlikely to have shown signs of acquiescing in a proposal to further increase their liabilities in the near future. The monsoon of 1908, too, was not altogether propitious. The result is seen in a large real decrease* in the number of suits, the institutions being 1,599 less than in 1907. The total number 4,726 is far less, too, than in any year since 1896. The decrease is marked in the Meerut division (739), in Rohilkhand (564), and in the Benares division (214), but is only slight in the Agra division. In the Gorakhpur division there was a slight increase, but the total (234) is even now small, and considerably smaller than in several of the years before 1906. A large part of the decrease in the Meerut division is, however, due to the fact that an entirely abnormal number of cases, a relic of the settlement, had been transferred to the Superintendent's court in Dehra Dun in 1906-7. The real decrease occurred in the Muzaffarnagar, Meerut and Aligarh districts and may perhaps be partially due to the prevalence of malarial fever, particularly in September, the most popular month for institutions. In the Agra division all districts except Etawah and Muttra show a decrease, which is greatest in Mainpuri and Etah. The landlords in Mainpuri seem to have nearly completed the adjustments of their rents after the settlement, so that suits for enhancement are becoming fewer. In Etah, the Collector suggests, the institutions were probably affected by a decision of the Commissioner (afterwards overruled by the Board) to the effect that enhancements must be based on the moderate circle rates fixed at the recent settlement. The increase in Muttra is tentatively attributed by the Collector to the favourable character of the monsoon, but in other districts in which the same might be said (except perhaps Allahabad) there is no striking increase. The Collector of Etawah, being perhaps misled by the gross figures, notes that there was a decrease in enhancement suits, but there is a real increase from 90 to 326 suits in the two years, and no explanation is suggested. In Rohilkhand there is a real decrease in four districts, and in the other two districts (Moradabad and Pilibhit) there is a trifling increase. The Commissioner thinks that the prevalence of malarial fever may have affected institutions. In Moradabad the figures are very low as enhancements are at present almost entirely effected by the Settlement Officer. The majority of the cases shown in Statement XXVI-A are concerned with enhancement. In the Allahabad division the variations in most districts are small. In the Benares division a considerable decrease attributed to the scarcity is observed in Ghazipur, but there was a rise in Jaunpur assigned to the upward trend of prices and a simplification of procedure enjoined by the Commissioner. In the Gorakhpur division these suits are comparatively rare, and only 234 suits were filed in all the three districts.

* When the last day of the revenue year is a holiday large numbers of enhancement and ejectment suits are filed on the first working day in October. The figures relating to such suits in this chapter have been adjusted so as to show all cases in the years to which they properly belong. They do not, therefore, correspond to the figures of actual institutions shown in Statements XVIII-A and XIX-A.

64. In the eastern divisions of Gorakhpur and Benares there was a slight rise in the number of applications for service of notice of surrender, but elsewhere the figures show a decline, and the total number in the province fell from 11,376 to 10,015. This result is remarkable in a disastrous year, but it must be borne in mind that the figures do not represent the total of all holdings relinquished but only of those in which the landlords had refused to accept a notice of surrender otherwise than through official agency. From many districts it is reported that the procedure by notice allowed by the Tenancy Act is unfamiliar and that tenants who wish to give up their land merely leave it, with or without the formality of telling the zamindar of their intentions. On the other hand, several officers attribute the low numbers to the liberal policy of suspending or remitting revenue and granting advances, measures which tended to keep an embarrassed tenantry on their land; and several assurances are given that holdings were not extensively abandoned. As the area under kharif crops in 1908 shows no decline, these assurances are probably well-founded. Signs are not wanting, however, that in places zamindars, instead of suing for ejectment, induce tenants to serve formal notices of surrender. From Basti, in particular, this is reported to be the case; as tenants are said to be at the mercy of the landlords in consequence of the keen competition for land. In Pilibhit, where the competition is rather for tenants than for land, some unscrupulous zamindars have used similar pressure to avoid the accrual of occupancy rights, but not being able to afford to lose the tenants, they have given other land in exchange. Their object has probably been frustrated by the Collector, who caused careful record to be made of such exchanges.

65. The number of suits for ejectment* on grounds specified in sections 57 and 58 of the Agra Tenancy Act was practically the same as in 1906-07, when the figures were higher than any previously recorded except those of 1901 and 1902. There was, however, an increase in the three eastern divisions of Gorakhpur, Benares and Allahabad, a substantial decline being observed elsewhere. In the Meerut division the number is about the normal of late years, and so also is that of the Agra division. In Rohilkhand the figures are over 3,300 less than in 1907, and even less than in 1906, but they still exceed those of any other year since the passing of the Tenancy Act, and are more than double the average of the period before the disturbance caused by the anticipation of the passing of that Act. In the Allahabad division a rise of nearly 800 cases is recorded, and the total is now higher than at any period except in the abnormal years 1901 and 1902. Of the Benares division, with a rise of over 600 cases, the same is true of the total, while a rise of over 5,200 cases in the Gorakhpur division brings the aggregate (20,356) to a figure never yet reached—the previous record (in the period of disturbance) having been under 19,000 in 1901. The total in the Gorakhpur division is now four times as great as it was up to 1900.

66. In the three western divisions all districts, except Dehra Dun, Saharanpur, Muttra and Pilibhit, share in the decrease, the figures in Saharanpur alone showing a substantial rise (of 261 cases). The greatest decreases appear in Aligarh (1,306), Shahjahanpur (1,081), Agra (922), Bulandshahr (783), Bareilly (720), Budaun (711), Meerut (684) and Bijnor (672). Only a small decline appearing in Moradabad, that district with 10,309 new institutions is still far ahead of all western districts, but this year it has been surpassed by Gorakhpur with 12,110. In the Allahabad division, Banda and Jalaun show a decrease, but Fatehpur and Allahabad had large increases. In the Benares division the chief increase occurred in Mirzapur (942), but there was a substantial fall in Jaunpur and Ballia. In the Gorakhpur division the increase is general, but the Gorakhpur district is pre-eminent with a rise of 3,778 cases, bringing the total above that of Moradabad, which district, until now, has recorded the highest number of suits in the province. The increase in Basti (1,186) was also very great, but in Azamgarh (303) it was relatively small. The causes assigned for the decreases are, first, the prevalence of malarial fever in the western districts at the season when suits can be instituted; second, the fact that in many cases landlords awaited the collection of suspended rents and other arrears, which would have been jeopardised by hasty ejectments; and last (assuming that enhancement and not ejectment is the real object in many cases), the fact that enhancements were less likely to be agreed to. In Bulandshahr, however, the decrease is ascribed to the fact that in the preceding year ejectment had been sought of the majority of the numerous tenants who had been given seven-year leases at the time the Act was under discussion. In Ballia the decrease is attributed to the contrast between the action of the Court of Wards and that of the former managers of the Dumraon estate. Increases, where they have occurred, are generally said to be due to the powerful incentive of high prices, noticed last year, which encourages landlords to attempt to secure a larger profit from their land. On the whole the districts which show large increases are those in which scarcity was not severe or general. Allahabad and Mirzapur appear to be exceptions, but it may be assumed that in the former the majority of the suits arise from villages outside the Bundelkhand tract, and that in the latter they relate to villages in the Gangetic valley which, at least in the rabi, did very well. The practical certainty of the continuance of high prices, at any rate for a time, is said by the Collector of Allahabad to have operated to maintain the effort towards enhancement. The Commissioner of Gorakhpur, while assigning this as the principal general reason of the great increase in his division, suggests that a large number of suits may possibly be instituted, not by proprietors against ordinary non-occupancy tenants, but by occupancy tenants against sub-tenants. The same incentive, of course, operates in both instances, but the statistics do not exhibit the two sets of cases separately. On the whole, the Board fear that the decrease in the west is temporary only and that, the present high level of prices being practically assured for some time to come, there is little hope of any permanent relief to the courts. The causes of ejectments, however, being largely economic, must operate. It is only natural that a landlord should endeavour to make the most out of his land, and when he can do so, as in an era of high prices, nothing short of legislative prohibition will prevent him. The prevention of the accrual of occupancy rights is a necessary precaution without which full advantage cannot be taken of a favourable opportunity. The effect on the work of the courts is unfortunate, but it must be borne until the law is changed.

67. As usual in recent years a statement is appended to show the result of the preceding year's ejectments as ascertained in the year under review. It will be remembered that in 1907 the number of suits for ejectment had been very high. As a result it is now seen that in 1907-08 ejectments were carried out in respect of a larger area than in the previous year, viz. 175,251 acres as against 133,884. The area represents, however, about 0·8 per cent. only of the whole tenant-held area of 1906-07, and the ejectment was to a great degree ineffective, the same or other land being given to the tenant to the extent of over 20 per cent. of the total. Nearly 8 per cent. of the land was restored on enhanced rents and 10 per cent. without enhancement. Ejected tenants were in some cases admitted as sub-tenants, or as tenants under other landlords, and large numbers of them held land aggregating 157,635 acres in addition to the land from which they were ejected. Those who are not traced as having been provided with the same or other land held only 68,415 acres, and it is possible that many of these were somehow provided for, through relatives or otherwise. The nett effect of the vast mass of litigation is therefore small, as already observed. Last year the Government deferred passing orders on the abolition of this statement, but the Board now again advise its discontinuance. Its preparation entails much labour in the districts, and the results, though undoubtedly presenting a picture true in the main, are not capable of thorough verification. In particular the figures in the last column are probably exaggerated. The return has served its purpose, and the information likely to be afforded in the future will not materially add to that obtained in the past.

68. In their report last year the Board included certain statistics which showed that the area held by occupancy tenants and non-occupancy tenants of 12 years' standing, or holding on long-term leases for seven years and upwards, had shown a marked and satisfactory tendency to expand, both absolutely and relatively. The area held under long-term leases shows an expansion less marked than in previous years, but, in paragraph 24 of this report, the area recorded as held by occupancy tenants and that in which tenants, though not so recorded, presumably have occupancy rights, are both shown to have increased. The total protected area is now  $13\frac{3}{4}$  millions of acres out of  $20\frac{1}{2}$  millions held by ordinary tenants. The area is both absolutely and relatively greater than in 1906-07 or ever before.

69. As in the Province of Agra, so in Oudh, by far the greater part of the litigation under the tenancy law consists of suits for arrears of rent and various proceedings connected with ejectment, but whereas in Agra the number of suits for arrears was high, though not so high as in the two preceding years, in Oudh the number was lower than in any year since 1892. Applications for ejectment after a decree for arrears were also very low in Oudh, while ejectment was sought on other grounds in less than 18,000 cases—the total being lower than any recorded since 1897. The almost universal decrease in suits for arrears of rent is attributed to the famine on account of which large suspensions of revenue were made at the kharif harvest; and, although collections were possible to a greater extent after the rabi, the landlords seem to have deferred pressing their claims until the hopes of realization should improve. For the same reason notices of ejectment under section 55 of the Oudh Rent Act, which are chiefly used as instruments to procure enhancement, were issued to the extent of only half the total of 1906-07; the decrease is universal and common to notices served upon thekadars, statutory tenants proper and heirs of statutory tenants. Applications for ejectment under section 61 after a decree for arrears of rent were also 908 fewer than in the preceding year, but the number was not much lower than in some recent years. The total area from which ejectments were ordered for arrears is high (44,855 acres), but nearly three-fourths of the total is due to the ejectment of thekadars, chiefly in the Gonda, Bahraich and Fyzabad districts. Ejectment by notice under section 55 of the Oudh Rent Act was effected on a large scale in the same districts, the bulk of the large area concerned being formerly held by thekadars. Everywhere the area from which ordinary tenants were ejected under either section shows a decline. As in the Province of Agra, again, the number of notices of relinquishment of holdings served through the courts was low, being in Oudh lower than in any year save one of the last 12.

70. The figures of the Kumaun division are, like those of the rest of the provinces, lower than those of 1906-07, the total of cases instituted during the year being only 480 under all heads. A large proportion of these were suits for arrears of revenue and profits as is natural in the circumstances of the hill tenures. Otherwise the litigation is not remarkable.

§ 70.—Litigation in Kumaun.
Statements XVIII-C and XVIII-D.

71. The year 1907-08 opened with a large pending file of 107,665 suits and applications under the tenancy law in the Province of Agra (Kumaun excepted) and 1,228 in Oudh. With cases newly instituted, numbering 304,606 and 56,326, the total for disposal was 412,271 and 57,554 in the two provinces. The total is huge and it can only be said that it is less than in the previous year when the grand total was over half a million. In the Province of Agra, the total was only less by about 3,000 than in 1906-07, but substantially less (by about 34,000) in Oudh. Rather more than half the cases in Agra were, however, disposed of without contest, and nearly half in Oudh. The total of cases pending at the end of the year shows a reduction of nearly 6,000 to 101,758 cases in Agra. If, however, pending suits for enhancement and ejectment in Agra be excluded (those suits being all filed at the end of the year and few being capable of decision within it), the balance in Agra is reduced to 13,165 only, and this figure is about 1,100 in excess of the previous year's balance. To this balance the following districts contribute the largest totals:—Moradabad (953), Budaun (881), Jaunpur (852), Benares (841), Basti (667), Bareilly (617), Etah (604), Aligarh (558), Saharanpur (533), Farrukhabad (516) and Meerut (511). Only three other districts show balances exceeding 400. Most ground has been lost in Saharanpur, Etah, Moradabad and Benares, and in the Gorakhpur division, the balance being substantially higher than at the end of 1906-07. In Oudh the number of pending cases is nowhere high, and there was a substantial reduction in Gonda. Of the pending cases in the Province of Agra over 8,000 were suits for arrears of rent, 2,400 suits for arrears of revenue and profits, and the remainder miscellaneous. In proportion to the number of tahsils (in which by far the greater part of suits for arrears are filed) the balance is serious only in the Benares district which, with only two tahsils, had an arrear of 756 such suits; but only three of these had been pending more than three months. The total number of cases of all kinds pending for more than three months was 1,466, of which nearly half were suits for enhancement or ejectment. If the latter suits be excluded, the number of ordinary cases long pending is high only in Aligarh and Muttra (60), Bareilly (70), Bijnor (145), Moradabad (73) and Azamgarh (71). In the following districts there were considerable numbers of ejectment and enhancement suits pending more than three months—in other words, suits which must have been filed in the season of 1907, and were consequently more than a year old:—Aligarh (54), Agra (71), Bareilly (63), Budaun (219) and Mirzapur (74). Most of these were enhancement suits and it is not explained why the necessary local inspections were not carried out in the cold weather of 1907-08. Apart from these, the Board think that there is every reason to be satisfied with the tale of cases disposed of during the year, hampered as nearly the whole staff was by constant calls to executive duties connected with the famine. In many districts assistance had to be given by the deputation of temporary Deputy Collectors, but had this not been done, it is to be feared that the accumulation of arrears would have been exceedingly serious.

72. For the first time an appendix has been inserted to indicate the progress in the disposal of applications for execution of decrees. In 1907-08 as well as in 1906-07 the plaintiff was successful in over 240,000 of the suits and applications disposed of, but in 1907-08 the total number of applications for execution (presumably including applications by successful defendants in respect of costs) was only 122,577. This figure seems low, large though it is. It may be that execution is not necessary in a large number of cases, the decree being privately satisfied, but, on the other hand, this being the first year for which a return has been compiled, it is possible that some applications may have been omitted. Collectors should satisfy themselves on this point. With 11,429 cases pending from the previous year, the total for disposal was 134,006, and all but 16,073 were disposed of. Many districts, however, return cases which had been pending over a year, and a few cases over three years old. Not all District Officers have commented on the figures, and some, very probably, have not noticed that a new return has been prescribed. Others again have discussed the results very briefly. The oldest cases appear to be mainly those in which sale of immoveable property was sought, and naturally the tendency of Collectors was, in a famine year, to postpone sale in the hope of better prices. There must, however, be many cases in which proceedings were not conducted as expeditiously as they might have been, and the Board fear that some Assistant Collectors are prone to allow adjournments on insufficient grounds. The large number of cases disposed of (many of these being, presumably, decrees for possession involving no money) resulted in the recovery of over 20½ lakhs in 45 districts and the disposal of decrees involving about 1½ lakhs in two others. The 16,073 cases pending at the close of the year involve the recovery of over 12½ lakhs.

73. Fewer appeals were filed before Collectors than in any year since 1899-1900, although the number of appealable cases decided by Assistant Collectors of the second class was higher than in some of the intervening years. Appeals were in fact filed in little more than 14 per cent. of the cases in which appeals lay; and more than 64 per cent. of the original decisions were entirely upheld. With the balance from the previous year the total for disposal was 5,355, and all but 563 were decided, but 113 of the balance had been filed more than three months before the close of the year. The total number for disposal exceeded 200 only in seven districts, namely, Budaun (203), Moradabad (252), Ghazipur (284), Ballia (296), Gorakhpur (235), Basti (205), Azamgarh (399). No District Officer in Oudh had more than 160 appeals. The balance in no district exceeds 22, except Azamgarh where 208 appeals remained undecided, no less than 103 being more than three months old. The explanation given is that, first, work connected with scarcity interrupted the regular hearing of appeals; secondly, that Mr. Crawford, the former Collector, was much engaged in writing his final settlement report, and, lastly, that much time was devoted by Mr. Crawford and by the officiating Collector, Mr. Muray, to protecting residents of the district against false civil suits filed in distant places such as Burma, Hooghly and Hyderabad. The other causes were not operative towards the end of the year, but the last is valid if some success was achieved as the scandalous practice aimed at requires drastic treatment. Residents of other districts have been victimised in similar ways.

74. Less than one-fourth of the appealable cases decided by Assistant Collectors of the first class were appealed to District Judges. With arrears of the previous year the total for disposal by Judges was 2,623, of which 1,841 appeals were decided during the year, leaving an increased balance of 782 pending cases, no less than 366 of these being more than three months old. Of the decided cases more than half resulted in no relief to the appellants, and about 16 per cent. only were completely successful.

75. The number of appeals to Commissioners showed a substantial decline of over 500 in all, and, with arrears, the total for disposal was about 300 less than in 1906-07. The pending file, however, showed an increase of 223 at the end of the year. Only in the Meerut and Rohilkhand divisions did the total number for disposal exceed 1,000. In Meerut the number of institutions was about normal, and in Rohilkhand about 200 less than in the preceding year. In the latter division, however, the total for disposal was nearly double the number in any other division except Meerut, but even in Meerut the total was 600 less than in Rohilkhand. The disposal of appeals was satisfactory except in Rohilkhand and Fyzabad where 738 and 240 appeals, respectively, remained undecided. In Meerut the number was 176, but only 10 of these were of long standing. In Rohilkhand 424, and in Fyzabad 125, appeals had been pending more than three months at the close of the year. Mr. Tweedy, Commissioner of Rohilkhand, explains that the bad health of the officiating Commissioner, Mr. Bower, doubtless prevented him from disposing of the usual number of appeals, but another cause was Mr. Bower's disinclination to use section 551 of the late Code of Civil Procedure. Mr. Broun, Commissioner of Fyzabad, states that he was unable to fix dates systematically until June or July owing to the constant calls of famine work. The Board observe that Mr. Pike, when officiating for Mr. Broun at the latter end of September, disposed of 148 appeals in a fortnight, else the arrears would have been still more serious. The Commissioners of Benares and Gorakhpur alone give any opinion as to the general quality of the work of Assistant Collectors. Both comment on the haste and inaccuracy observed by them in many cases, and the Board have reason to believe that in other divisions also the extreme pressure under which work is done has led to avoidable imperfections. Still appeals were filed before Commissioners in only 18 per cent. of the appealable cases, and in 71 per cent. of the appeals decided the appellants were entirely unsuccessful. In only two divisions, Agra and Benares, does the percentage fall below 70 per cent. These figures show that the work is, on the whole, well done, although the standard is not uniformly high.

76. The appeals filed before the Board numbered 598 under the Agra Tenancy Act, 287 under the Oudh Rent Act and 24 under the Kumaun Rules. With 281 pending from the previous year the total for disposal was 1,190. Of these 964 were disposed of, the orders of the lower court being disturbed in 187 cases. Applications for revision under the Tenancy Act were filed to the number of 674. With the balance pending from the previous year the total for disposal was 797. Decisions were given in 720 cases, the orders of the lower court being disturbed in 50 cases.

CHAPTER IV.—SETTLEMENT.

77. As observed in last year's report, settlement work in the province has almost reached completion, and there is little to note except the ordinary progress of work in the few remaining districts. Of the six districts in which operations continued at the close of the year 1906-07, the settlements of Cawnpore and Jhansi were closed by notification, and in Azamgarh the disposal of cases and appeals only remained. The actual work of assessment was confined to three districts.

78. In Moradabad the assessments of parganas Sambhal and Bilari were reported and sanctioned, and the revised revenues were distributed in pargana Sambhal and in parganas Moradabad and Thakurdwara, the assessments of which had been sanctioned in the previous year. Pargana Hasanpur with an area of 553 square miles was inspected by Mr. Boas, the Settlement Officer, and pargana Amroha, having an area of 384 square miles, by his assistant, Mr. Gaskell. The rent-rate reports were received and considered after the close of the year, and the actual assessments should be completed by the end of April, though the fairing of records, &c., will keep the district formally under settlement for some time longer.

Owing to the call on the patwaris for work connected with suspensions of revenue and other measures of relief, the completion of the settlement has been slightly delayed, and it has been necessary to extend the appointment of the Assistant Settlement Officer by six months up to the end of March 1909, and that of the Settlement Officer to 30th April 1909.

79. The laborious and intricate settlement of Azamgarh has practically come to an end. The three Deputy Collectors whose services had to be retained for the disposal of case work were relieved of their duties shortly after 31st March 1908. The few cases still remaining are being disposed of by a Deputy Collector on the district staff who has been specially empowered for the purpose.

Mr. Crawford, who was in charge of the settlement from the end of November 1900, first as a Settlement Officer only and afterwards in addition to his duties as Collector, proceeded on leave in July. The final settlement report has been received since the close of the year, and will shortly be reviewed by the Board.

80. The work of revision under the special rules was in progress in two districts in Bundelkhand.

81. The attestation of khewats and preparation of the memorandum of village customs in Banda were completed. In parganas Baberu, Kamasin and Girwan, the assessments of which were sanctioned during the year, the revised revenues were distributed, and arrangements made for their declaration. The classification of the cultivated area into established and nautor was completed in the two parganas remaining to be assessed. Pargana Mau, with an area of 317 square miles, was inspected by Mr. Humphries, the Settlement Officer, and pargana Karwi, having an area of 461 square miles, by Mr. Drake-Brockman, the Assistant Settlement Officer. The rent-rate reports were received and considered by the Board after the close of the year. The assessments of pargana Karwi had only been worked out in the rough when Mr. Drake-Brockman left the settlement for work connected with the district gazetteers, and it has now devolved on Mr. Humphries, aided by the personal knowledge of the pargana gained by him as sub-divisional officer, to complete the assessments from the notes left by Mr. Drake-Brockman. The withdrawal of patwaris for work connected with the famine and the annual registers has also contributed to delay the completion of the settlement, and the original term of the Settlement Officer's appointment, which expired on 22nd October 1903, was extended to the end of February 1909. The assessments of pargana Mau have been examined by the Board and those of pargana Karwi are under examination, and it was expected that all work would be finished before Mr. Humphries left the district.

82. The assessments of parganas Mahoba, Rath, Jalalpur and Muskara of the Hamirpur district were sanctioned during the year, and the revised revenues were declared and distributed. The Assistant Settlement Officer, Mr. A. F. Fremantle, left the settlement on 14th November 1907, and Mr. Raw, the Settlement Officer, who had returned from leave at the beginning of the year, inspected and assessed the remaining pargana of Kulpahar, having an area of 559 square miles. The rent-rate report was received and considered during the year, and the assessments were sanctioned shortly after its close. All work connected with the settlement was finished by 22nd October 1908, within the term for which Mr. Raw's appointment as Settlement Officer was sanctioned. The final report has been received, and is being reviewed.

83. The inspection of pargana Jhansi of the Jhansi district, under the fluctuating system of assessment, which was fixed for 1315 fasli, was postponed under the orders of Government, as cultivation was found to be at its minimum, and a revision of the revenue on the basis of the existing cultivation would have resulted in a considerable loss of revenue to Government. For similar reasons the settlement of the Government estate in pargana Dudhi in the Mirzapur district, and the inquiry into the condition of some over-assessed villages of the Unao district with a view to reductions of revenue, were postponed for a like period. In Dudhi, a Deputy Collector has, since the close of the year, been appointed to revise the assessment. In Fatehpur, the settlement of which was extended by 10 years, the current demand appears to the Board to be heavy and unequal, and the question whether a revision should not be undertaken at once will shortly be referred for the orders of Government.

84. The survey of pargana Bhitauli of the Bara Banki district has been completed. With the cessation of survey work, the appointment of Deputy Director of Surveys terminated on 30th September 1908.

85. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 11,508. Including 10,416 cases outstanding at the close of last year, the total for disposal was 21,924, of which 14,352 cases were decided. The balance of 7,572 is composed chiefly of cases relating to enhancement of rent.

86. Appeals to Settlement Officers numbered 625, of which 413 were decided. Commissioners disposed of 144 appeals out of 229, the balance relating chiefly to the Moradabad settlement.

87. The cost of settlement operations during the year was Rs. 2,30,019. In Hamirpur, where the accounts are closed, the cost of settlement was Rs. 53.2 per square mile.

88. The following table shows the old and new revenues of the tracts

CHAPTER V.—GENERAL.

89. Lambardars in the United Provinces invoked the assistance of Collectors in recovering revenue due by co-sharers in 1,777 cases involving Rs. 70,805. With the pending cases of the previous year the total for disposal was 2,085, involving Rs. 92,629. No less than 867 cases were pending at the close of the year, involving the collection of Rs. 39,638. This process is by far most popular in the Meerut division where the lambardari system is still firmly established; elsewhere such applications are few as the lambardars apparently prefer to sue or are ignorant of their privileges. In Meerut the applications were much more numerous than in the preceding year, the greatest rise appearing in Aligarh, where the Collector insisted on separate applications being filed in respect of each section of the khevat. Altogether the balance for recovery in Meerut was large and elsewhere collections were not good, except in the Fyzabad division. The returns of coercive processes used in the collection of these dues are not satisfactory. Only 51 writs and 63 citations were used as a preliminary, but attachments of moveables numbered 210. These figures do not indicate any real or methodical attempt to collect dues for lambardars, and it is to be feared that the matter is generally regarded with apathy, if not by Collectors, at least by tahsildars. Lambardars having paid, they were entitled to energetic assistance in recovering revenue from co-sharers, but they seem not to have obtained it.

90. In Oudh the recovery of under-proprietary rents on behalf of superior proprietors was not demanded to the same extent as in the previous year, particularly in the Fyzabad and Sultanpur districts. More applications than before were, however, made in Hardoi and Bara Banki. Including arrears the total number of cases for disposal was 2,898 involving the recovery of 3½ lakhs. Over 2½ lakhs were actually recovered, but 661 cases involving Rs. 92,128 were pending at the close of the year. The balances are most serious in Hardoi, Sultanpur and Bara Banki, all of which districts compare unfavourably with Fyzabad, where little more than Rs. 1,000 was unrealised out of a demand exceeding 1¼ lakhs. With reference to the Government review of last year in which some doubt was expressed as to the legality of the action taken by the Deputy Commissioner of Par-tabgarh, Mr. Pike has explained that he does not, as the Government assumed, demand any proof. All that he requires is a statement of the specific sum claimed from each under-proprietor. This action has, Mr. Pike maintains, resulted in relieving him of work by forcing talukdars to make out phints (detailed demand lists) for themselves and ask for payment of the exact sum due from each defaulter. When claims are made from individuals there is far less difficulty in collection. It would be well if Deputy Commissioners of other districts tried this plan, which seems to the Board perfectly legal provided joint liability is not ignored in the last resort. Citations seem to have been freely used as a preliminary process in Fyzabad, Gonda, Sultanpur and Hardoi; and in Gonda little further pressure was required. In Fyzabad large numbers of warrants of arrest and attachments were also issued and in Sultanpur more attachments than citations. In Sultanpur also several attachments of immoveable property were resorted to. It is to be hoped that the recent instructions as to the proper use of coercive processes will result in an improvement during the current and future years.

91. In the year ending 30th June 1908 there was a further slight rise in the number of transfers recorded in the registers of proprietors and under-proprietors, the total being 246,937, or 5,000 more than in the previous year. The number of private sales of revenue-paying land rose by nearly 4,000 to 32,021, the revenue of the land sold being 5½ lakhs and the average revenue involved in each transaction being little more than Rs. 16. The total of sales by order of courts increased by 28, and such sales of revenue-paying land were fewer by 131, the revenue involved in each case averaging, as last year, under Rs. 40. The number of usufructuary mortgages recorded rose by only 132, but nearly 3,000 fewer redemptions of mortgage were brought on the registers. Sales by order of court show no striking variation in any division. The increase in private sales was common to all divisions save Fyzabad and was relatively greatest in Meerut, Agra, Allahabad, Gorakhpur and Kumaun. All districts of these divisions show some increase, the rise exceeding 20 per cent. in Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bulandshahr, Muttra, Mainpuri, Cawnpore, Banda, Hamirpur, Jalaun, Azamgarh and Garhwal. In other divisions Moradabad, Pilibhit, Mirzapur, Ballia and Kheri show similar increases, but the figures are not high in any of these. Mortgages show no marked variations anywhere except in the Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions, a considerable increase of 2,765 in the former being more than balanced by a fall of 3,372 in the latter. In neither case is any adequate explanation forthcoming: but a remarkable fact is noticed in several districts, namely, that a rise in the number of mortgages is accompanied by a rise in the number of redemptions, and it is suggested that existing mortgages were merely redeemed as a preliminary to raising a larger loan than before. Altogether the figures do not throw much light on the effect of the scarcity; in fact it is possible that the effect will be more marked in the next year or two. At least it is improbable that out-and-out sales during the year were a direct result of the unfavourable seasons, and as mortgages did not increase it may be hoped that exceptional borrowing was not necessary.

92. Succession cases increased by 1899 to 139,901. There was a very large increase in the Meerut division and a very large decrease in the Fyzabad division. In Rohilkhand there was a smaller increase and in Gorakhpur a smaller decrease, the variations elsewhere being less marked. In the western divisions it is probable that the virulent epidemic of plague in the hot weather of 1907 showed its effects on the returns of the past agricultural year. In the Fyzabad division the decrease is probably attributable chiefly to the absence of unusual necessity for correcting the khewats which had in one or two previous years received special attention. Only in Etawah and Basti do the Collectors suggest that the decline of succession cases is due to bad reporting, and that the result will be a deterioration in the land records.

93. In a year such as that under review it is perhaps natural that the number of applications for partition should have declined, for co-sharers cannot on the whole have had much money to spare for comparative luxuries. Applications for perfect partition were in fact fewer by 408 than in 1906-07, and for imperfect partition by 300, the gross numbers being 1,025 and 2,396, respectively, a total of 3,421 cases. The total was much less than the number pending at the beginning of the year (4,482), but the pending file at the close of the year was actually greater by 43 cases than at the beginning. There was a slight reduction of 54 cases in the number of pending applications for perfect partition, but a rise of 97 cases of imperfect partition. On the whole, therefore, in the matter of perfect partitions the courts did more than hold their ground, and there is a noticeable increase only in the Azamgarh district, from 63 pending cases to 107. The balance is still high, however, in Saharanpur (74), Meerut (79), Aligarh (86), Etah (71), Cawnpore (95) and Jaunpur and Basti (67). The pending file of imperfect partitions was also reduced in the majority of districts, important exceptions being Bareilly, Bijnor, Shahjahanpur, Gorakhpur and Azamgarh. The total remaining for disposal exceeded 100 in Saharanpur (136), Muzaffarnagar (124), Meerut (189), Bijnor (152), Budaun (131), Moradabad

(142), Gorakhpur (440), Basti (177), Azamgarh (212), and Almora (111). Some very old cases of over three years' standing were still pending on 1st October last in Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Meerut, Aligarh, Muttra, Farrukhabad, Mainpuri, Etah, Bijnor, Moradabad, Benares, Jaunpur, Ghazipur, Ballia, Gorakhpur, Azamgarh, Lucknow, Gonda and Bara Banki. In nearly all of these the pending file is heavy, as above noted, but in some of them the courts themselves are to blame, as methodical work is not always practised. Appeals to various courts and bad work on the part of amins are accountable for some important delays, while in some districts the other work falling to the lot of the partition officer has prevented him from devoting sufficient time to these cases. In Moradabad partition work has been almost at a standstill during the settlement. The Collectors of Azamgarh, Saharanpur and Aligarh are of opinion that an extra officer is required on the staff of those districts, and the Commissioner agrees in the case of Saharanpur. The Board will consider any separate proposals which may be made.

94. The partitions actually effected resulted in an increase of 1,865 in the number of mahals and 6,336 in the number of pattis. The formation of very small mahals is prohibited by the Act, but there is no limit to the number of pattis, and sub-division continues to become more and more minute. This year some pattis have been formed of no more than two biswas (one-sixteenth of an acre) and very many instances are given of absurdly small areas being divided off. The matter has been already before the Government and will doubtless be taken up when the Land Revenue Act is next revised.

95. The employment of patwáris in partition work has been much commented on by district officers both in their annual reports and in their letters submitting proposals for partition establishment during the coming financial year. The general opinion is that the employment of patwáris is not popular with parties, and that the work is not done so well or so expeditiously by them as by amins. In fact it is seldom that a patwári has experience sufficient to fit him for this work. Those who are fit may well be employed as regular amins. The Board will take up the question of the continued employment of patwáris, and, if necessary, will submit proposals for a change in the rules.

96. The number of appeals instituted before Collectors showed a decline of about 400, and the total for disposal, including arrears, was 6,550. Of these 5,770 were decided, the pending file being reduced from 843 at the beginning of the year to 780 at its close. The number pending for more than three months shows a regrettable rise from 127 to 223, such cases exceeding 10 in Saharanpur (33), Aligarh (22), Gorakhpur (28), Azamgarh (69) and Bara Banki (13). In Bara Banki the total volume of appellate work is not so heavy as to justify delay in the disposal of so many cases, and in Azamgarh the arrears are much higher than they should be, presumably for the reasons given for the large balance of appeals under the Tenancy Act. In the other districts appeals in partition cases form the bulk of the old arrears, and these cannot, under the law, be promptly disposed of.

97. Appeals to Commissioners show little variation. The number of institutions was 2,453, the total for disposal was 2,911, and the pending balance was reduced from 458 to 435. The heaviest work under this Act, as under the Agra Tenancy Act, fell to the Commissioners of Gorakhpur (736 cases), Rohilkhand (460) and Meerut (493). The pending balances were high in Meerut (101), Rohilkhand (102), Gorakhpur (96) and Fyzabad (81), but cases pending over three months were numerous only in Rohilkhand (22) and Fyzabad (48). The reasons are similar to those given with reference to appeals under the tenancy law.

98. Before the Board 421 appeals and 107 applications for revision were filed under the Land Revenue Act. With 126 cases pending from the preceding year the total for disposal was 654. Of these 554 were decided, the orders of the lower court being disturbed in 39 cases only. The appeals, &c., before the Board under the tenancy laws have already been noticed. Including 44 appeals from the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares, the total judicial business of the Board arising under all Acts was 2,685 cases, of which 410 were pending at the close of the year as compared with 537 at the beginning.

Statement XXIX.

99. Including arrears from the previous year Collectors in the Province of Agra had a file of 5,793 decrees for the sale of ancestral property for execution on transfer from the civil courts under section 320 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882. Of these decrees 3,581 were disposed of during the year, sale of the whole property being unavoidable in about one-third of the total. Part only of the property was sold in 76 cases, and in 50 leases, mortgages, and similar measures avoided a sale. No less than 2,282 decrees were otherwise disposed of, the majority being satisfied in full or the sale being set aside on payment of the amount decreed with the usual penalty, or private arrangements having been made. Other cases were withdrawn or struck off on account of formal defects. One Commissioner has suggested that the results obtained by transferring these decrees to Collectors for execution are not worth the labour imposed upon those officers and their staff, but the Board think that the indirect effect of the procedure is valuable. Its advantage lies not merely in what it achieves, but in what it prevents. The sanction of the Lieutenant Governor was sought for the sale of ancestral land under section 20 of the Oudh Laws Act, 1876, in the case of 693 decrees of civil courts and 229 decrees of revenue courts. Sanction was accorded in 430 cases, sale actually taking place in 240. Similar sanction in respect of self-acquired property was sought from Commissioners in 105 cases, sale being allowed in 63 cases, but actually carried out in 12 only. Owing to the state of the market for land during the famine, sanction to sales was withheld from March last.

100. The work connected with the acquisition of land was heavy during the year, no less than 10,251 acres having been acquired at a total cost nearly approaching 20 lakhs. Special officers were at work in the districts of Allahabad, Dehra Dun, Jalaun, Mirzapur, Sitapur and Bara Banki in connection with this business. Of the total area acquired 3,828 acres were taken up for railways, 4,065 acres for canals, and the remainder for other public purposes. The chief railway projects for which land was required were at Agra, an extension of the East Indian Railway premises; at Cawnpore, a goods-yard for the Bengal and North-Western Railway and mill sidings for the Bombay, Baroda and Central India Railway; in the Budaun, Bareilly and Etah districts, the Bareilly-Soron extension of the Rohilkhand and Kumaun Railway; in Allahabad, the Benares-Allahabad extension of the Bengal and North-Western Railway; in Jalaun, the Kunch-Jalaun branch of the Great Indian Peninsula Railway; and in Sitapur and Bara Banki, the branch line from Sitapur to Burhwal on the Bengal and North-Western Railway. The land acquired for the Canal department was chiefly taken up in small plots for minor improvements, but considerable areas were dealt with in Agra (Lower division, Agra Canal); in Cawnpore and Fatehpur (Lower Ganges Canal); in Banda (Ken Canal) and in Hamirpur (Dhasan Canal). Extensive areas were taken up in Dehra Dun, Lucknow and Meerut for military purposes. The area relinquished and sold was 418 acres, the price realised being Rs. 12,420.

101. The total real demand for land revenue and rates being much less than usual in consequence of large suspensions and remissions the use of money-orders in payment of these dues naturally declined. Nevertheless over a quarter of a million such orders were used (about 26,000 less than in the previous year) for the payment of over 44 lakhs, the decrease being almost general, but most marked in those districts in which a large part of the revenue was suspended or remitted. On the other hand miscellaneous dues were paid nearly everywhere, except in Bundelkhand, by money-order more extensively than in 1906-07, the number of orders having risen by over 31,000, and the amount remitted, by nearly Rs. 56,000, to over 12½ lakhs. The increase is chiefly due to the exceptional amount of canal rates in the western districts, and to the re-payment of takari, which was due in several districts after the last rabi harvest. Some part of the increase is probably due, however, to the growing popularity of remittance by money-order and, though there was a decline in remittances by this means to pay land revenue and rates, the decline is less in proportion than the temporary reduction in the demand.

102. The decrease in the use of money-orders for the remittance of rent is much more marked, the amount having fallen by nearly five lakhs or 28 per cent. Every division shows a decline, those of Oudh being most conspicuous, as might be expected in view of the poor collections of rent generally. Six districts only show an increase, but only in Fatehpur and Unao is it important. In Fatehpur the system is said to be increasing in popularity, but from Unao no explanation is suggested.

103. The number of letters received and issued on the revenue side in the English offices of districts shows a considerable rise from the figure of 1906-07, nearly 21,000 additional letters having been written and over 11,000 more having been received. In the Meerut and Agra divisions there was little change, but elsewhere the increase of correspondence was substantial and common to nearly all districts. Scarcity and takavi are accountable for the increase in most cases. It is not explained, however, why the Garhwal district office which in the preceding year issued only 4,743 letters suddenly increased its correspondence to 7,164, a figure exceeded only in Lucknow and approached only in two or three other districts. Only five District Officers make a definite complaint that their English office staff is insufficient—namely, those of Dehra Dun, Almora, Bijnor, Basti and Gonda—but this is not the place to discuss their needs. The Board have already expressed the opinion that the scale of district establishments generally requires readjustment, and doubtless the question will be taken up by Government at the earliest opportunity.

104. In the vernacular departments, the total number of cases instituted in district offices on the revenue side increased by about 70,000, and with arrears of the previous year the total number of cases for disposal was well over two millions. The pending file at the close of the year was also unfortunately higher by about 27,000 than in the previous year, closely approaching a quarter of a million cases. It has been seen, however, that the pending file of judicial cases at the beginning and end of the year was practically unchanged. The chief disturbing factor in miscellaneous business was, in fact, the number of records made in relation to takavi, the total exceeding 165,000 as compared with 41,000 in the previous year. The number of these still pending on 1st October 1908 was 27,632 as against 5,260 a year before, an increase of over 22,000. Etah, Azamgarh, Sultanpur and Bara Banki strangely show no institutions of cases under this head. The number of other miscellaneous cases instituted declined by about 28,000 and the pending file was reduced by over 35,000 during the year, so that, on the whole, the district offices more than kept pace with their miscellaneous work. The decrease in institutions was fairly general, but there were substantial increases in Budaun, Moradabad, Cawnpore, Gorakhpur, Basti, Azamgarh, Almora, Garhwal and Sultanpur. In Azamgarh and Sultanpur the increase should probably be attributed to takavi cases, not separately recorded. In Gorakhpur there was an enormous rise, apparently real, from 58,000 to nearly 81,000, and the pending file shows an increase from 5,400 to 8,900. In Azamgarh, which had the highest pending balance last year, there was a decrease from 10,300 to 8,000. The pending file approached or exceeded 4,000 cases in Saharanpur, Meerut, Bulandshahr, Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Moradabad and Allahabad, and in all of these except Saharanpur and Moradabad the pending file actually increased, though not seriously. Allahabad and Farrukhabad apparently lost most ground. There was a universal, though not very large, rise in the districts of Oudh, Lucknow and Sultanpur showing the highest pending files of about 2,600 cases.

105. At the close of the last revenue year the Thomason College Press had on hand for reproduction seven tahsili maps, of which two were redrawn. One tahsil map of the Allahabad district and a revised index map of the United Provinces were sent by the Board to the College Press during the year under report. Of the total number six tahsili maps were printed and issued during the year, leaving three maps in hand.

106. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 10,57,053 as against Rs. 6,30,214 shown in the previous year. The increase of over four lakhs is due to the fact that a number of items were omitted by some district officers from their statements in previous years, but have been included by them this year under instructions issued by the Board.

107. The experience of the year has naturally brought into prominence several questions connected with the revenue administration, particularly suspensions and remissions of revenue and the grant of State loans for agricultural purposes. In the apportionment of revenue relief the drawback to uniform suspensions and remissions, that is, the practical impossibility of apportioning relief to tenants with some consideration of their ability to pay, has often been brought to notice; and incidentally the question has been raised whether landlords should be permitted to determine the relief to be given to each tenant. The necessity for, and the effect of, suspensions and remissions in grain-rented tracts has also been the subject of much discussion; and, generally, the working of the rules regarding suspension and remission has been reviewed. In connection with takavi the system of repayment by equated instalments has been much criticised and various difficulties (chiefly of accounts) arising from the distribution of advances on a large scale have required consideration. This is not the place, however, to discuss these questions. The views of the Board have been communicated to the Government and the conclusions finally reached will doubtless be made known shortly.

108. The appointment of the Royal Commission on Decentralisation led to an exhaustive inquiry into the possibility of delegating authority in all matters under the control of the Board of Revenue. The more important results are that Commissioners will have the final power to sanction all assessments of alluvial mahals and some other summary assessments; the powers of District Officers to fill appointments of Tahsildars and Naib Tahsildars in short vacancies and to make appointments to the ministerial staff of their offices have been enlarged: the power to sanction pensions for retiring officials has been delegated to the authority which appoints to the vacancy; and it has recently been decided to dispense with the detailed control hitherto exercised by the Board over proceedings connected with the acquisition of land.

109. Not every District Officer or Commissioner has described the position of the district or division in his charge after the famine. Where, however, the subject is discussed there is gratifying testimony to the rapid recovery already visible early in the cold weather; only in a few scattered tracts is the effect of the past scarcity still apparent; and in those cases recovery has not been possible owing to the partial failure of the recent kharif harvest. From Bundelkhand in particular the district officers write in a cheerful strain, pointing to the considerable improvements made as a direct result of the famine, and asserting that the measures taken and the experience gained will fit both the people and the administration to grapple better with future distress. There is nothing in the statistics and reports reviewed in the foregoing paragraphs to give cause for anxiety, except perhaps in the districts of Muttra and Kheri. In the former district several local scarcities had been experienced of late years before the recent widespread famine, and in 1908 the monsoon gave actually too much rain, the seed being washed out of the ground on the slopes, and the growing crops being destroyed by floods in large areas. The Collector takes a gloomy view of the situation, pointing to rack rents, a high revenue based upon them, and a decline in the area held by occupancy tenants as important obstacles to a restoration of prosperity. Mr. Calnan is, however, to submit a special report on the district generally and possible remedies will be discussed in due course. In Kheri, the situation is entirely the result of a cycle of years of deficient rainfall. The water-level has fallen remarkably, and large swamps have dried up. Even the sal forest in parts of the district is dying for want of moisture. The revenue is, however, light (it represented in 1906-07, local rates included, not more than 30 per cent. of the rental collections); and the rents are, on the whole, substantially lower in incidence than in neighbouring districts. All that can be done, therefore, is to treat the district liberally in the matter of revenue suspensions or remissions, pending a restoration to prosperity by a year or two of ample rainfall. If the landlords will work with the Government, extending to the tenants the relief which the Government may offer to them, it may be hoped that the district will emerge successfully from the present period of depression. These two districts and a few isolated tracts elsewhere being excepted, the immediate outlook may be regarded as fair everywhere and in the majority of districts not at all unsatisfactory. The crops, on the whole, promise sufficiently well to ensure the punctual recovery of the current demand for land revenue, as well as the greater part of the suspended demand ; while the enormous amount of takavi outstanding should be substantially reduced, that advanced during the famine and for the harvests of the present year being recovered in full in most districts. The staff, whose exertions have already received the cordial acknowledgments of the Government, are shown by the present report to have kept pace with their regular work in spite of the extra burden cast upon them by the constant calls of famine duty, and it is pleasing to note that the present year started with no exceptional arrears.

110. The normal limit prescribed for this report has already been exceeded, as the Board have felt themselves bound to discuss at considerable length the exceptional features of an exceptional year, but they cannot close without a reference to certain other matters mentioned in the district reports. Looking to the future, more than one officer discusses with some apprehension the possible effect of a prohibition of poppy cultivation. The necessity and possibility of further developing sources of irrigation (apart from wells, the construction of which will doubtless be systematically assisted) is also referred to. In Bundelkhand, in particular, a continuance of the policy of constructing and improving reservoirs and embankments is urged, for not only will irrigation improve, but the water-level will be raised in places where it is now undesirably low. In Basti several of the numerous streams, and perhaps even the Rapti, could be utilised to fill canals. It has been remarked that, as a result of the hard times, there was an increase in the emigration from the eastern districts of persons in search of employment in distant parts, whether in Government service, factories, mines or mercantile or private establishments, but not without benefit to the families left behind. In Azamgarh alone the post-offices disbursed 21 lakhs of rupees remitted by private money-orders. In many districts the co-operative banks were extremely useful, each in its degree, in assisting to finance the cultivating community. In Unao, for instance, the banks dealt with 25,000 clients and the annual turn-over was 10 lakhs of rupees. The cry there, as elsewhere, is for more capital. The previous success of investments encouraged the establishment of still more cotton gins and presses, though the poor crop of 1907-08 resulted in the temporary closure of some existing factories, while others were run at a loss. A spinning mill worked by electric power was established in Aligarh, and another, worked by steam, at Moradabad. Weaving schools were in working order in the latter district and in Bara Banki, whence fly-shuttle looms have been supplied to weavers' houses : and sugar-boiling plant has been set up in the Government estate in the Tarai, in the hope that the growers may in time work it themselves on a co-operative plan. Unao, with a variety of industrial enterprises, is striving to imitate its great neighbour, Cawnpore. All this is proof that progress has not been arrested, even in a disastrous year.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

P. HARRISON,

Secretary.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. 822 OF 1909.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Naini Tal, the 4th May 1909.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no. <sup>894</sup>
XII-163A(5), dated the 9th March 1909, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1908.

OBSERVATIONS.—The revenue history of the year is mainly the history of the indirect measures of relief which were taken in connection with the famine which resulted from the failure of the monsoon rains of 1907, a famine even more widespread than the serious famine of eleven years before.

When it became certain that there would be great difficulty in sowing the spring crop, advances were given on a most liberal scale for the purchase of seed and for the construction of temporary and masonry wells for the irrigation of that crop, and when the extent of the failure of the autumn crops was ascertained liberal suspensions and remissions of land revenue were made. Later on in the year when the time came for sowing the autumn crop of 1908 large sums were advanced for seed and afterwards for the purchase of cattle. A full account of the various forms of advances given and the results attained has already been published in chapter XII of this Government's resolution on the administration of famine relief during 1907 and 1908, dated the 14th October last, but the matter of the relief afforded in respect of land revenue is touched on therein in less detail.

2. Throughout the year much of the time of revenue officers was occupied in working out proposals for the suspension and remission of land revenue. Out of a real demand on account of land revenue of 644 lakhs of rupees, only 491½ lakhs could be collected. Of the balance however 149½ lakhs represent suspensions or remissions sanctioned by Government owing to the drought, and after allowing for a comparatively small sum the collection of which was postponed by Collectors, the real arrear came to only 2½ lakhs. The total relief given, whether during the year to which the report relates or after its close, in respect of the two harvests of the year, amounted to the very large sum of 165 lakhs, of which 76 lakhs represent land revenue remitted. Of this relief two-thirds was on account of the autumn harvest. The remissions were largest in Bundelkhand (27 lakhs), where the special circumstances of the tract necessitate their being given without preliminary suspensions, and in the worst affected districts of the Fyzabad division.

It would have been convenient had a footnote been added to appendix I giving particulars by districts of the amounts remitted after the close of this year. The report however adverts in some detail to the measure of relief given in each district.

3. The figures of coercive processes employed during the year appear, as the Board observe, to afford an indication of the adequacy of the relief given. It is not till the current year that the effect will be apparent of the instructions issued to diminish the irregularities which obtain in some districts in the issue of these processes. The proposals of the Board regarding the abolition of mutation fines, if not of fees, will be awaited. The matter requires attention, if only from the point of view of reduction of work. The result of placing joint magistrates in charge of the revenue collections in their sub-divisions should be adverted to in the next report.

4. Owing to the drought the area irrigated from canals was very large and the demand for occupiers' rates was the highest on record. The collections were on the whole satisfactory, and out of a demand of  $102\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs only  $1\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs remained uncollected. The result of the inquiry into the cause of the arrears in Fatehpur and the explanation of the Collector of Muttra as regards the balance in his district should be reported for the information of Government.

5. The apportionment, the distribution and the effect of the enormous sums given as agricultural advances during the year, which aggregated 280 lakhs of rupees, have been fully dealt with in the resolution on the famine. Of a total of  $70\frac{1}{2}$  lakhs falling due during the year  $44\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs were collected and 4 lakhs were remitted : the collection of 11 lakhs was formally suspended or postponed, and the real arrear was one of  $10\frac{3}{4}$  lakhs. The Lieutenant Governor agrees with the Board that on the whole the collections were creditable. It is important that there should be no laxity in the recovery of these advances, now that the demand has been lightened of the amounts which on account of the failure of the late kharif in certain tracts have been remitted ; and Collectors should continue to give the matter their unremitting attention.

For the first time the progress made in the realization of loans given under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act is discussed in the report. In the circumstances of the year little reduction could be made in the principal outstanding.

6. The effect of famine is writ large on the statistics of rent law litigation in the year. In Agra the whole volume of such litigation was 6 per cent. less than in the preceding year, though it was larger than in 1905-6. The real decline was mainly in suits for arrears and in suits for enhancement. Suits for arrears of rent fell from 142,772 to 137,694, and the decline, as was natural, was mainly in those districts where suspensions or remissions of land revenue were extensively given. After an adjustment of figures made to ensure accurate comparison, suits for enhancement of rent declined from 6,325 to 4,726, a figure lower than any for eleven years. In a year of scarcity such suits were not likely to be as largely instituted as in an ordinary year. Suits for ejectment in Agra, after a similar adjustment, were practically the same in number as in the preceding year, a substantial increase in the three eastern divisions balancing a decrease elsewhere. Generally speaking, the decrease was in districts affected by famine, and may be regarded as of a temporary nature. The most important reason assigned for the increased resort to suits for ejectment, used as a lever for enhancement is that landlords desire to secure their share in the larger profits from land due to the continuance of high prices. The number of suits in the Gorakhpur district has risen very noticeably from 8,662 to 12,110, and the special causes which must be at work merit close analysis at the hands of the local officers.

In Oudh rent cases fell from 58,504 to 39,829. Practically the whole of Oudh was affected by famine, and suits for arrears of rent were, in consequence of the large suspensions or remissions of land revenue allowed, lower than they had been for fifteen years. Ejectment proceedings, too, of all kinds largely decreased.

The Lieutenant Governor accepts the recommendation of the Board that statement no. XIXC showing the results of the preceding year's ejectments, which has served its purpose, may in future be omitted.

7. The rent case work which the courts in Agra had to cope with was not materially less than in the previous year, but disposals kept pace with institutions, and the pending file (excluding enhancement and ejectment suits, few of which can be decided in the revenue year in which they are filed) had risen only slightly at the close of the year. In Oudh lighter files afforded very substantial relief to the courts, while partition work in both provinces was markedly less. In a year when the energies of officers were fully occupied in the relief of famine or in work connected therewith it is satisfactory that the disposal of case work was as prompt and complete as it was.

8. Among miscellaneous matters the Government notices that the Board are about to issue instructions to ensure greater uniformity in the entries in the statement of miscellaneous land revenue, and that they are taking up the question of the continued employment of patwaris in partition work, an experiment of somewhat doubtful success.

The Lieutenant Governor agrees with the Board that applications by lambardars for the summary recovery of revenue paid by them on behalf of co-sharers must receive proper and prompt disposal; attention should continue to be given to the matter.

It has been decided that until further experience is obtained of the working of the system of repayment of advances by equated instalments it would be premature to make any change.

9. The Board's report was punctually submitted, and contains a clear and interesting account of the revenue administration in a year in which the problems which presented themselves for solution were of exceptional difficulty.

The Lieutenant Governor desires to acknowledge the careful control exercised by the Board over the branches which they administer.

REPORT
FOR THE REVENUE YEAR 1908-1909, ENDING 30TH SEPTEMBER 1909.

No. $\frac{873}{XII-163A(6)}$ OF 1910

FROM

P. HARRISON, Esq., I.C.S.,

SECRETARY TO THE BOARD OF REVENUE,
UNITED PROVINCES,

TO

THE CHIEF SECRETARY TO GOVERNMENT, UNITED PROVINCES, REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Present :
THE HON'BLE
MR. L. A. S.
PORTER, C.S.I.
AND
THE HON'BLE
MR. D. C.
BAILLIE,
I.C.S.

I AM directed to submit the following report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending on 30th September 1909.

§§ 1-3.—Introductory.

2. The Senior Member of the Board throughout the year was Mr. L. A. S. Porter, C.S.I. At its beginning the late Mr. H. Z. Darrah, C.S.I., was Junior Member, but he was on leave, and Mr. G. A. Tweedy, was officiating for him. Mr. D. C. Baillie returned from leave and was appointed to officiate as Junior Member, relieving Mr. Tweedy on 9th November 1908. He remained on duty as such for the rest of the year, having been confirmed in the appointment on 19th March 1909, in consequence of the death of Mr. Darrah in England, the news of which was received with great regret by the Board and numerous other officials and non-officials with whom he had been associated during his long service.

3. The Fyzabad divisional report was received by the Board before the fixed date, and the reports of six other Commissioners were received by December 11th. The Rohilkhand report was not, however, received until December 23rd and that from the Agra division until December 24th. The reports of the same two divisions were the last to be received in the previous year also, but in the Agra division at least there is not the same good reason this year as last, and the Board hope that the Commissioners concerned will endeavour to be more punctual in future.

4. The year 1907-8 was one of famine and scarcity: that under review marked a substantial recovery, though normal conditions were not completely restored in all districts.

§ 4.—Seasons.

Monsoon conditions appeared about the middle of June 1908, and sufficient rain was received before the close of that month to give the kharif sowings a fair start in the Gorakhpur and Rohilkhand divisions and part of the Fyzabad division. Early in July the rains extended over the whole of the Provinces and were, as a rule, copious, timely, and well-distributed, but the north-eastern districts were less favoured than others and at the end of the month more rain was urgently needed for the late rice tracts of the Benares, Gorakhpur and Fyzabad divisions. August was a wet month, but the erratic distribution of the July rainfall was continued and intensified. Thus, while some of the western districts, notably Muttra, received exceptionally heavy falls, the rain in the east and north-east was too light to permit of the transplantation of rice on the usual scale. In Bahraich and the adjoining part of Sitapur the deficiency was specially marked. The monsoon closed with light falls in the Meerut and Agra divisions in the first week of September, and in Rohilkhand a week later. It seemed to be at an end in the rest of the Provinces also, but the Gorakhpur and Benares divisions, with parts of Oudh and the Allahabad division were fortunate in receiving a further fall of most valuable rain early in October. Taking the season as a whole, the rainfall in the western divisions was rather too heavy in July and August and rather too light in September, while there was no rain later. Sowings for the kharif were not, however, materially affected, nor did the scantiness of the later rain injure the crops to a great extent, except in one or two districts. In the east and north-east, on the other hand, there was a general deficiency throughout the rainy season. Ordinary sowings were effected almost as usual, but the transplantation of rice was frequently prevented, while the lack of moisture towards the end of the season injured rice particularly, and other crops to a less extent. November and December were almost rainless, but considerable falls occurred in January. Their distribution was, however, unequal. The western districts were favoured and the greater part of Bundelkhand received valuable rain, but in Oudh, the eastern divisions, and the lower districts of the Ganges-Jumna doab, the falls were too light and local to be of general benefit. In February also there was ill-distributed rain which did good in several western districts but did not visit Oudh or the Agra and Gorakhpur divisions at all. March was dry, hot winds prevailing, but April was abnormally wet, no less than 2 to 4 inches being received in various parts, sometimes just at the harvest-time.

5. The sowing season having been not on the whole unfavourable, and the famine of the previous year having rendered the replenishment of food stocks a matter of prime necessity, it is not surprising that the areas sown with food grains in the kharif were, in most districts, exceptionally large. The total area under kharif crops was $24\frac{1}{2}$ million acres, exceeding that of the preceding year by about 180,000 acres and being about 4 per cent. above the normal. The total would doubtless have been considerably higher but for the difficulty of transplanting rice. The area sown fell markedly below the normal in Saharanpur, Muttra, Agra, Mainpuri, Jaunpur and Azamgarh. The wetness of the sowing season in Muttra, Agra and Mainpuri, and the shortness of rice sowings in the other three districts account for the deficiency. On the other hand there was an area largely above the normal in Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Etah, Fatehpur, Jhansi, Jalaun, Sitapur, Kheri and Gonda. Of these the last four districts had suffered severely in the famine and the need to replenish supplies was urgent. When the time for the rabi sowings arrived the ground was, as a rule, rather dry, and preliminary irrigation was often required, but not, of course, to the same extent as in the previous year. But an even more serious obstacle was the terrible epidemic of malaria which prevailed over the greater part of the provinces and brought field-work to a standstill in many places while the soil was drying day by day. While, therefore, the need for sowing was still as urgent as in the kharif, only three districts, Dehra Dun, Muttra and Agra, succeeded in sowing for the rabi an area substantially larger than the normal: in Banda and Ballia there was a slight excess: but in all other districts the area was short, being more than one-fourth below normal in Bareilly, Pilibhit and Jalaun, and in all the districts of Oudh except Rae Bareilly, Sultanpur and Partabgarh. The total area sown with rabi crops was 16·97 million acres, or 85 per cent. of the normal area of 20 millions, as compared with 63 per cent. in the famine year. The extent of the sowing of the hot-weather crops, which had increased largely in the two previous years, was more nearly normal in 1909, and this feature may be regarded as an indication, among others, that the pressure of bad times was relaxed. The twice-cropped area was only 74 per cent. of the normal, as the result of dryness after the early crops were cut.

6. The total area under kharif crops was, as already stated, high and somewhat higher than in the previous year. There were, however, important variations in the distribution of crops. Sowings of late and early rice decreased by no less than 288,000 and 785,000 acres respectively; the causes have already been indicated. Juar and the small millets were sown in areas larger than in the previous year by over half a million acres in each case. Maize covered 342,000 acres more, and bijra 160,000 acres more than in 1907, while cotton was grown in 53,000 acres less. The extended area put under crops which ripen early and the restriction in the area under cotton, are both due to the abnormal need for replenishing stocks. The fall in cotton is probab'y only temporary, and the total area was still above normal. There was an important fall of 352,000 acres in the area under sugarcane. This is accounted for by the prevalence of scarcity and the abnormal dryness of the soil at the sowing time in 1908. The oilseed til (gingelly) was sown in much the same area as in 1907. Indigo occupied only about 30,000 acres. In the rabi the normal system of cropping has been disorganised in the last two years and comparisons between the two seasons are not useful. Barley was sown in the famine in preference to gram, and while barley succeeded gram failed. In 1908-9 barley was again most popular, but one reason was probably that gram seed was scarce and dear. Wheat was sown on 82 per cent. of a normal area, but its proportion to the total area under rabi crops was about normal. Rapeseed was sown in almost a normal area, but linseed, which is largely sown as a second crop after rice, could not be put down in more than 39 per cent. of the usual area, the soil being too dry. There was also an important fall of 25 per cent. in the poppy area, attributed to the enforced restriction of exports of opium and consequently in the cultivation of the poppy.

7. In the kharif season of 1908 the total area irrigated was 2,091,000 acres, being almost equal to the area irrigated in 1906 if the decline in the cultivation of sugarcane be allowed for.

§ 7.—Irrigated area.

It was naturally far less than in 1907. The rabi and hot-weather crops were irrigated not quite to the same total extent, but actually in a slightly greater proportion of the area sown, than in 1907. The total area of crops receiving irrigation was 10,662,000 acres. The practice of irrigating cotton and fodder crops continued to extend in the Meerut and Agra divisions. In particular about one-third of the cotton crop was there irrigated, and no less than 45 per cent. in Muttra. The irrigation of maize in the same two divisions, however, declined. Wells continued to be the most important source of irrigation, supplying water to 65 per cent. of the whole irrigated area. Government canals supplied water to about 22½ per cent. of the area, private canals and reservoirs only to a small extent, and other sources to about 12 per cent. The reservoirs in Jhansi and Mirzapur are, however, of great local importance, no less than 22,285 acres having been irrigated from those newly constructed in Mirzapur. Those in Hamirpur and Allahabad are useful in their small way.

8. The number of masonry wells available rose from 585,928 to 612,734, an increase of 26,806, but only 6,782 more were actually used than in 1907-8. On the other hand, the number of temporary wells available fell by over 200,000 and the number actually used by over 234,000. The need for their use was not, on the whole, nearly so great as in the preceding year, but the epidemic of malaria doubtless prevented the construction or re-construction in proper time of many which would have been of use. The increase in the number of permanent wells is gratifying and the policy of making liberal advances for their construction has been justified by results. Over 6,000 new wells were built in the Gorakhpur division and over 1,000 in each of the districts of Jaunpur, Ballia, Lucknow, Rae Bareilly, Gonda, Sultanpur and Bara Banki. These tracts depend entirely on wells for their permanent supply when irrigation is required, but there was great activity in construction in the canal-tracts also, the Meerut district alone reporting 800 new wells. In Budaun the active movement towards constructing permanent wells added 565 completed wells during the year. On the other hand there was considerable anxiety in parts of Oudh and of the Benares division owing to signs of failing supplies in existing wells. The water-level in fact sank to a serious extent and, although it is not reported that wells ran dry in any considerable tract, the inflow frequently slackened so that the work of irrigation was slower and more tedious than usual.

9. Although the year under review was generally marked by recovery from the effects of scarcity, the local weather conditions in parts of Garhwal, Mirzapur, Jaunpur, Basti, Kheri and Bahraich were so unfavourable as to require the renewal of relief operations. Injury was caused by grass-hoppers to the sugarcane crops in Azamgarh and neighbouring districts, and the noxious weed known as baisurai appears to be interfering increasingly with tillage in parts of Aligarh, Muttra, Agra, Mainpuri and Jaunpur, while its excessive growth seems to have spread to Etawah and Etah, and perhaps Cawnpore also. There were a few hailstorms, but no substantial damage was done to the crops except in a small tract in the Meerut district. Frost caused slight damage, chiefly to arhar, in places, and there were floods, chiefly in the hills and along the Ganges. In Kumaun floods and landslips caused loss of life and property and damaged several bridges and canals, but the damage to crops was slight. Along the Ganges khadir Moradabad, Budaun and Etah suffered from floods, but in the affected villages the lost kharif was made good by an excellent rabi. The unusually heavy and widespread rain in April 1909 did damage to the crops while they were on the threshing-floors.

10. The cutturn of the kharif crops as a whole was fairly good. Maize and the small millets gave nearly a normal outturn generally, and so did bajra in the districts where it is extensively grown, except Muttra. Juar was usually successful, but it was very poor in Muttra, and poor or moderate in Jhansi, Jalaun and Unao, in all of which districts it is important. Early rice was fair in the western districts but very poor in Oudh generally, while late rice was satisfactory in no district where it is important. The cotton crop was injured by excessive rain at first, and afterwards by the early cessation of the rains, the average yield being only three-fourths of the normal. In Muttra, Mainpuri and Jhansi in particular, the yield was very poor. The oilseed til also gave only about three-quarters of a normal outturn, having suffered from the early stoppage of the rains. Sugarcane, too, was unfortunate throughout. In the summer of 1908, and again in September and October of that year, it suffered from excessive dryness in the soil and lack of water for irrigation. The yield was generally satisfactory in the Meerut division, but was poor in the greater part of Rohilkhand (notably in Shahjahanpur and Pilibhit), and in Ballia, Basti, Kheri and the Fyzabad division. The average yield was only 75 per cent. of the normal. Taking the kharif harvest as a whole the districts which fared worst were Muttra, Kheri, Sitapur, Bahraich and Gonda. Muttra suffered chiefly from excessive rain, but the other districts, all in northern Oudh, secured only poor crops of rice, early and late, while Sitapur alone among them had a normal crop of juar.

Among the rabi crops none gave on the average a normal outturn. Barley and rapeseed yielded the best results, 85 per cent. of the normal; wheat and gram gave only 80 per cent.; the yield of opium was only about 75 per cent., and of linseed only 70 per cent. The wheat crop was generally rather better on the area sown than in 1908, but it was not really good in any considerable tract and it was from 45 to 60 per cent. only of a normal crop in Shahjahanpur, Hamirpur, Almora, Garhwal, Sitapur, Kheri, Bahraich and Sultanpur. The same districts (except Sitapur) had a poor crop of barley also. Gram was very poor in Shahjahanpur, Basti, Unao, Sitapur, Kheri and all districts of the Fyzabad division except Partabgarh. The oilseeds were poor in Jalaun, Kheri and Bahraich, but moderate or fairly good elsewhere. The yield of opium was poor everywhere, but especially in northern Oudh. The districts which had exceptionally poor crops generally in the rabi were Shahjahanpur, Sitapur, Kheri and Bahraich. Gonda, however, had a distinctly better season than Kheri and Bahraich. Generally, some damage was done to the rabi crops, which had not been completely harvested, by the heavy rain in April. The actual destruction of grain was not great, but there was widespread injury in point of quality. Bhusa, however, was spoilt to a large extent, but the untimely rain itself remedied this partially by bringing up a fresh crop of grass. The hot-weather crops gave a satisfactory yield, but the April rain damaged melons to some extent and in places the beds were ruined by floods. Mangoes, in contrast to 1908, did not fruit well, but mahua fared better.

11. The rains of 1909 set in considerably earlier than in recent years and by the middle of June most districts had received enough rain to start the kharif. The falls for the month were, as a rule, considerably in excess of the normal. The rainfall of July was exceptionally heavy and general and a break was badly needed at its close. The excess over the normal for the province as a whole amounted to 34 per cent. The falls in most districts were, however, seasonable, and serious hindrance to tillage was confined to parts of the Allahabad division. Rain continued during August in the hills and most of the sub-montane districts. A break which was very welcome began about the 11th and lasted for a fortnight. There was good rain again at the end of the month. The rainfall of the month was in general defect, being 25 per cent. less than usual over the provinces taken as a whole. There was good general rain in the early part of September, after which the falls in the west of the province were light and scattered. The Allahabad, Benares and Gorakhpur divisions, and a large part of Oudh, had favourable rain later in the month. The rainfall for September was in slight defect, and on the whole its distribution was as good as could be wished for. October was practically rainless in the greater part of the province, but useful falls occurred in the first few days of the month in parts of the eastern and north-eastern districts. Over the province as a whole the rainfall of the season—from 1st June to 31st October 1909—varied but little from the normal. In the Agra and Allahabad divisions there was a defect of 17 and 5 per cent. respectively; in the remaining divisions there was a slight excess. In consequence of the continuous and excessive rainfall in the beginning of the season, sowings were somewhat restricted and the total khariif area of the province shows a decrease of 712,476 acres, or 3 per cent., which is shared by all divisions. An increase of 125,000 acres occurred under rice, and of 159,000 acres under til, but the other principal khariif crops exhibit decreases. The area under juar fell off by 372,000, of small millets by 450,000, and of cotton by 159,000 acres. Except in the tracts that suffered from floods prospects of the khariif crops were at first almost uniformly good or excellent. These expectations were not, however, realized; juar suffered from insects (both borers and grass-hoppers) in a larger number of districts than has been usual of late years, and the damage was somewhat serious in particular localities. The outturn of cotton fell below expectations, especially in the upper doab, and of til in Banda, where it is an important crop. The boll-worm was particularly harmful to the Etawah cotton crop. Late rice was affected by drought in a few places. The outturn of small millets, early rice, bajra and pulses was generally good and of the remaining crops fair. Taken as a whole, crops were somewhat poor in the Lucknow division; elsewhere they have been satisfactory. Maize yielded 85 per cent. of a normal crop, early rice and the small millets 95 per cent., late rice 80 per cent., juar 85 per cent., bajra and pulses 95 per cent., cotton 85 per cent., and til 80 per cent.

§ 11.—Monsoon and Kharif of 1909.

12. The year was remarkable for the appalling outbreak of malarial fever to which are attributed very nearly one million of the deaths recorded in the three months October to December 1908. The mortality from this cause was much reduced in the following months; but August and September 1909 witnessed a general rise. The total deaths from all causes were 1,096,957 in the first quarter, 459,952 in the second, 387,901 in the third, and 395,332 in the last. October 1908 was the worst month in the three western divisions, and November elsewhere, December witnessing a slight check. As already indicated, this terrible epidemic had an appreciable effect on the agricultural operations of the year and consequently on the revenue administration: it also affected the cost of labour to a material degree. Plague was fortunately not prevalent to a great extent, the highest mortality reported in any month being 4,384 deaths in March. Cholera, too, was not present in epidemic form.

13. As usual, the trade returns are made up for the financial year, and figures are not available for the period subsequent to the quarter ending March 31st, 1909. The total imports of wheat from other Provinces during the financial year were little more than one million maunds while over 3 million maunds left the Provinces. The export trade was most brisk in the first quarter after the harvest in 1908, and it again increased after October in that year when the khariif was harvested. On the other hand there was a large balance of imports over exports during the first half of the year in the case of maize, juar and other millets. With the harvesting of the khariif of 1908 the tide turned and exports of these grains again commenced on a large scale. In fact, the nett import of grains and pulse other than wheat from April to September 1908, was about $4\frac{1}{2}$ million maunds, while the nett export from October 1908 to March 1909, was no less than $7\frac{1}{2}$ million maunds. The export of oilseeds was reduced owing to the bad yield at the rabi of 1908, which was not compensated by the increased yield of til in the autumn. Unrefined sugar was exported on the same low scale as in 1907-8, for in spite of the 'record' area under cane at the 1909 harvest the yield was very poor owing to the drought in 1908. Raw cotton was also exported on a reduced scale, the crop of 1908 having been very poor. The trade in articles of merchandise other than those specially mentioned here was fully in keeping with the condition of the Provinces as described in this report and last year's.

14. Prices were at a very high level in October 1908; a year later, though easier, they were not nearly as low as what was formerly regarded as the normal. The price of wheat showed a tendency to rise until January 1909. From February to April there was a fall as the prospects of the rabi declared themselves, and then again a general rise. From the end of August, however, there was a tendency to lower prices and on 30th September prices varied from $9\frac{1}{2}$ to 12 seers per rupee in the various principal markets. Barley cheapened considerably in May, after the harvest, but prices stiffened afterwards. In August and September-October they were again easier, ranging from $15\frac{3}{4}$ to $17\frac{3}{4}$ seers in the principal markets. Maize became steadily dearer until after the middle of August. At the end of September it was quoted at 22 seers in the cheapest markets as compared with 16 seers for some part of the year. Juar and bajra were dear throughout the year, especially when the demand for seed arose in June, but at the end of September, when the crop of 1909 gave good promise, 19 seers were obtainable for a rupee in places. Gram also was relatively dear throughout the year, the harvest resulting in very little cheapening. At the end of September the commonest price was about 12 seers, though 15 was quoted in places.

15. There was no serious epidemic of cattle disease during the year. Rinderpest and foot-and-mouth disease were prevalent to some extent in Dehra Dun and most of the submontane districts as far east as Gonda, but in no case was the mortality great or continuous. Some parts of Bundelkhand, with Cawnpore and Unao, also suffered from these diseases. Inoculation against rinderpest showed signs of gaining popularity where the disease was specially fatal. The quinquennial census of stock was taken in January 1909. It showed that losses had been heavy in the tract south of the Jumna, owing to the two seasons of drought experienced in 1905-6 and 1907-8; while in northern Oudh there must have been heavy mortality during the monsoon of 1908, when chill and surfeit after previous privations seem to have had fatal effects. Although in 1908-9 cattle diseases were not specially widespread or fatal, yet the last few years have undoubtedly witnessed an increase in their prevalence. Briefly, as regards working cattle, the provinces have lost in the last quinquennium what they had gained in the preceding period. Some districts return increases in bullocks, but in Sitapur, Hardoi, Bahraich and Bara Banki, which suffered more or less severely from the drought in 1908, in Etawah, Cawnpore, Fatehpur and Jalaun, which suffered from drought both in 1906 and 1908, and in six districts of the Agra and Rohilkhand divisions where the causes are less obvious, there was a diminution of more than 10 per cent. in the number of bullocks during the five years. In few districts, however, is the supply of bullocks less than two for each plough. Etawah, Jaunpur and Sitapur have a very narrow margin, but in Bara Banki and Azamgarh there are, apparently, not enough cattle to work the ploughs. In the latter district, at any rate, it seems to be the custom for the cultivators in the rice-country to keep only one bullock apiece and to join forces in the ploughing season. Lack of fodder in such tracts probably prevents the maintenance of more stock.

16. The total area included in holdings, which has steadily risen in recent years, shows a further rise of 157,964 acres in Agra and of 30,207 acres in Oudh. The increase is common to all divisions and is due to extension of cultivation. In Oudh the increase has occurred mainly in Kheri (10,273 acres), Gonda (9,506 acres) and Bahraich (5,434 acres) and in Agra, in Muzaffarnagar (10,824 acres), Meerut (14,661 acres), Bijnor (11,390 acres), Gorakhpur (20,020 acres) and the four Bundelkhand districts (71,803 acres). In Kheri, at least, it would seem that the increase is largely due to extensions of cultivation in areas which were formerly swamp but have become culturable after a succession of dry seasons. Some of the upland cultivation has been temporarily abandoned and the increase is probably neither permanent nor real. The increase in Muzaffarnagar and Meerut is a re-action after the decrease reported last year. Mirzapur shows this year a decrease of 4,659 acres and Dehra Dun of 15,758 acres. The decrease in the latter district is not real as the figures for Jaunsar-Bawar, which have been hitherto assumed, have now been excluded from the statement.

The main changes in classification are as follows :—

In Agra.
		Acres.		Acres.
Sir ...	...	—27,631	Non-occupancy 12 years or more	+200,432
Khudkasht, &c. ...	...	+52,613	Ditto on 7 years' lease	—25,919
Exproprietary ...	...	+15,529	Ditto less than 12
Occupancy ...	...	—64,702	years ...	+9,817
In Oudh.
Khudkasht ...	...	+17,021	Ordinary tenants ...	+13,871

17. In Agra the decline in sir is almost general, as fresh rights cannot arise. The only two exceptions are found in Banda and Hamirpur where an increase of 10,534 and 337 acres respectively occurred owing to revision of records. The area under khudkasht declined by 17,244 acres in Dehra Dun and in Banda by 3,508 acres: in the former district the figures of Jaunsar-Bawar are excluded and in the latter the area has now been classed as sir. The remaining districts exhibit an increase corresponding to the extension of cultivation already referred to. The increase in exproprietary holdings is almost general, as usual; the only district showing a substantial decrease is Hamirpur, where a decline of 2,078 acres occurred owing to correction of records. As usual, occupancy holdings recorded as such show a decrease in all districts, amounting to 64,702 acres. The loss is more than made good by the growth of unrecorded occupancy rights (holdings for over 12 years) the real increase in which, amounting to 200,432 acres, is shared by all districts except Dehra Dun.

18. The area held under seven-year leases in the Province of Agra rose steadily till 1907-8; though in this year the increase was much less than in recent years. In 1908-9 there is a decrease of 25,919 acres, due to the expiry of the first leases granted. The decreases are most marked in the following districts :—

	Acres.		Acres.
Saharanpur ...	3,215	Aligarh ...	7,057
Muzaffarnagar ...	3,341	Muttra ...	3,016
Meerut ...	17,686	Bijnor ...	2,319
Bulandshahr ...	19,126

On the other hand Etah shows an increase of 5,443 acres due probably to a more correct record, Bareilly of 1,354 acres, Budaun of 1,656 acres, Pilibhit of 1,018 acres, Gorakhpur of 15,841 acres and Basti of 2,773 acres. The variations in the remaining districts are unimportant. The net decrease for the province amounts to 25,919 acres, and has resulted in an increase in the area held by ordinary non-occupancy tenants.

19. In Oudh the only marked changes are the rise in khudkasht and ordinary tenants' land, both following on the extension of cultivation.

20. The rental demand shows an increase of 20 lakhs of rupees in Agra and 17½ lakhs in Oudh. These figures may be instructively compared with the increases in the holdings areas of the two provinces. Cash rents increased by 16½ lakhs and grain rents by 26 lakhs, but the siwai demand fell off by nearly five lakhs. The following table compares the grain rents in some typical districts for the past two years. The increase is due to the return of favourable seasons :—

The percentage of total collections (current and arrear) to current demand rose in Agra from 67 to 92 and in Oudh from 58 to 97. The following statement shows by divisions the proportion of recorded collections to the year's demand :—

The highest collections were recorded in the following districts :—

CHAPTER II—FINANCIAL.

21. The total demand on account of all the sources of income dealt with in the appendices to this report was 1,092 $\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs, or nearly 11 crores of rupees, as compared with 905 $\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs in the preceding year. The principal increases are found in the current and arrear demand of land revenue, in the demand of both principal and interest for agricultural loans, and under the head miscellaneous land revenue, the returns of which now include items which were formerly omitted in some districts. The real demand under all heads was 1,091 lakhs, but 33 $\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs, chiefly current and arrear land revenue and agricultural loans, were remitted. Of the remainder 994 $\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs were collected and 63 $\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs remained outstanding. Of the latter sum, the greater part is represented by suspended land revenue, both current and arrear, and arrears, including suspended instalments, of agricultural advances.

22. The land revenue accounts are shown in statements I, II and III, but it is convenient to deal with them all together. The arrears outstanding at the end of 1907-8 were Rs. 89,85,601 made up of Rs. 89,81,918 in statement II (arrear demand of revenue on the roll) and Rs. 3,683 in statement III (demand of revenue not on the roll). The current demand of revenue on the roll at the beginning of the year was Rs. 6,48,04,818 so that the total for collection was then Rs. 7,37,90,419. The demand added during the year (revenue not on the roll) was Rs. 32,582, the result of various small transactions such as the re-settlement of alluvial mahals, the revision of other short-term settlements, and the assessment of land formerly held free of revenue. On the other hand there were considerable reductions, shown as nominal balances in all three statements, amounting in all to Rs. 1,18,829. Of this total, re-assessments of alluvial mahals account for Rs. 36,427: the acquisition of land for public purposes for Rs. 28,292: assignments for loyal services for Rs. 13,512: regular settlements in Moradabad and Banda for Rs. 5,829: and special reductions in Banda and Hamirpur pending the introduction of the new settlements and in the settled tracts of Kashipur (Naini Tal district) for Rs. 33,451, the remainder being due to petty causes which need not be detailed. The nett demand which might have been enforced during the year was thus Rs. 7,37,04,172.

23. The total collections of land revenue were Rs. 6,90,59,252, being short of the enforceable demand by Rs. 46,44,920. This difference is accounted for by Rs. 25,08,245 remitted, Rs. 20,49,016 formally suspended or postponed, and a relatively small balance of Rs. 87,659 which might have been collected.

24. The real balance includes Rs. 73,876 on account of the current demand, and Rs. 10,956 on account of the arrear demand, of revenue on the roll, and Rs. 2,827 on account of revenue not on the roll. The chief arrear on current account occurred in the Sultanpur district, and for this the Amethi estate was mainly responsible. The arrears were cleared in October 1909 after attachment of the moveable property of the talukdar who, as in the preceding year, remained a defaulter until severely pressed. The real balance in Muttra was also collected shortly after the close of the year. In Aligarh, Allahabad, Jhansi, Lucknow, Hardoi and Partabgarh arrears amounting to Rs. 5,502 were due in estates either attached for the recovery of those specific arrears, or otherwise under Government management: in these cases the collections of rent were insufficient to meet the revenue demand within the year. In Jalaun estates were attached after the close of the year for arrears of Rs. 4,273. In other districts the arrears exceeded Rs. 1,000 only in Bareilly (Rs. 1,313), Budaun (Rs. 1,656) and Shahjahanpur (Rs. 7,107). In Bareilly, part was collected shortly after the close of the year, part was due from attached estates and part from ordinary defaulters in one tahsil; in Budaun the balance is due chiefly from zamindars residing in other districts; while in Shahjahanpur there was considerable difficulty in collecting the current demand, the crops having been very poor in parts of the district where actual suspension was not required. The arrears in other districts were petty: they were mostly collected shortly after the close of the year. For the continuance of old arrears not formally suspended beyond the end of the year, the Bijnor and Garhwal districts are almost entirely responsible, but in both cases the items appear to be part of the famine suspensions which could not be collected without undue pressure. Items aggregating Rs. 274 in Bulandshahr are due on account of two preceding years. They were discovered to be in arrear only on the death of the revenue accountant at one of the tahsils, and enquiries have been made as to the manner in which the accounts were balanced previously. The small real arrears in Meerut, Aligarh and Bara Banki were collected shortly after the close of the year: and in other cases they were absolutely trifling. Of the total real arrears of Rs. 2,827 not on the roll, Rs. 2,000 is the revenue of an alluvial mahal in the Allahabad district which was settled too late for collection to be made during the year, and Rs. 621 could not be paid from the rents of an alluvial mahal attached for arrears in the Ballia district. The other items in arrear were very petty. Some were realised after the close of the year and the remainder will doubtless give little trouble. Altogether the collections of the realisable demand may be considered highly satisfactory.

25. The recoverable balance of suspended revenue on the roll was, on 1st October 1908, Rs. 85,62,815, but, as noted in last year's report, the amount was reduced by the remission of Rs. 12,32,712 shortly after the close of the year in the Saharanpur, Meerut, Aligarh, Muttra, Farrukhabad, Mainpuri, Etah, Bareilly, Bijnor, Moradabad, Fatehpur, Jaunpur and Hardoi districts. The recoverable balance of suspended revenue thus became Rs. 73,30,103. Floods and crop failures in 1908 and 1909 led to further remissions amounting to Rs. 5,54,730 of which the following items were the most important:—Muttra (Rs. 62,879), Etawah (Rs. 92,773), Bijnor (Rs. 42,189), Shahjahanpur (Rs. 23,566), Mirzapur (Rs. 60,485), Azamgarh (Rs. 42,371), Sitapur (Rs. 43,015) and Kheri (Rs. 1,69,300). Smaller remissions were required in Aligarh, Agra, Mainpuri, Etah, Budaun and Basti. Of the balance still remaining, the whole was cleared in all but 15 districts, in which suspensions aggregating Rs. 17,23,975 have to be accounted for in the current year. That is to say, over 50½ lakhs of suspended revenue were actually collected during 1908-9. The balances in each district may be briefly noticed.

26. In Muzaffarnagar, a small sum of Rs. 912 was continued under suspension. In Meerut no less than Rs. 2,80,533 remain, but it was arranged when the suspension was sanctioned that rather more than half this should be collected at the rabi of 1910, and the remainder at the rabi of 1911. In Muttra Rs. 74 only were continued, and in Etah Rs. 21,454. In the Rohilkhand division Budaun has a small amount of Rs. 305, but Bijnor has Rs. 1,27,284 and Shahjahanpur Rs. 26,975 still under suspension. In Allahabad Rs. 57,473 were not due for collection until the rabi of 1910. In Mirzapur Rs. 56,445 due in the upland tracts, where the crops again failed, had to be continued under suspension until the current year. In Azamgarh the whole of the revenue suspended in the famine but not remitted, viz. Rs. 2,38,738, had similarly to be carried over to this year as the late rice crop of 1908, from the proceeds of which it would ordinarily have been realised, was again very poor. It is doubtful whether more should not have been remitted, and the Commissioner has been asked to report further before the rabi collections begin. In Unao, in accordance with the original arrangement, Rs. 2,08,008 were held over for collection at the rabi of 1910. In Sitapur the continuance of Rs. 49,276 under suspension was necessary as the crops in the villages concerned were not good enough to justify collection. Gonda, although it fared better than some of its neighbours in 1908-9, is still burdened with a suspension of Rs. 5,61,756, the magnitude of which sum is largely due to the excessive relief given at the kharif of 1907. There is no doubt, however, that the recovery of this balance, given favourable seasons, should be effected in due course. In Bahraich only Rs. 15,944 remained under suspension and in Partabgarh Rs. 78,798, the latter sum, as previously arranged, being not due until 1910. The Board think these results highly satisfactory.

27. Minor local calamities such as hail, flood, fire and attacks by insect pests necessitated remissions out of the current demand aggregating Rs. 20,680 in the Meerut, Aligarh, Budaun, Cawnpore and Jalaun districts, and suspensions aggregating Rs. 13,210 in Meerut and Budaun. More general crop failures due to drought resulted in remissions of Rs. 1,60,580 at the kharif and Rs. 5,68,285 at the rabi, and suspensions aggregating Rs. 88,854 at the kharif and Rs. 1,11,655 at the rabi. The districts which received relatively the greatest relief in this way were Muttra, Shahjahanpur, Hamirpur, Azamgarh, Garhwal, Sitapur, Kheri, Fyzabad, Bahraich and Sultanpur. Among these Kheri stands out with remissions of $3\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs and suspensions of over Rs. 79,000. Other districts receiving relief on this account were Dehra Dun, Banda, Jhansi, Jalaun, Mirzapur, Ghazipur, Basti, Rae Bareilly and Partabgarh. The drought of 1908-9 thus cost Government over $7\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs in remissions of revenue out of the current demand and over 5 lakhs out of the suspensions of the previous year, besides causing the suspension or postponement of the collection of nearly $2\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs of the current demand and of about $17\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs of the suspended demand of the previous year which might otherwise have been collected.

28. The preceding paragraphs have dealt with suspensions and remissions of revenue granted with the sanction of Government. The action of Collectors and Commissioners in formally postponing collections on their own authority may also be briefly noticed. The total amount of the current demand of revenue so postponed is Rs. 1,08,848, the districts concerned being Jhansi, Jalaun, Bahraich and Partabgarh. In Jhansi the Collector very properly granted a postponement to the manager of the Gursarai estate who was hampered by the Bundelkhand Alienation of Land Act in executing decrees against certain inferior proprietors in the estate.* In Jalaun it would seem that while in some tracts injury was so great as to require remissions, in others postponement was sufficient relief. In Bahraich the postponement of a large sum (Rs. 98,858) has not been definitely explained by the Deputy Commissioner or noticed by the Commissioner. The Board have no doubt there was ample justification, but have called the Commissioner's attention to the need for brief comment on independent action of this kind, when considerable sums are involved. A small sum (Rs. 679 only) was postponed in Partabgarh.

29. The demand for malikana was collected in full in all districts except Muttra, Allahabad, Jhansi, Mirzapur, Ballia and Azamgarh. The small balances in Allahabad and Azamgarh are returned as having been remitted. In Allahabad it is said that the remission is due to the reduction of land revenue in the villages concerned, but it is doubtful whether the malikana should be reduced in such circumstances and further enquiry will be made. Explanation has also been called for from Azamgarh, where possibly the same course has been followed. The small balance of Rs. 21 in Muttra is not explained. The arrears of the previous year and all the current demand were realised during the year, or shortly after its close, in Mirzapur, and the small balance in Ballia is due from a mahal under attachment. The only substantial balance remains in Jhansi, where the arrears not demanded in previous years owing to a misunderstanding, are being collected in instalments: there were, however, certain ordinary arrears regarding which suitable action was taken. One item of Rs. 6 is returned as 'nominal' and further enquiry is being made as to its nature. As usual, persons to whom malikana was due did not in all cases apply for payment during the year. The debit balance shown against Bareilly is due to payments to the Hearsey family under an arrangement with the Honorable East India Company which are not now counterbalanced by receipts in any district. The Board suggested that the payments should no longer be treated as malikana, but the Government preferred to maintain the existing arrangement. The debit balance shown against Jhansi is due to the non-collection of the arrears already alluded to.

* The difficulty alluded to has been separately noticed in the annual report on the working of the Act.

30. The current demand for occupiers' rate was Rs. 85,28,035, and with Rs. 1,74,566 arrears of the previous year the total for collection was just over 87 lakhs. The demand for owners' rate, including arrears, was 1·79 lakhs. The decline under both heads, as compared with the 'record' figure of the previous year, is great, being due, of course, to the largely reduced area irrigated from canals. The collections were on the whole very good, but a total of Rs. 65,503 on account of occupiers' rate, and of Rs. 1,216 on account of owners' rate, remained uncollected. Rupees 42,274 and Rs. 6,815 were remitted under the two heads respectively, and the gross collections amounted to 87·66 lakhs. Banda appears for the first time in the returns, the demand for occupiers' rate on the Ken canal having been newly introduced during the year: collections in that district were very good. Balances exceed Rs. 1,000 only in Saharanpur, Muttra, Agra, Fatehpur, Jhansi and Jalaun. In Saharanpur and Fatehpur the arrear represents less than one per cent. of the total demand: the improvement in the latter district is highly satisfactory. In Muttra the balance amounts to about 6 per cent. of the gross demand, but here also the arrears have been much reduced. Difficulty is found in collection in the Mat tahsil. It is reported that persons willing to undertake collections as lambardars in pattidari communities cannot be found, and that the work of realising petty sums from individuals is intricate. The problem of collection is in fact similar to that of the land revenue in some of the eastern districts, with this added difficulty that the demand is not constant. In Agra the collection of canal rates was retarded by the large realisations of takavi and suspended land revenue. In Jalaun the large balance is partly due from estates under direct management, and part of the demand was postponed for collection at the recent khariif harvest. In Jhansi more than half the demand for occupiers' rate remained uncollected, the chief cause being the levy of rates for water supplied from old reservoirs constructed by zamindars but repaired by the Tanks Division of the Irrigation Department. The demand seems to have been made by the Collector in advance of a decision of the question of the terms upon which private tanks should be re-constructed and maintained—a question which is complicated by the fact that some of the tanks are not primarily intended to provide irrigation directly, but to benefit the land by submergence, or to raise the water-level in the subsoil to the advantage of neighbouring wells.

31. The total demand for local rates and cesses was (including arrears) Rs. 70,06,798, 44½ lakhs being the demand for local rate in the temporarily-settled districts of the province of Agra, 5¼ lakhs for acreage rate, receipts from surrendered jagirs and road cess in the permanently-settled districts of the same province, and 9¾ lakhs and 10½ lakhs for consolidated local rate and rural police rate respectively in Oudh. Omitting certain nominal items written off on account of actual reductions, the demand was collected in full in all but 15 districts, the total realisable arrears being Rs. 12,215 only. The arrears of local rate in the province of Agra were due in those districts where no collections either of revenue or rates were effected in respect of the few mahals concerned. The only considerable arrear (Rs. 1,949) is found in Shahjahanpur, where the whole revenue of certain mahals was suspended and the Collector did not press for payment of rates. With petty exceptions in Lucknow and Gonda, the only arrears of either local or police rates in Oudh are found in Bahraich where, apparently, the demand from the Balrampur estate was postponed with the Commissioner's sanction, presumably because the land revenue in the villages concerned had been suspended.

32. The number of state properties at the commencement of the year stood at 624: four new properties were acquired and 17 disposed of during the year. The latter consisted for the most part of properties acquired either under the Jhansi Encumbered Estates Act (XVI of 1882), or the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act (I of 1903), which were restored to the original proprietors. The current demand including that of the Dudhi estate fell from Rs. 3,49,621 to Rs. 3,36,371, mainly owing to the transfer of two whole villages and a portion of a third in the Kheri district to the Forest Department. In the Allahabad district the demand rose from Rs. 1,33,197 to Rs. 1,35,762, while there was a fall in Hamirpur from Rs. 10,432 to Rs. 3,399; elsewhere there was little change. In nearly all estates there was a considerable balance of arrears outstanding from the previous year.

Statements V and VI.

Statements VII, VIII, IX and X.

Statement XI.

The total collections of current and arrear demand showed a marked improvement, Rs. 3,55,674 or 88 per cent. being realised as against Rs. 2,31,028. In most districts collections were full and a large part of the arrears was also recovered. The principal exceptions are found in the submontane districts of Kheri, Bahraich and Gonda, where the seasons continued to be unfavourable and there is still a large balance of arrears. In the Agra province the arrears were reduced from Rs. 73,502 to Rs. 14,666, many of the estates now showing a clean sheet. The Bundelkhand districts did particularly well, in spite of the difficulties of managing the small properties acquired under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act. The arrears in these districts now amount to Rs. 1,633 only as against Rs. 36,357 in 1907-8. There was an increase in expenditure under the head of contingencies from Rs. 17,928 to Rs. 23,424, due mainly to the resumption of full payments of rent for land held by Barwars in the Gonda district. The charges for establishment showed a slight decrease. The balance accruing to Government after meeting all charges amounted to Rs. 1,62,424.

The Dudhi estate enjoyed on the whole a favourable season, both the kharif and rabi crops being well up to average and high prices being realised for the produce. The tenantry who had been treated with great liberality quickly recovered from the effects of the distress of 1907-8. The bulk of the rental demand, viz. Rs. 21,208 out of Rs. 21,923, and more than double this amount in takavi dues, were realised without difficulty. The expenditure on improvements was somewhat heavier as the work on the Mondri-Semer road, which will provide direct communication with the nearest railway, is being pushed on. There was also an increased expenditure on education owing to the opening of new schools and the provision of scholarships to promising pupils. The financial results were satisfactory and showed a balance at the close of the year to the credit of Government of Rs. 5,266: in the preceding year there was a deficit of Rs. 3,556. The estate is reported to be generally in a flourishing condition but the indebtedness of some of the aboriginal proprietors is giving cause for anxiety and measures for checking their powers of alienation have been recommended by the district authorities. As the Board have stated in their report on the working of the Bundelkhand Alienation of Land Act they are considering the application of that Act to this tract.

33. Statement XII, which is dealt with in this paragraph, shows much larger figures than formerly, the reason being that certain items of income were not uniformly included in district returns in past years. Under instructions from the Board district officers have now included the necessary items. The statement now covers all those miscellaneous demands under the budget head 'Land Revenue' of which the departmental audit rests with the Board, or which are directly connected with the administration of other business mentioned in this report. The items included are fines and forfeitures of revenue courts, rents of 'class C' lands occupied by railway companies, contributions on account of establishments for the management of attached estates, mutation fees and fines, and partition fees. Of these all but partition fees are credited to heads of receipts which are shared between the provincial and the imperial Government, and are shown in the first part of the statement: partition fees, being a purely 'provincial' receipt, are shown in the second part of the statement. Fines and forfeitures of revenue courts amounted to Rs. 2,528, all but Rs. 4 being collected. Rents of 'class C' lands amounted to Rs. 1,042 only. Rs. 95 remained uncollected, the Bengal and North-Western Railway being responsible for Rs. 91 of the arrear in the Benares and Gonda districts. Rs. 4 remained uncollected in Meerut, the defaulter being apparently the Shahdara-Saharapur Light Railway company. Contributions from attached estates on account of the establishment employed in managing them were due to the extent of Rs. 11,739. With small exceptions in Hamirpur, Allahabad, Jaunpur, Ballia and Sitapur the whole amount was duly credited to Government. The demand was in Aligarh Rs. 900, Fatehpur Rs. 951, Sitapur Rs. 3,351, Hardoi Rs. 1,622 and Sultanpur Rs. 1,293. In all these districts substantial estates were under attachment. The demand for mutation fees was Rs. 28,656 of which sum all but Rs. 810 were collected. The arrears exceed Rs. 50 only in Sitapur (Rs. 159) and Fyzabad (Rs. 97); in the former district the balance represents about one-fourth and in the latter about one-sixth of the demand. These fees have recently been abolished with the sanction of the Government of India, and after the current year they will disappear from the accounts. The total demand on account of mutation fines (levied for delay in reporting transfers) was Rs. 1,78,238, of which Rs. 13,622 remained uncollected. It is well known that these dues are difficult to collect, and the Board will again refer to them when dealing with the subject of coercive processes. The demand varied from Rs. 334 in Jhansi, Rs. 586 in Naini Tal and Rs. 810 in Kheri, to large sums like Rs. 8,999 in Sultanpur, Rs. 9,035 in Meerut, over Rs. 10,000 in Gorakhpur and Azamgarh, and no less than Rs. 13,176 in Saharanpur. Twenty-five districts show collections absolutely in full, and in fourteen others not more than 10 per cent. of the demand remained uncollected. More serious balances are noticeable in Saharanpur (20 per cent.), Agra (24 per cent.), Bareilly (20 per cent.), Bijnor (11 per cent.), Allahabad (18 per cent.), Jhansi (17 per cent.), Basti (20 per cent.), Bahraich (19 per cent.), and Sultanpur (16 per cent.). Doubtless the arrears will be realised in due course, except in Bareilly where the Collector seems to have remitted the fines. The demand for partition fees, including arrears, amounted to Rs. 2,00,507, of which Rs. 1,88,415 was collected during the year. The balances presumably represent fees calculated towards the close of the year, but not realised within it.

34. The recovery of the sale proceeds of an escheat in Banda is still proceeding by annual instalments of Rs. 10. Otherwise there is now no demand under the heads dealt with in statement XIII.

§ 34.—Sale of waste lands, &c.
Statement XIII.

35. During the year 1907-8, owing to the famine, the enormous sum of 280·68 lakhs was advanced in pursuance of the policy described in last year's report. During 1908-9 advances were naturally required on a much smaller scale, but owing to the stimulus given by the experience of the previous year there was still an abnormal demand, particularly in the districts which did not fare well in the rainy season of 1908, while loans in aid of the construction of masonry wells and other improvements were still sought on a considerable scale in most districts of the plains. The total of the advances made during the year was 31·44 lakhs, 7·13 lakhs having been issued for improvements under Act XIX of 1883, and 24·31 lakhs for temporary loans under Act XII of 1884.

§§ 35-41.—Agricultural advances.
Statements XIV and XV.

36. The greater part of the advances under Act XII of 1884 was required to finance the sowings for the rabi harvest of 1909, and nearly 18½ lakhs were advanced for the purchase of seed alone during the year. The largest advances on this account were made in Bahraich (8·64 lakhs), Kheri (1·93 lakhs), Basti (1·32 lakhs) and Azamgarh (1·06 lakhs). In the three first-named districts scarcity re-appeared in 1909 while in Azamgarh the failure of successive harvests of late rice had depleted the stock of seed. Advances of less than one lakh, but not less than half a lakh, were given for seed in Banda, Hamirpur, Mirzapur and Fyzabad. Comparatively small sums were required elsewhere, and in several districts no advances were made for this purpose. Less than half a lakh was advanced for kachcha wells, and the amount was considerable only in Fyzabad where Rs. 19,000 were issued. Small sums were required for miscellaneous advances, e.g., for well gear and rebuilding village houses burnt down, and nearly Rs. 41,000 which had been expended in Banda during the famine on importing fodder was brought to account as advances to the purchasers. A considerable sum (4·33 lakhs) was advanced for the purchase of cattle, the chief demand arising in Aligarh, Bareilly, Shahjahanpur, the Bundelkhand districts, Jaunpur, Ghazipur, Basti, the Lucknow division (excluding Hardoi), Fyzabad and Bahraich. Most of these districts have sustained great losses in cattle of late years.

37. Advances under Act XIX of 1883 were in a considerable degree final instalments of advances partially issued during the famine, but a large number of new applications were also met. By far the largest sum (Rs 85,662) was paid out in the Meerut district, but the total approached or exceeded Rs. 30,000 in Etah, Budaun, Banda, Benares, Rae Bareilly, Sitapur, Kheri and Sultanpur. On the other hand Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Pilibhit, Gorakhpur and Gonda required no advances under this Act and Partabgarh used Rs. 1,000 only. Elsewhere in the plains advances were on a modest scale. In the hills Rs. 6,450 were given out for irrigation channels. The number of masonry wells completed within the year by the aid of current and former advances is returned at 6,236, the highest figures being in Meerut (296), Budaun (829), Gorakhpur (234), Lucknow (517), Unao (504), Rae Bareli (580), Hardoi (255), Kheri (273), Partabgarh (460) and Bara Banki (655) : and a large number (5,294) were still under construction, chiefly in Meerut (906), Agra (398), Budaun (462), Rae Bareli (621), Hardoi (251), Kheri (205) and Bara Banki (879). Also 755 wells had not yet been begun in various districts. Nearly 1,100 wells were repaired or put under repairs. Numerous embankments and tanks were also constructed or repaired with the aid of advances, chiefly in the districts along the Jumna from Agra eastwards, and in Bundelkhand, Rae Bareli and Partabgarh.

38. The total principal sum outstanding on 1st October 1908 was 253·48 lakhs. 75·14 lakhs under Act XIX and 178·34 lakhs under Act XII. The new advances during the year raised the total to be accounted for to 82·28 lakhs under Act XIX and 202·64 lakhs under Act XII. Of these sums 15·69 lakhs are returned as having been due for collection within the year under the former Act, and 150·89 lakhs under the latter. The actual collections under the two Acts respectively were 13·45 lakhs and 109·60 lakhs. In addition 0·17 lakhs and 7·38 lakhs were remitted, and the actual arrears of the demand due for collection (allowing for advance and excess collections) were 2·2 lakhs and 34·33 lakhs, a total of 36·53 lakhs under both Acts. Of this balance, however, the collection of no less than 15·91 lakhs was formally suspended or postponed. If this item be omitted the arrears which might have been collected represent about 13 per cent. of the demand excluding the amount remitted. The balance outstanding under the two Acts respectively at the end of the year was 68·66 lakhs and 85·66 lakhs, being in all not quite one crore (actually 99·16 lakhs) less than at the beginning.

39. In respect of collections of loans issued under Act XIX of 1883, Dehra Dun, Budaun, Pilibhit, Ghazipur, Naini Tal and Kheri show a clear balance sheet. In twenty other districts the balance of demands due for collection within the year is less than Rs. 1,000; the more prominent arrears elsewhere may be considered by divisions.

Meerut division.—In the Meerut district the arrear is about 6 per cent. only : it was substantially reduced in October. In Aligarh it is about 12 per cent. and the Collector assigns indifferent harvests as the cause.

Agra division.—About one-third of the demand was uncollected in Muttra. A considerable part of the sum accounted for under this Act is really due from cultivators who took advances for kachcha wells in the famine, and the same causes operated to prevent collections as in the case of advances under Act XII of 1884. In the Agra district the arrear was less than 9 per cent., and the Collector did not press collections in the tahsils which had suffered most severely in the famine, or afterwards by floods. In Farrukhabad the arrear is less than 10 per cent. and is not serious.

Rohilkhand division.—In this division Shahjahanpur is the only district showing substantial arrears, which there represent nearly one-third of the year's demand. Part of this, as in Muttra, was due for kachcha-well advances and the Collector was unable to employ severe pressure in collection.

Allahabad division.—Fatehpur has an arrear of about 15 per cent. Moderation was shown in enforcing collections and the Commissioner thinks it was justified. In the Allahabad district the arrear is about 11 per cent. The Collector thinks a part may be found to be irrecoverable, but he does not explain on what grounds. The arrear in Jhansi is about 8 per cent., but a considerable part of it was formally postponed.

Benares division.—The balance in Mirzapur is not absolutely high, and it is not explained. In Jaunpur it is about 7 per cent. and in Ballia about 20 per cent. For the latter district no explanation is offered.

Gorakhpur division.—In Azamgarh the whole arrear was suspended, but in Barti about 28 per cent. remained uncollected. The number of petty proprietors from whom repayments were due may be some justification for the failure to collect, but it is not an obviously full explanation in the case of these loans.

Lucknow division.—The only district requiring special notice in this division is Unao, where 27 per cent. of the demand remained uncollected. This is not explained.

Fyzabad division.—Except in Bara Banki and Partabgarh the collections were nowhere really satisfactory. In Fyzabad the arrear of nearly 40 per cent. is not explained at all: in Gonda the very small collections are attributed to the inability of the special collecting staff to reach the villages concerned in time: in Bahraich there is no apparently sufficient reason. In Sultanpur more than one-third was unrealised.

Reviewing collections of advances under this Act as a whole, and bearing in mind that repayments are usually demanded in fixed sums from a relatively small number of borrowers, the Board think that they are not satisfactory in some districts. In some cases it is clear that reliance was placed upon the special staff, which was allowed more particularly for the collection of numerous petty loans under the other Act, but there is no reason why the ordinary staff should not have dealt effectively with these less abnormal demands.

40. In respect of collections under Act XII Naini Tal and Almora alone Collections under Act XII of 1884. show a clean sheet. If the large demands to be met and the amounts suspended are considered, the arrears may be regarded as satisfactorily small, being less than 5 per cent., in Meerut, Saharanpur, Mainpuri, Etawah, Etah, Bareilly, Moradabad, Pilibhit, Cawnpore, Banda, Jhansi, Jalaun, Mirzapur, Ghazipur, Azamgarh, Garhwal, Lucknow, Rae Bareilly and Partabgarh. The remaining districts may be considered by divisions.

Meerut division.—The considerable balance in Dehra Dun might, apparently, have been formally suspended. In Muzaffarnagar no special explanation is offered, but one tahsil seems to have been particularly backward. In Bulandshahr the Collector offers no remarks. In Aligarh it is stated that better collections could not be made in view of the moderate character of the harvest.

Agra division.—Muttra has a very large balance. The kharif was damaged by excessive rain and the sowings for the rabi were restricted by the epidemic of fever, and as the district had other considerable arrear demands to meet the results need not be regarded as unsatisfactory. In the Agra district the large balance is chiefly found in two tahsils, one of which had suffered severely in the previous year's famine, while the other had been damaged by floods in 1908, and the Collector refrained, the Board think rightly, from extreme measures. In Farrukhabad the arrear is about 7 per cent.

Rohilkhand division.—In Bijnor similarly the Collector did not think it wise to press collections at the risk of driving tenants from their holdings. In Budaun the arrears are only about 10 per cent. of the demand. The Collector reports that more could have been collected had the special collecting staff been appointed earlier. In Shahjahanpur collections were difficult, as in the case of land revenue.

Allahabad division.—The collections in Fatehpur show a great improvement as compared with the preceding year and the Commissioner thinks that moderation in pressing the demand was justified. In Hamirpur one tahsil (Maudaha) is chiefly accountable for the large arrear: it has suffered more than any other from recent calamities and the state of collections in the district as a whole is satisfactory. In the Allahabad district the Bundelkhand tahsils, and the Meja tahsil in particular, account for most of the arrears. No doubt famine was severe in the previous year, but collections compare unfavourably with those of Mirzapur on the one side or Banda on the other.

Benares division.—In the Benares district the tracts in which the bulk of the takavi was due did not enjoy good harvests during the year, and, as in some other districts, the Collector exercised judicious forbearance. In Jaunpur similar leniency was required in the distressed tracts of tahsil Shahganj—in fact the arrears might have been formally suspended. In Ballia the arrear is about 8 per cent. of the considerable demand and it is not unduly large.

Gorakhpur division.—The arrear in the Gorakhpur district is not adequately explained, but it is not large in actual amount. In Basti the total demand was very great (7¼ lakhs) and the unsuspended balance of over a lakh is said to be chiefly due in the Domariaganj tahsil which was hard hit in the general famine and again in 1909.

Kumaun division.—Collections of the subsistence takavi granted during the famine were everywhere satisfactory. The recurrence of distress in Garhwal resulted in the postponement of 1¼ lakhs until the current year.

Lucknow division.—The arrear (10 per cent.) in Unao is not explained, but it is not really large in comparison with the demand. In Sitapur nearly 5 lakhs out of the total demand of 9½ lakhs were collected, and rather more than 1 lakh was suspended in the tracts where the crops failed during the year. The real arrears amount to about $3\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs. The Deputy Commissioner attributes the largeness of this sum to the tactical mistake of not appointing naib-tahsildars early enough in the rabi season. In Hardoi the arrear (about 17 per cent. of the demand) is not explained at all. In Kheri the unsuspended arrear is about Rs. 34,000. About $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs were formally suspended. The district did not fare well in 1908-9 and the recent kharif has not been satisfactory.

Fyzabad division.—The large arrear in the Fyzabad district, representing over 37 per cent. of the demand, was not even commented on by the Deputy Commissioner. The Commissioner has been informed that the result is unsatisfactory. In Gonda nearly $2\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of the enormous sum advanced during the famine were remitted, and more than half the balance of $20\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs was collected. More than 3 lakhs due for collection within the year were not collected, but the Commissioner and the Board are satisfied that proper measures were taken. The arrear is chiefly due in the tracts which suffered from drought both in 1907 and 1908 or from floods in the rains of 1909 when collections became impossible. In Bahraich the results are similar. About Rs. 59,000 were remitted and half the total balance was collected. Of the large uncollected balance ($9\frac{3}{4}$ lakhs) nearly $8\frac{1}{4}$ lakhs were formally suspended. There were therefore $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs of ordinary arrears, which the Deputy Commissioner reports as due to the bad times the cultivators had passed through. Considering the magnitude of the sum to be dealt with the results may be considered as not unsatisfactory. The arrear in Sultanpur is nearly 20 per cent. of the demand. The Deputy Commissioner anticipates that, unless joint responsibility is enforced, there may be some difficulty in effecting full collections. In Bara Banki over 4 lakhs were actually collected and the arrear of half a lakh is relatively small.

41. It will thus be seen that with few exceptions the progress made in clearing off the large takavi loans issued in the past two years is satisfactory. The Board have recently reported that of the enormous amounts advanced during the general famine all but about 5 lakhs will probably be recovered during the current revenue year, while nearly all the later advances should also be recovered. Loans have been issued on a moderate scale since September last, and a year hence the account of outstandings under Act XII of 1884 should assume more normal proportions.

42. Interest is collected, as a rule, only when principal is repaid, and when any payment is made, the interest due is credited first in the accounts. The details of interest due and in arrear as shown in the appendices are therefore of little value and, under the new system of account which has been approved by Government and will shortly be brought into force, it will be no longer possible or necessary to show them. In addition to the principal sums realised during the year nearly $9\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs were realised as interest—2 lakhs on account of loans under Act XIX and nearly $7\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs under Act XII. The only other matters deserving special notice in this connection are the calculation that the remissions of principal during the year resulted in a loss of Rs. 54,591 as interest, and the estimate that over $2\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs more interest would have been collected had there been no suspensions and arrears of principal.

43. At the close of the famine in 1908 the recoverable portions of advances made to certain landowners to enable them to execute village relief works were transferred to the ordinary loan account, and the Board have called upon Collectors to report the progress made in recovery in their annual revenue administration reports. It is doubtful whether a special appendix to the Board's own report is required to exhibit the figures by districts and no such appendix has been inserted this year. If, however, Government thinks it necessary, arrangements will be made for the next report. The following districts have to account for advances of this character:—Dehra Dun, Muttra, Agra, Etawah, Bareilly, Bijnor, Budaun, Shahjahanpur, all districts of the Allahabad and Benares divisions, Basti, Azamgarh, Almora, Garhwal, and all districts in Oudh except Partabgarh—thirty-five districts in all. The advances are usually recoverable by equated instalments calculated to repay principal and interest in five or ten years. Their total amount after adjustments was found to be Rs. 8,27,677 and the total of the instalments (including principal and interest) due within the year was Rs. 1,69,049. Of this gross demand Rs. 1,36,601, were actually collected, Rs. 21,055 being credited to interest and Rs. 1,15,546 to principal. The principal outstanding at the close of the year was thus reduced to Rs. 7,12,131.

It will, however, be increased this year by Rs. 35,441 added on account of similar advances made during the scarcity of 1909. In Muttra, Bijnor, Cawnpore, Hamirpur, Ghazipur and Lucknow the instalments due within the year were collected in full: and in Hardoi it appears that repayments were not to begin until this year. The arrears are moderate in comparison with the total demand in Etawah, Bareilly, Banda, Allahabad, Jhansi, Benares, Mirzapur, Sitapur, Kheri, Rae Bareli, Fyzabad, Bahraich and Bara Banki. They are relatively high, but not large in actual amount, in Dehra Dun, Budaun, Shahjahanpur, Fatehpur, Jalaun, Ballia, Almora, Garhwal and Unao. No district officer or Commissioner has commented on these arrears. In the remaining districts, Agra, Jaunpur, Basti, Azamgarh, Gonda, and Sultanpur arrears are high and the same causes seem to have operated to prevent collections as in the case of ordinary takavi loans. In Sultanpur the reason is perhaps less adequate than in other districts.

44. The year opened with an outstanding debt under the Bundelkhand Encumbered Estates Act of Rs. 23,96,942* of which nearly 16½ lakhs were due from borrowers who are in possession of their estates, and 7½ lakhs from persons whose property is managed by the Collectors under section 21 (c) of the Act. In the former case the loans are repayable by equated instalments, including principal and interest, the aggregate demand for the year being Rs. 2,36,433. Of this total local crop failures caused the suspension of Rs. 7,469 in Hamirpur, Jhansi and Jalaun. Of the remainder all but Rs. 7,032 were collected, notable arrears appearing in Hamirpur and Jhansi. In Hamirpur, the Collector reports, the defaulting proprietors are scarcely able to manage their property themselves, and if the present favourable year does not result in an improvement, direct management, or even sale, may have to be proposed. In Jhansi the Collector attributes the arrear chiefly to the neglect of the Tahsildar of one tahsil. The nett rental demand of estates under direct management under this Act, including arrears but excluding remitted and suspended rents, was Rs. 1,61,828. The amount actually collected was Rs. 1,47,460 or over 91 per cent. of the nett demand. Rs. 80,431 were absorbed in the payment of land revenue, local rates, and cost of management, and Rs. 929 were available from the previous year's collections, but, on the other hand, Rs. 1,315, of current collections remained to the credit of the estates. The amount actually utilised towards liquidation of the loans was Rs. 63,638. The year's transactions made Rs. 2,90,120 available for the repayment of loans and the final result was to reduce the principal debt by Rs. 1,53,350 and to recover Rs. 1,36,770 on account of interest. The credits to interest are disproportionately high on account of the large suspensions made in previous years, for, although the recovery of equated instalments, or of rents, may be suspended, when the next payment is made interest is due for a longer period than usual. The balance of loans outstanding at the end of the year was Rs. 22,38,430.

45. The total number of coercive processes returned in statement No. XVI is 167,130, a number very nearly double that returned in the previous year. The total demands for which processes were used exceeded 177 lakhs, as against 110½ lakhs in the preceding year, and no doubt the difficulty of collecting the exceptionally large demand (including heavy arrears) of land revenue and takavi may have caused by itself an increased need for exerting pressure, but, on the other hand, the circular orders of the Board alluded to in last year's report have certainly led to a more free use of regular processes and, it is to be hoped, the abandoning of irregular methods of collecting revenue demands. The irregular use of 'omnibus' citations and warrants has been checked: this also has caused a considerable rise in the figures. For the collection of the amalgamated demand of land revenue proper and local rates and cesses 6,755 writs of demand, 59,105 citations, 8,694 warrants of arrest, 5,122 attachments of moveable property, 152 attachments of immoveable property, 20 transfers of shares, and one sale of immoveable property were employed. In all respects these figures indicate a considerable increase in the legal pressure used, though not necessarily a corresponding increase in actual pressure by lawful and irregular methods together. The number of writs used rose by 87 per cent., of citations by 150 per cent., of warrants of arrest by 86 per cent., and of attachments of moveable property by 36 per cent as compared with the previous year. The number of writs and citations (which may be regarded as preliminary processes) taken together shows an increase of 142 per cent., that is to say the increase is much the greatest in the case of such processes, and about four-fifths of them seem to have been sufficient in themselves to secure payment, little more than 20 per cent. having to be followed up by more severe measures. The number of warrants of arrest is certainly high (being over 4,000 more than in 1907-8) but this is attributable to some extent to the issue of separate warrants for each defaulter to be arrested and also, in part, to the increased facility for making arrests afforded by the attendance of defaulters in answer to citations. The number of defaulters actually detained in custody was 1,249, a number not high in itself, though much higher than usual. Attachments of moveables also, though comparatively numerous, were followed by sale in only 121 cases—an insignificant number. The general conclusion to be drawn from these figures is that the demand for land revenue and rates was collected with very little interference with property or the liberties of the subject. Even defaulters on whom citations are served do not as a rule actually appear in answer, but remit their revenue by money-order or hasten their inevitable visits to the tahsil to make payments. In their special report on the use of processes the Board drew attention to certain districts which showed a high percentage of the total number of warrants and attachments to the total number of writs and citations, the inference drawn being that regular processes were not used as a preliminary to arrest or attachment. The percentage is still high in Etawah (46), Budaun (62) and Partabgarh (49), while (as already noted) in the provinces generally the percentage is little over 20. In Aligarh, Moradabad and Allahabad also the percentage is considerably above the provincial average. The instructions of the Board have evidently borne fruit even in these districts, as there has been considerable improvement, but the remarks of some of the Collectors leave no room for doubt that the old irregularities still occur to some extent and will take time to eradicate. The last year was not one in which collections were easy, and it is perhaps not possible to draw just conclusions from the figures.

46. In respect of mutation fees and fines as usual an enormous number of processes were required. Writs were issued free of charge to the number of 46,253 : citations numbered 10,065 : warrants of arrest 1,742 and attachments of moveables 9,547. Only four persons, however, were actually detained in custody, and only 56 sales followed attachment. The following districts persist in disregarding the orders requiring the use of writs in connection with these demands :—Dehra Dun, Saharanpur, Farrukhabad,* Etawah,* Bijnor, Budaun, Ballia, Azamgarh, Sitapur, Kheri, Partabgarh and Bara Banki ; while in Moradabad, Shahjahanpur, Jhansi, Benares, Lucknow, Rae Bareilly and Gonda the numbers returned are so small as to indicate that the orders are generally disregarded. In Dehra Dun, Kheri and Partabgarh the whole number of processes is small and no inference can be drawn. In Budaun and Sitapur not even citations were issued in the first instance, the more cumbrous and harassing processes of arrest or attachment being adopted without any regular preliminary. In Farrukhabad only 31 citations were used and in Bijnor only 22, considerably more warrants and attachments being issued. In Saharanpur, on the other hand, no less than 1,146 citations, 72 warrants of arrest and 465 attachments were employed. In Ballia the whole number of processes returned is 56 citations only, and it is not conceivable that fees and fines for the numerous mutations in that district were realised without further pressure. In Azamgarh again 2,416 citations were used, being followed by 376 warrants and 36 attachments. The Board have little doubt that the issue of writs free of charge in several of these districts would have avoided the necessity for the issue even of citations in many cases and have thereby relieved the persons liable from an appreciable addition to a petty fee or fine : and they regret that the repeated instructions on this subject have been fruitless.

47. After mutation fees and fines the collection of takavi required the issue of the largest number of processes, chiefly citations (8,389), warrants (1,475) and attachments (3,048). Remarkable numbers of citations were used in Saharanpur (469), Aligarh (669), Agra (1,085), Shahjahanpur (765), Allahabad (523) Jhansi

* In these two districts it is possible that writs for mutation fees and fines, being issued free of charge, have not been included in the returns.

(458) and Hardoi (847); warrants of arrest were generally few in number, but they were remarkably numerous in Allahabad (351) and Almora (514). In only 31 cases in Allahabad, however, were defaulters actually detained in custody and in no case in Almora. Attachments of moveables exceeded 100 in number in Etawah, Etah, Pilibhit, all districts of the Allahabad division (except Hamirpur), Gorakhpur and Basti, the numbers exceeding 300 in Etawah and Banda, but in no district was subsequent sale necessary in many cases. Considering the large number of petty sums to be collected and their wide distribution, it may perhaps be said that no great pressure was required to secure payment. The number of processes might probably have been much greater had not a special collecting staff been employed in districts where the demand was greatest. That staff seems to have worked successfully on the whole, but the Board find few descriptions in the district reports of the actual methods employed or the character of the pressure, if any, employed.

48. The figures connected with the collection of canal revenue are not remarkable.

49. The Board are glad to receive the assurance of most of the Commissioners that an earnest effort has been and is being made to place the management of processes on a legal and reasonable footing, though they cannot admit that further improvement is not possible. It is regrettable that, as the Commissioner of Lucknow reports, no copy of the Board's orders was forthcoming in one tahsil in the Lucknow district where he found the use of processes unsatisfactory.

50. The number of estates under attachment including attachments under §50.—Estates under direct manage- section 185 for the recovery of under proprietary rents ment. at the close of the preceding year was 146. In all 325 were attached during the year making a total of 471 under attachment at some time during the year as compared with 370 in 1907-08. There was an increase in the number attached for arrears of land revenue, for which the Bareilly and Sultanpur districts were principally responsible. The attachments on account of failure to appoint a lambardar were less than in the previous year, viz. 83 as compared with 98. Difficulty in procuring nominations to lambardarships was mainly experienced in the Bijnor and Jhansi districts: in Fatehpur the number of attachments on this account showed a marked decrease. The total demand rose from Rs. 1,65,451 to Rs. 2,52,910 of which Rs. 1,16,618 were collected leaving a balance of Rs. 1,36,292 at the close of the year. The balances were particularly heavy in the Hardoi and Shahjahanpur districts; in the latter no realizations were effected from a demand of Rs. 24,130, charge of the properties having been assumed at the end of the year. A sum of Rs. 89,302 was credited to land revenue and cesses and Rs. 12,500 spent on management. The comparatively small percentage of collections was due in most cases to the short time during which the estates remained under management. The number remaining at the close of the year was 171.

51. The land revenue demand on the roll on October 1st 1908 was Rs. 6,47,67,202 as returned in the statement appended to the last report. The demand for the revenue assessed on the resumed gorais' jagirs in Basti was formerly included amongst the items of miscellaneous revenue dealt with in statement no. XII, but it differs from ordinary land revenue only in that it is credited entirely to provincial receipts and is not shared with the Imperial Government: nor is it classified as a 'miscellaneous' land revenue receipt in the provincial accounts. It has therefore been shown like other land revenue in statements I, II and III which deal with the collections and balances under that head, and in statement XVII. Including it, the revenue on the roll on October 1st, 1908 was Rs. 6,48,04,818. Regular settlements added over 1½ lakhs, and summary assessments in alluvial mahals, resumed revenue-free properties and the like, nearly Rs. 58,000. The increases due to recent settlements are found in Moradabad, Banda and Hamirpur, but in Banda they were more than counterbalanced, and in Hamirpur almost counterbalanced, by decreases. Similarly, summary assessments in alluvial mahals and the like and reductions of revenue on the acquisition of land for public purposes resulted in a decrease exceeding Rs. 42,000. The increases shown as due to regular settlements in respect of other districts represent instalments of progressive demands fixed at settlements which have come into force within the last ten years. The revenue on the roll on 1st October 1909, after all these adjustments, stood at Rs. 6,49,37,777, giving a nett increase within the year of Rs. 1,32,959.

CHAPTER III.—RENT LAW LITIGATION.

52. The total number of new cases instituted in the Province of Agra (Kumaun excepted) during 1908-9 under the Agra Tenancy Act was 370,337, or 65,731 more than in the previous year. All important classes of cases show an increase, but nearly 96 per cent. of the rise is accounted for by suits for arrears and enhancement of rent suits and applications for ejectment, and by applications for service of notices of surrender, and litigation of these classes was more than 94 per cent. of the whole.

53. The total number of suits for arrears of rent rose from 137,694 to 173,038 or by 29 per cent. With the exception of Dehra Dun and Gorakhpur the increase is common to all districts: in those two the decrease is very small. The total number far exceeds any previous total, and not only is the total greater for the provinces than ever before, but the same is true of each division, though the present figures have occasionally been nearly approached in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions. As compared with the previous year the rise is greatest in the Rohilkhand and Allahabad divisions (52 and 48 per cent. respectively) which had shown the greatest decreases in the preceding year. The Meerut, Agra, Benares and Gorakhpur divisions follow in the order in which they are named. Over 10,000 suits were filed in the Budaun and Allahabad districts: over 8,000 in Meerut, Bulandshahr, Shahjahanpur and Jaunpur: over 7,000 in Moradabad and Cawnpore: over 6,000 in Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Etah, Bareilly, Benares and Azamgarh, and less numbers elsewhere. The increases in several of these districts are enormous, and the work of the courts (chiefly those of tahsildars in connection with these cases) must have been very heavy. The Collector of Budaun in fact remarks that in one tahsil alone over 3,000 cases were instituted, and observes that whole districts in Oudh can hardly show more cases. The Board anticipated a large rise in these suits during 1908-9 when submitting their last report. The basis of the forecast was, of course, the large suspensions of rent (and revenue) allowed in the majority of districts, the unfavourable character of the previous year and the general improvement of prospects in 1908-9. If any other cause operated to increase the number of these suits it is completely obscured by these, and not a single district officer attempts to enunciate one.

54. The usual correspondence between suits for arrears of rent and applications for ejectment after a decree for arrears is again visible. While the suits referred to increased by 29 per cent. the applications for ejectment rose by 30 per cent. Of the total number of applications for disposal (48,801), ejectment was ordered in 10,132 cases (less than 21 per cent. of the total), but the area from which ejectment was ordered was, being over 58,000 acres, rather higher in proportion than usual. The proportion of cases in which ejectment was ordered is fairly even throughout the province, exceeding one-third of the total only in Hamirpur, Jhansi and Jalaun, in which districts, however, the total number of cases was small. The tenants ejected through this process were chiefly occupancy tenants, who lost over 53,000 acres. In the cases in which ejectment was not ordered, i.e., nearly 80 per cent. of the whole, it may be assumed that applications were filed merely to recover decreed arrears of rent. An important decision was given by the Board during the year to the effect that revenue courts have power to review, subject to the provisions of section 184 of the Agra Tenancy Act, orders of ejectment passed by them under section 61 of the Act.

55. The number of cases arising out of distrains rose from 1,919 in the preceding year to 2,555 in 1908-9. The figure is not much higher than in 1906-7. These suits are of little importance, as real disputes seldom arise. The cases carried into court are usually intended to be tests of title.

56. There was also a considerable rise from 8,330 to 9,823 in the number of suits for the recovery of revenue and profits between co-sharers and lambardars or other co-sharers. The Meerut district heads the list as usual, this year with 1,056 cases. Aligarh comes next with 877 cases, and Bijnor next with 687. On the whole the variations elsewhere are not important. The greatest relative increases are found in the Meerut and Allahabad divisions. Generally the comparatively high number of these suits is due to the collection of revenue from lambardars or co-sharers who were compelled to recover from other co-sharers.

57. The number of suits for the resumption of rent-free grants shows an increase in some districts and a decline in others, but the numbers of these suits are fortuitous, and nowhere important.

§ 57. Resumptions.
Statement XVIII-A.

58. The number of suits for enhancement of rent (the law allowing them to be filed only between 30th June and 1st October) depends to a very great extent on the character of the monsoon and future prospects. The monsoon of 1909 having been on the whole favourable, and considerable progress having been made in making up the ground lost in the famine year, activity in pressing for enhancements was renewed. The real increase* in the number of suits instituted is no less than 3,241, and it is shared by all districts except Dehra Dun, Bulandshahr, Shahjahanpur and Fatehpur, where there was a decrease. In the Meerut division generally there was a large increase, notably in the Meerut and Saharanpur districts, but the total has frequently been exceeded in the past. In the Agra division every district shows some increase, which is most marked in the Agra and Mainpuri districts, but the divisional total was exceeded in 1904 and 1906. In the Rohilkhand division the increase does not raise the number of suits nearly to the former average. In the more eastern divisions the numbers are never very large and the institutions of 1909 may be regarded as almost normal. There was, however, a substantial rise in the Allahabad district, attributed only to the favourable seasons. In Fatehpur, on the other hand, it is said that rumours of a general re-assessment of the district have caused a diminution in activity on the part of the landlords.

§ 58. — Enhancement of rent.
Statement XVIII-A.

59. The service of notices of surrender of holdings through official agency shows considerable variations. In all, over 14,000 such notices were served in 1909 as compared with 10,000 in 1908, but in the Meerut and Gorakhpur divisions there was a decline: in the Benares division, though there was an increase, the total was still not high: in the Agra division also the figures have frequently been exceeded of late years: in Rohilkhand and the Allahabad division, however, notices have not been so numerous since 1901. The most noticeable recorded increases are found in Budaun, Moradabad, Cawnpore, Banda and Allahabad. The Collectors of Budaun and Cawnpore both connect the rise with the development of the campaign of ejectment, asserting that zamindars procure formal surrenders as a substitute for ejectment. In Moradabad it is suggested that the accumulation of arrears of rent may have induced tenants to give up their holdings, while the friction engendered at the recent settlement by commutation of kind rents and enhancement of cash rents (the results not being satisfactory from the point of view of the landlords) may have led to oppression of tenants and the abandonment of holdings. In Banda the very large rise is due in part to the actual number of formal surrenders, and not the mere number of files of notices, being returned. In Allahabad no definite explanation is given. Except perhaps in Bundelkhand there is no reason to suppose that surrenders, inasmuch as tenants have succumbed to bad seasons, have greatly increased, but in districts of Jalaun, Jhansi and Hamirpur it seems that years of stress have caused actual defections and the conversion of cultivators into labourers.

§ 59. — Surrenders.
Statement XVIII-A.

60. The number of suits* for ejectment shows a great rise of nearly 7,000 cases in which all divisions share. In the four western divisions, however, the figures of 1909 have been exceeded or nearly equalled in some recent years, and the great and real new rise has occurred only in the Benares and Gorakhpur divisions. In the Benares division the numbers were exceeded only in 1901 just before the Tenancy Act was passed, but in the Gorakhpur division there is an excess of more than 3,000 cases over the figures even of that year. As was anticipated, the fall in 1908 proved only temporary, and 1909 saw a revival of normal conditions generally in the west, but the unprecedented increase in the extreme east and north-east of the province was not foreseen.

§§ 60-62. — Ejectment on other grounds.
Statement XIX-A.

*When the 30th September is a holiday considerable numbers of ejectment and enhancement suits are filed on the first working day in October. The figures in this chapter relating to such suits have been adjusted so as to show all cases in the years to which they properly belong. They do not, therefore, correspond exactly with the figures shown in Statements XVIII-A and XIX-A.

61. While every district of the Meerut division contributes some cases to the divisional increase for the year, in Meerut, Bulandshahr and Aligarh the total figures are less than in 1907; in Muzaffarnagar, however, the figures are greater by 965 than in 1907 and in Saharanpur 692 higher. In the Agra division, Muttra shows a considerable, and Mainpuri a small, decline for the year and the other districts generally have lower figures than in 1907. In Rohilkhand, Bareilly, Shahjahanpur and Pilibhit exhibit more or less substantial decreases, following on a fall in 1908, but Moradabad shows a return practically to the high figure of 1907; in Bijnor the figures are still lower than in 1907, and in Budaun alone have they materially increased (by 251 cases). In the Allahabad division, Fatehpur shows a continuous increase, and Banda and Allahabad a moderate rise as compared with 1907, while the figures of Cawnpore show a large decrease. In Jhansi, Jalaun and Hamirpur these suits are comparatively rare and the variations are not important. In the Benares division all districts save Mirzapur contribute to the general increase, Jaunpur and Benares being particularly noticeable. Mirzapur still has, however, a higher number of cases than in 1907. In the Gorakhpur division Basti shows a considerable fall within the year but the figures are still higher than in 1907; in Azamgarh there has been little change since the last year, but in Gorakhpur the enormous rise of 3,778 cases in 1908 was followed by another enormous rise of 2,430 cases in 1909, the total (14,540) being now far more than double that of any other district of the province save Moradabad (10,465) and Budaun (9,290).

62. The remarks made by the Board in their last two reports on the subject of these suits seem to hold good still. A rise in prices of late years has encouraged landlords to attempt to secure higher rents, and to do this without embarking later on suits for enhancement, of doubtful issue, they must prevent the accrual of occupancy rights. In 1908, however, expediency prevented them from carrying out their policy fully, for to strain after enhanced rents in depressed districts would probably have resulted in the ultimate loss of existing rents already in arrear. The general recovery from the effects of the famine has restored more normal conditions, as prices continue remarkably high, and, unless they fall substantially after the present rabi harvest, it may be anticipated that ejectment will be sued for on an undiminished or even increased scale in 1910. No special comments on the figures of the year seem to be required except in the case of the Gorakhpur district, regarding which the Government remarked, in reviewing the Board's last report, that the special causes at work merited close analysis at the hands of the local officers. The Collector and the Commissioner have dealt with the matter at length. In the first place it is reported that nearly one-fourth of the whole number of suits instituted in 1909 were suits between occupancy tenants and their sub-tenants; but the proportion is not the same, or nearly the same, in all tahsils of the district, only 10 per cent. of the suits being of this character in the most backward tahsil (Maharajganj), while in two tahsils the percentage was 13 and 23, and in the three others from 33 to 37½. Such suits are attributed by the Collector in part to the desire of some recorded occupancy tenants, in view of the rise in profits, to revive their rights to collect the rents from the persons recorded as sub-tenants who have, in practice, been tenants-in-chief for many years, paying their rents direct to the landowners: such suits are merely test cases to settle the status of tenants. In the rest of these cases an ejectment suit was an easy means of procuring an enhancement, or the chief tenant, finding himself able to finance a larger area of cultivation, really desired to recover possession. In respect of suits between proprietors and tenants the general increase is attributed not only to the rise in prices, the effect of which is visible elsewhere also, but to the desire of the smaller proprietors to increase their own cultivation. In one sense this is merely a re-statement of the general proposition that the proprietors are anxious to secure for themselves a larger share in present-day profits of agriculture, and it is not clear, as the Collector suggests, that existing rents and proprietary cultivation are no longer sufficient for the support of these small owners. Another cause, though its operation is not clearly established, is the approach of settlement: and another is a rumour that legislation is in contemplation which will put a stop to ejectments, if not permanently, at least while the re-settlement is in progress. The Collector, however, assigns as the most potent cause the measures taken in the last five years to procure a proper record of rents which have been, in the past, notoriously under-stated in the village papers of the district. The enquiries have opened the eyes of the tenants to the fact that they have been paying rents higher than, on paper, they are bound to pay, and there have been large numbers of suits in which an issue has been raised as to the rate of rent legally enforceable. It would seem from the Collector's report that landlords have frequently failed to prove the receipt of rent at the higher rates, and it may be presumed that in such cases the part of the demand in excess of the recorded rent has not been decreed, and that the tenants have refused to pay it after once succeeding in the defence of a suit. No doubt this state of affairs might lead to numerous ejectment suits, for it is not likely that the landlords have submitted tamely to the loss of part of the rents which they have been receiving for years. The Commissioner does not accept this explanation as probable, for in Basti, he says, where a similar attestation of rents has been in progress, there is no extraordinary increase in the number of ejectment suits. It may be that the attestation in Basti has been attended with less friction than in Gorakhpur, but although there is not the same enormous rise of these suits in the former district, there was at least a large rise from 2,881 in 1906 to 4,200 in 1907 and 5,386 in 1908, and in 1909 the figures were still substantially higher than in 1907. The Commissioner has not apparently appreciated the fact that in Gorakhpur many landlords have failed to prove the higher rates of rent, and he therefore argues that the mere fact of higher rents being now recorded need not be held accountable for increased friction. The Board think, with the Collector, that some of the large addition to the number of suits is most probably due to the attestation proceedings. It is within the knowledge of the Board that at the time of the settlement in Basti similar proceedings stimulated enhancement in that district, and the result in Gorakhpur has been the same in substance, if not in form.

63. The total area from which ejectment was ordered during the year was 235,803 acres and ejectment of tenants from 203,679 acres was actually effected. Both these totals are lower than the corresponding figures of 1907-8. They represent chiefly the effect of the suits instituted in 1908 which were fewer than in 1907. The vacated area represents less than 2 per cent. of the whole area held by non-occupancy tenants in the Province of Agra and the figures are therefore not alarming.

64. It is convenient here to note that the decline in the area held under leases for seven years or more, and in the area definitely recorded as held by occupancy tenants, is more than made good by the growth of the holdings of tenants who have held for twelve years or over and have presumably acquired occupancy rights. The grand total of the 'protected' area in respect of which landlords are debarred from arbitrary ejectment has now reached the large figure of 13,772,090 acres, exceeding by 108,781 acres the figure of the previous year, and representing a slightly higher percentage of the total tenant-held area * than in the previous year. The field in which ejectment by suit is possible therefore shows a satisfactory and progressive tendency to decrease.

65. As in the Province of Agra, so also in Oudh, the returns show an enormous increase in the figures of suits and applications filed under the tenancy law, to which all the more important classes of litigation contribute. The total number of suits for arrears of rent (23,943) exceeds that for any previous year, though it was approached in 1895-96, 1898-99, and in 1899-1900. The increase for the year is over 10,500 cases. Ejectment was applied for after decree for arrears also to a very great extent, the applications (5,889) exceeding by more than 1,000 the figures of any previous year except 1899-1900. Ejectment was sought on other grounds in no less than 32,306 cases, but this number was exceeded two years before and also in 1900-01 and 1901-02. Notices of relinquishment were also served through official agency in a large number of cases (5,673), but the total is not nearly so great as in any of the three years following the famine of 1897. In respect of these cases Bara Banki with 1,993 notices, Partabgarh with 693, Gonda with 500 and Rai Bareilly, Kheri and Fyzabad with over 400 each, are most noticeable.

* The area referred to excludes holdings of ex-proprietary and fixed-rate tenants and permanent tenure-holders and rent-free tenures.

66. In the Kumaun division also the number of suits and applications shows

§ 66.—Litigation in Kumaun.
Statement XVIII-C.

a relatively large increase, but the total number is still small, being 617 only for the three districts together.

Nearly half of all the cases were suits for the recovery of arrears of revenue and profits, this special feature being attributable to the nature of the tenures in the division.

67. The year 1908-9

Statements XVIII-D, XIX-A and XIX-B.

opened with a large file of 109,203 suits and applications under the tenancy law in the Province of Agra (Kumaun excepted) and 1,732 in Oudh. With cases newly instituted the total for disposal was 479,540 and 98,713 in the two provinces respectively. Considerably more than half the cases in Agra were, however, disposed of without contest, and an even greater proportion in Oudh. The total of the cases* pending at the end of the year rose to 110,696 (by nearly 9,000) in Agra, but was reduced by about 400 in Oudh. If, however, pending suits for enhancement of rent and ejectment be excluded (those suits being all filed at the end of the year, and few being capable of decision within it) the balance in Agra is reduced to 14,277, but this balance is higher by 1,109 than at the end of the preceding year. The balances exceed 1,100 in Budaun, 900 in Farrukhabad, 800 in Benares and Jaunpur, 700 in Saharanpur, Aligarh and Shahjahanpur, 600 in Etah, 500 in Meerut, Bareilly, Moradabad and Cawnpore, and are less than 500 elsewhere. The balance of pending cases in Oudh is nowhere high, being 224 in Fyzabad and less than 200 in each of the other districts. The total number of cases of all kinds pending for more than three months was in Agra 1,111 and in Oudh 304. Among districts Aligarh with 171 such cases, Etah with 185, Budaun with 168, Benares with 85, and Fyzabad with 104, are the most prominent. With respect to long-pending suits for enhancement of rent and ejectment, Aligarh, Budaun, Shahjahanpur, and Mirzapur are undesirably distinguished, having each over 20 such cases which must have been pending over a year. Most of these (except in Aligarh) were enhancement suits, and it is regrettable that the local inspections were not carried out in the cold weather of 1908-9. The district officers concerned have generally not explained the existence of these arrears. In Aligarh, however, the Collector reports that the rapid growth of work of recent years has been beyond the power of the regular staff to cope with. In Etah 71 of such cases were suits by the late Raja of Awa, the disposal of which was delayed pending the installation of the trustees as managers of the estate. There were, however, considerable numbers of other cases, particularly enhancement suits, to which this explanation does not apply. On the whole the disposal of work by the Assistant Collectors seems to have been highly satisfactory and most Collectors express their appreciation of the efforts made to keep pace with the great mass of litigation, few officers being blamed for the arrears in their courts.

68. With 16,073 pending from the previous year the total number of applications for execution of decrees was 148,766, and all but 15,076 were disposed of, the balance at the close of the year being thus about 1,000 less than at the beginning. The total amount involved in all the applications was 61½ lakhs. Those finally disposed of involved nearly 47 lakhs, but only 25·18 lakhs were actually recovered, the applications in respect of the remaining sum having apparently proved abortive. The applications pending at the close of the year involved 14·4 lakhs. Ballia is distinguished by a case pending over 5 years, Bara Banki by one pending over 4 years, and Fyzabad and Gonda by cases pending over 3 years. In the two latter districts the sanction of Government to sale in execution was not granted during the famine, but the cases were approaching completion when the district reports were written. The district officers of Ballia and Bara Banki do not comment at all on the subject of executions in their districts and separate explanations have been called for. One officer points out that the figures for this return are difficult to compile owing to the absence of a separate record of every application. This is the result of a strict adherence to the rule, recently enjoined by Government, by which all applications, from first to last, in connection with one decree are treated as a single case for purposes of record. The Board propose to examine the method of compiling this return and will issue further instructions, if necessary.

69. The number of appeals to Collectors was 45 less than in the preceding year, though the number of appealable decisions delivered by Assistant Collectors of the second class,

*Excluding applications for ejectment, the pending balance of which is not returned.

(i.e. generally speaking, by tahsildars) was much higher than in any previous year, being over 39,000 as compared with the former maximum of under 37,000. The percentage of appeals to appealable decisions was in fact less than 12 per cent. With the balance of the previous year the total for disposal was 5,244. Of these all but 572 were disposed of, leaving the balance at the end of the year almost equal to that at the beginning. Thirty-six per cent. only of the appeals were in any degree successful, the results being, on the whole, very similar to those of the year preceding. The total for disposal was 390 in Azamgarh, owing to the large balance pending from the previous year, but it exceeded 200 in only five other districts: in Oudh no Collector had more than 148 appeals in all. The balance at the end of the year exceeded 20 in the following districts only:—Saharanpur (31), Mainpuri (26), Moradabad (67), Shahjahanpur (31), Jaunpur (28), Ballia (27), and Sultanpur (25). The heavy arrear in Azamgarh was completely cleared off. Only 21 appeals in all were pending for more than three months, Gorakhpur with 7, Mirzapur with 4, and Moradabad with 3 such cases being the most noticeable. In Moradabad the cases had been remanded for further enquiry; in Mirzapur the delay is not explained, and in Gorakhpur the explanation is that some question arose as to the stamping of a document filed in one case. It is not obvious why this should have postponed a decision for so long. The work of Collectors in this respect has been satisfactory, and the results of the appeals indicate a good standard of judicial work amongst the tahsildars generally.

70. The number of cases appealable to District Judges from the original decrees of Collectors and first class Assistant Collectors decided within the year was 8,484. Such cases are chiefly suits for arrears of rent, revenue, or profits in which the claim is valued at over Rs. 100. The number of appeals actually filed was 1,742 and the total for disposal was 2,524. Of these 1,835 were actually disposed of, the balance at the end of the year being reduced to 689 cases. The number of appeals which succeeded wholly or partially was 806, or 44 per cent. of those decided. This is a high percentage, but it does not represent the true value of the work of the Assistant Collectors, appeals from whose orders lie chiefly to the Commissioners.

71. The total number of appeals to Commissioners was, on the whole,

Statement XXIV.

moderate, being lower than in any year save one since 1899-1900. Appeals were filed in 6,034, or 17 per cent. of the total number of appealable cases, and with the balance pending from the previous year, the total for disposal was 7,414. Of these 6,372 were decided, and the pending balance at the close of the year was reduced to 1,042 as compared with 1,380 at the beginning. The number of new appeals was highest in Rohilkhand, the Gorakhpur, Agra and Meerut divisions following in the order in which they are mentioned. In the Benares and Allahabad divisions and in Oudh the appellate work of the Commissioners under the tenancy laws was relatively light. Including arrears, the Commissioner of Rohilkhand had 1,875 appeals in all for disposal, and it is satisfactory to note that the pending file was reduced from 738 at the beginning of the year to 159 at the close, when only 9 appeals had been pending more than three months. This result compares favourably with those of the Meerut and Gorakhpur divisions in which, with a total for disposal of 1,010 and 1,037 appeals respectively, 293 and 240 appeals were undecided, and 93 and 80 respectively had been pending more than three months. In the Agra division also the number of long-pending appeals (69) was relatively high, some appeals from decrees in enhancement suits having been postponed by Mr. Calnan for disposal by the permanent Commissioner, Mr. Cobb. In Gorakhpur the large number of pending appeals is due to the absence of the Commissioner at the end of the year and to remands for further evidence. In Meerut the arrears are not explained. The percentage of entirely unsuccessful appeals to the total decided was 68 for the provinces as a whole, and was slightly less favourable to the work of Assistant Collectors than in the previous year. The percentage was most satisfactory from this point of view in the Gorakhpur and Lucknow divisions (74); it ranged from 68 to 70 in the Meerut, Rohilkhand, Allahabad, Fyzabad and Kumaun divisions, and was as low as 62 per cent. in the Agra and Benares divisions. Considering the relatively large number of cases in which appeals might have been filed and that more than two-thirds of the actual appeals were unsuccessful, the work of the Assistant Collectors must be regarded as, on the whole, very satisfactory. The Commissioner of Gorakhpur attributes the success of some appeals to the haste, and consequent errors, of some officers working under extreme pressure, but other Commissioners do not comment on the quality of the work coming under their observation in appeal.

72. The appellate jurisdiction of the Board in connection with the tenancy laws is exercised in connection with appeals under the Agra Tenancy and Oudh Rent Acts and the Kumaun Rules, and applications for revision under the former Act. Appeals to the number of 830 were filed during the year, and there were in all 1,056 for disposal. Of these 691 were actually disposed of, the orders of Commissioners being disturbed in 129 cases. The balance pending at the close of the year was 365. The total of applications for disposal under the Agra Tenancy Act was 762: of these 632 were decided, the orders of lower courts being disturbed in 70 cases only. The number pending at the end of the year was 130. The Board have no power of revision under the Oudh Rent Act or the Kumaun Rules.

73. In 1908 the experiment was initiated of investing certain retired revenue officers with the powers of Assistant Collectors. The officers concerned included two Subordinate Judges one of whom resigned after appointment, one Small Cause Court Judge, seven Deputy Collectors and two tahsildars. In Benares a bench of two such officers was formed, and single officers were appointed in Muzaffarnagar, Meerut, Agra, Bareilly, Bijnor and Benares. In Meerut no suitable court-room could be found and the honorary Assistant Collector did no work, and the Benares bench was unsuccessful and has now ceased to exist. Elsewhere the appointments seem to have been an unqualified success, large numbers of cases having been decided; and the gentlemen who have thus assisted the State after their retirement deserve the acknowledgments of the Government. More than one Commissioner notes that the only difficulty attending an extension of the scheme is that of finding retired officers who are willing to render service of this kind. There is little prestige attaching to the appointments, and the work involved is of an unattractive character. The Board have no hesitation in recommending a continuance of the existing appointments where they have been successful, or the making of new appointments where suitable gentlemen are willing to accept them.

CHAPTER IV—SETTLEMENT.

74. Settlement operations were brought to a conclusion in three of the four districts in which they were in progress during the year under report. In Moradabad alone some work, connected with the fairing of records, still remains. The final settlement reports of Moradabad, Azamgarh and Hamirpur were submitted for the sanction of Government, and with the exception of two parganas of Moradabad which were settled for 29 years for future convenience, the revised settlement was sanctioned in each case for the usual term of 30 years.

75. In the Moradabad district the assessment of parganas Hasanpur and Amroha was completed and sanctioned, and Mr. Gaskell, the Assistant Settlement Officer and Mr. Boas, the Settlement Officer, made over charge in February and April 1909, respectively. The revised revenues of these two parganas and of pargana Bilari were distributed by the Deputy Collector acting as Assistant Settlement Officer under the supervision of the Collector, who was placed in charge of the settlement. The work of fairing the records was expected to be completed by the end of February 1910. In portions of the district which had not been surveyed, the maps prepared at the preceding revision were, owing to the occurrence of numerous intermediate changes, in a state of confusion, and to ensure the proper maintenance of the records by the patwaris a new set of maps is required. Provision for the work, which is estimated to cost Rs. 20,000 will, it is hoped, be made in the budget for 1910-11, and as soon as sanction is received the work will be started.

76. The regular revision of settlement under the special rules for Bundel-khand was brought to a conclusion, the assessments of parganas Mau and Karwi in the Banda district having been sanctioned, and the revised revenues declared and distributed. Mr.

Humphries left the district in March 1909, the Collector being placed in charge of the settlement to wind up operations. The final settlement report was reviewed and submitted for the sanction of Government after the close of the year.

77. In the Jhansi district the first quinquennial revision of assessment under the fluctuating system has resulted in a small reduction of the demand fixed at settlement in pargana Jhansi and in an insignificant enhancement in pargana Moth. The similar revision of the assessment of pargana Kunch in the Jalaun district, which was due in 1316 fas/i, was by a misapprehension on the part of the Collector postponed for one year. The omission has, however, caused no loss of revenue to Government, the year in question having been far from normal and the cultivated area, on which assessments should have been based, below the average. The rules for these assessments, which were designed to work almost automatically, have been put to a severe test by the famine, for a set of circumstances has been created which the rules did not contemplate. In consequence many points arise, the determination of which involves considerable unforeseen labour for the Collector and superior officers. As further experience is gained it may be necessary and possible to propose definite amendments of the rules.

78. The enquiry which was made with a view to relieving certain over-assessed villages of the Unao district resulted in a reduction of Rs. 4,444 in the current demand. The revision of assessment of pargana Dudhi of the Mirzapur district was carried out by Maulvi Muhammad Ahmad under the supervision of the Collector. The revised assessments are under the consideration of the Board. The operations were rather of the nature of adjustments of rent in the pargana, which is a Government estate, than a revision of revenue in the ordinary sense. For Fatehpur the proposal to revise the settlement before expiry of the extended term received the approval of the Local Government, and was submitted to the Government of India. In Muttra an inquiry is now on foot to determine whether the present assessment, which was extended for 15 years (up to 1920—23), needs immediate revision. The term of the extended settlement of the Etawah district will expire in June 1913, and the Director has been asked to furnish a preliminary report, as usual, on the prospects of a re-settlement.

79. The number of cases instituted in settlement courts was 1,646. Including 6,825 cases outstanding at the close of the last year, the total for disposal was 8,471, of which 8,444 cases were decided. Of the balance 10 cases have been transferred to the Collector-ate. The remaining 17 consist chiefly of miscellaneous cases.

80. Appeals to Settlement Officers numbered 285 all of which were decided. Commissioners disposed of 101 appeals out of 112.

81. The cost of settlement operations during the year was Rs. 78,557. In Azamgarh and Banda, where the accounts are closed, the cost of settlement was Rs. 335.86 and Rs. 65 per square mile respectively. The high rate in Azamgarh is due to the unusual complexity of the records, the revision of which alone accounts for nearly two-thirds of the total expenditure, the remaining one-third falling to the share of assessment.

82. The following table shows the old and new revenues of the tracts, the assessments of which were declared during the year :—

			Amount.	Percentage.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Moradabad (parganas Hasanpur and Amroha)	3,09,376	3,85,123	+75,747	24.48
Banda (parganas Karwi and Mau)	1,88,726	1,87,252	—1,474	.78

CHAPTER V.—GENERAL.

83. Lambardars invoked the assistance of Collectors under section 184 of the Land Revenue Act in recovering revenue due by co-sharers in 2,297 cases involving Rs. 1,07,467. With cases pending for disposal from the previous year the total became 3,164 involving Rs. 1,47,105. Of the total sum Rs. 1,04,276 were actually recovered, and certain applications were refused or dismissed, with the final result that, at the end of the year, 706 applications involving Rs. 36,208 were pending. As usual, the use of this summary process was applied for to the greatest extent in the Meerut division, and more particularly in the Aligarh district where there were 602 new cases. Some district officers attribute the increase in the number of applications to the more energetic action taken to comply with them, but the Board doubt whether attention was attracted to their remarks in last year's report in time to affect the number of applications. There is little doubt, however, that towards the end of the year more activity was displayed, with the result that the number of pending applications was considerably less than at the beginning. The largest pending file appears in Aligarh, where, it seems, it is the fashion to make these applications late in the revenue year. A similar explanation is probable in the case of Moradabad, Basti, Sitapur and Gonda where the pending cases are relatively numerous.

84. The cognate process for the recovery of rents of under-proprietors, for superior proprietors who have paid the revenue due for sub-settled mahals or under-proprietary holdings, was applied for in 4,274 cases in Oudh districts under section 185 of the Land Revenue Act. With applications pending from the previous year the total number for disposal was 4,935 involving the recovery of close upon 5 lakhs. Nearly 4½ lakhs were actually recovered and the balance to be collected at the end of the year was Rs. 52,659 in connection with 409 applications. The result shows a great improvement on the work of the previous year. As usual, these applications were most numerous in the Fyzabad district, the total for disposal being no less than 2,288, of which, it is satisfactory to note, all but 19 were disposed of. In other districts also the treatment of these applications seems to have been generally satisfactory. In Sultanpur, however, 225 applications were still pending at the close of the year, and in Gonda 90. In Sultanpur more than half the pending applications were filed in August and September and attachment of the under-proprietary holdings (a process necessarily involving patience) seems to have been necessary in some of the older cases. For Gonda also the explanation is satisfactory.

85. The total number of changes of proprietary interests recorded in the registers of proprietors and under-proprietors shows a further rise, the total figures for the year ending June 30th, 1909, being 8,476 higher than those for the previous year, but the increase is confined entirely to succession cases, every other class showing a more or less substantial decrease. Sales by order of court show a decline in number, though the revenue assessed on the land sold is rather higher than in 1907-8, but still substantially less than the figure returned two years ago. Private sales show, on the whole, a small rise in number, but the variations in most divisions are unimportant: it is worth noting, however, that in the Meerut, Agra, Rohilkhand and Benares divisions there has been a continuous, though not very great, increase in the past two years. Mortgage cases generally show a small decline, but in the Meerut and Allahabad divisions there was a continuing increase, and in the Fyzabad division a large decrease following on an even larger decrease in the preceding year. On the other hand the recorded redemptions of mortgages generally declined, an exception being again found in the Meerut division. The absence of any increase in sales and the general decline in mortgages may perhaps be taken as indicating that the proprietary body have, as a whole, weathered the famine without being driven to exceptional borrowing and, if this inference is justified, the result may be taken as a proof of the adequacy of the relief granted by Government to revenue-payers during that disastrous period. The decline in redemption cases, on the other hand, if any inference can be drawn from it at all, may be interpreted as showing that the landowning body were not yet in 1909 in the position of having surplus funds with which to free themselves from any considerable burden of outstanding debt.

86. Succession cases, of which, as already noted, there was a large number (the increase being nearly 15,000 cases), rose substantially in the Agra, Rohilkhand, Allahabad, Lucknow and Fyzabad divisions while they fell substantially in the Benares, Gorakhpur and Kumaun divisions and slightly in the Meerut division. Where any explanation is attempted a rise is usually attributed to the epidemic of malaria at the end of 1908, but in Moradabad and Banda a contributory cause seems to be that patwaris are making up arrears which accumulated during the progress of the settlements. No district officer ventures an opinion as to the faithful reporting of transfers by succession, but, more particularly in respect of petty properties, it is well known that proprietors are apathetic and that reliance has to be placed chiefly upon patwaris. The detailed advice which has been communicated to touring officers as to the best method of testing this branch, among others, of the work of kanungos and through them of patwaris must, however, soon bear fruit.

87. The return of comparative prosperity is marked by an increase in the number of applications for partition, but perfect partitions were not applied for to the same extent as in 1906-7, the year before the famine, and imperfect partitions only to a slightly greater extent. The number of new cases instituted during the year was less than the number pending at the beginning, and, unfortunately, the courts did not succeed in keeping pace with the work, for the pending file of perfect partitions rose from 1,638 to 1,824 and of imperfect partitions from 2,887 to 3,310. Substantial reductions of the pending file of perfect partitions are, however, noticeable in Shahjahanpur (40 to 24), Etah (71 to 52), Cawnpore (95 to 75), and Benares (27 to 19). Balances increased, on the other hand, in the following districts where the total of pending cases exceeds 50 :—Saharanpur (91), Muzaffarnagar (62), Meerut (94), Mainpuri (52), Bareilly and Fatehpur (58) and Gorakhpur (70). The large pending balances of the previous year were unchanged in Aligarh (86) and Azamgarh (107). In respect of imperfect partitions only three districts (Azamgarh, Almora and Garhwal), where the number of cases was really large, show a decrease in the pending file, which includes more than 100 cases in Saharanpur (166), Muzaffarnagar (160), Meerut (229), Bareilly (136), Bijnor (153), Budaun (114), Moradabad (237), Gorakhpur (562), Basti (222) and Azamgarh (187). The reports of district officers generally indicate that partition work is receiving proper attention and that long delays are attributable chiefly to preliminary litigation and appeals on questions of title, or to the contesting of every point from first to last, also involving appeals to the Commissioner and even the Board. Other causes of delay are unavoidable changes in the staff of districts, and occasionally the temporary reduction of that staff below the essential minimum. The Commissioner of Benares alone distinctly expresses dissatisfaction with the state of partition work in particular districts, Ghazipur and Jaunpur being selected for his condemnation; but he admits that the root of the evil lies in frequent, though unavoidable, transfers. The Commissioner of Fyzabad also remarks that this branch of the work in Bara Banki was in a bad state at his inspection, though he does not offer an opinion as to the causes or the culpability of the staff.

88. The partitions actually effected resulted in an increase of 1,875 in the number of maha's and of 5,621 in the number of pattis: and, as usual, numbers of ridiculously small pattis were formed.

89. The employment of patwaris in working out the details of partitions is not becoming more popular, for such men seldom give as much satisfaction as regular amins. The Board considered during the year whether the employment of patwaris should continue to be authorised and they came to the conclusion that there was not sufficient ground to withdraw the option given to the parties. Patwaris can, under the rules, be employed only in effecting partitions within their own circles, and then only with the consent of all the parties to the case.

90. The number of new appeals instituted in the courts of Collectors under the Land Revenue Act was 5,335, a number slightly lower than in the preceding year. With arrears, the total for disposal was 6,115. Of these all but 748 were disposed of, the pending file at the close of the year being slightly less than at the beginning. The number of appeals pending more than three months shows a satisfactory decline from 223 to 93, the total exceeding 10 in Saharanpur (16) and Gorakhpur (29) only. Nearly all the long-pending appeals are connected with partition cases and they cannot be disposed of, under the law, until the initial partition proposals or the final results come before the Collectors for confirmation.

91. Under this Act, as under the tenancy laws, the greatest number of appeals to Commissioners are filed in the Meerut, Rohilkhand and Gorakhpur divisions. There were, as a rule, no great variations in the divisions, but in Gorakhpur there was a substantial decline from 585 to 406 new cases. Altogether the number of appeals instituted was 2,164, the total for disposal was 2,599 and the pending balance rose from 435 to 491. The number of cases pending over three months at the end of the year was reduced, however, from 81 to 50. The Meerut and Gorakhpur divisions are alone noticeable with 16 and 17 such cases respectively.

92. Appeals and applications for revision before the Board under the Land Revenue Act, including arrears, numbered 567. Of these 427 were disposed of, the orders of lower courts being disturbed in 69 cases. The balance pending at the close of the year was 140. The appellate business before the Board under the tenancy laws has already been noticed. Including 49 appeals from the Family Domains of the Maharaja of Benares the total judicial business arising from all sources was 2,434 cases, of which 647 were pending at the close of the year, as compared with 410 at the beginning.

93. Including arrears of the previous year Collectors in the province of Agra had a file of 6,650 decrees in the execution of which sale of ancestral property was sought. Such cases were transferred by the civil courts for execution under section 320 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, or the corresponding section (68) of the Code of 1908. Of the total number 4,072 were completely disposed of, sale of the whole property proving to be unavoidable in about one-third of the cases. In 2,584 cases the decree was satisfied without sale and without recourse to the special methods provided by the Code of Civil Procedure, or the applications were struck off or returned to the civil courts for various reasons. It will be seen that the most common methods of averting sale by official action are postponements to enable the debtor to raise the amount of the decree by mortgaging or letting the property, partial sale, and direct management or farming. In many cases shown as "otherwise disposed of" sale had taken place, but the debtor was able to raise the money privately and discharge the decree in full before the sale was confirmed. In Oudh, where the sale of ancestral land in execution of decrees requires the sanction of the Lieutenant-Governor, and of self-acquired landed property the sanction of the Commissioner, sanction was withheld from March 1908 to April 1909, except in the Kheri district where, owing to the unfavourable prospects of the rabi, sanction was withheld for a further period of six months. The result was a large accumulation of cases, no less than 1,517 sales of ancestral land and 162 of self-acquired property having to be considered. Sanction was granted by the Lieutenant-Governor in 950 cases and by Commissioners in 119, but sale took place within the year in only 423.

94. The work of acquiring land for public purposes was again heavy during the year, no less than 11,244 acres having been taken up under Act I of 1894 at a cost exceeding 11½ lakhs. The compensation for 199 acres taken up in Gonda had not, however, been paid for during the year. In Gorakhpur, Basti, Allahabad, Pilibhit, Naini Tal, Hardoi and Sitapur the work was so heavy as to require the services of a special officer. Nearly half the whole land taken up was acquired for railways, chiefly the Bareilly-Soron extension of the Rohilkhand and Kumaun railway, the new lines in three directions from Sitapur, the Allahabad-Benares line, and other extensions in Ballia, of the Bengal and North-Western Railway, subordinates' quarters at Moradabad, and the Sandi extension of the Oudh and Rohilkhand Railway. For canals 2,375 acres were taken up, the principal areas required being for the Ken and Dhasan canals and for various small works on the Lower Ganges and Rohilkhand systems. Considerable areas were acquired also for the military authorities in Jhansi, Lucknow, and Bara Banki (in the latter district for the defences of the Elgin Bridge over the Gogra). Several small areas were acquired by private negotiation, the prominent instances being land and houses acquired for residences of officials attached to the Forest Research Institute in Dehra Dun and for the post and telegraph offices in Mussooree, land for famine roads in Jaunpur and Bara Banki, and for the circuit-house in Cawnpore.

Statement XXXI.

95. The total number of letters received in the English offices of districts was rather less in 1908-9 than in 1907-8, but not so much as might have been expected in the improved conditions of the year. The actual variations require no comment. The letters issued, however, show a substantial, though not universal, reduction, to the advantage mainly of the offices in the Agra, Allahabad, Benares and Fyzabad divisions.

96. In the vernacular branches of district offices no less than 1,910,184 new cases were registered, bringing the total for disposal, with arrears of the previous year, to 2,159,753, an increase of over 110,000. These figures include judicial cases * the disposal of which has already been discussed. Excluding judicial cases the number of new cases instituted during the year was 1,516,438—about 13,000 more than in 1907-8. With the pending balance the total for disposal was 1,662,375 a number almost exactly the same as in the previous year. Disposals were good, and the balance was reduced from 145,937 to 138,679. The detailed district returns indicate that good progress was made in completing the files relating to takavi transactions, for, in spite of the registration of over 56,000 new records during the year, the pending balance was reduced from 27,600 at the beginning of the year to 6,600 at its close. The balance of other cases, however, shows a slight rise from 118,000 to 132,000. Most ground has been lost in this respect in Aligarh, Agra, Allahabad, Ballia, Gorakhpur, Unao, Sitapur, Fyzabad, Sultanpur, Partabgarh and Bara Banki, in all of which districts the increase in the pending file is large, both relatively and absolutely. On the other hand a substantial decrease is observable in Muzaffarnagar, Farrukhabad, Etah, Mirzapur, Basti, Lucknow and Hardoi. Gorakhpur is remarkable for an enormous balance exceeding 15,000 of these miscellaneous cases, the next districts being Azamgarh with nearly 7,900 and Aligarh and Allahabad with about 5,000 each. Most other districts have pending files varying from about 1,000 to 4,700, but Dehra Dun, Hamirpur, Jhansi, Jalaun, Garhwal, Rae Bareilly and Kheri are remarkable for having less than 1,000. It seems that in Gorakhpur applications for copies are included in the total, contrary to the general practice, and steps will be taken to secure uniformity in future. Generally it may be said that the disposal of miscellaneous work was very satisfactory. Judging by the number of miscellaneous cases instituted during the year, the volume of general work was greatest in Gorakhpur, Meerut and Moradabad with between 60,000 and 70,000 cases each, and in Saharanpur, Muzaffarnagar, Bulandshahr, Aligarh, Farrukhabad, Budaun, Shahjahanpur, Azamgarh and Fyzabad with between 40,000 and 50,000 cases each.

97. The total value of the property assigned or alienated up to the close of the year under report is Rs. 3,13,859 as against Rs. 10,57,053 shown in the previous year. The decrease of about seven lakhs and a half is due to the exclusion under the orders of the Board of 'muafi' grants made by native Governments and recognised by the British Government. Such grants were included in previous reports under a misapprehension. In Bareilly and Shahjahanpur, where the figures of British and pre-British grants are reported not to be capable of differentiation, a further effort will be made to secure accurate figures in the current year.

98. No less than 59½ lakhs were paid by money-order on account of land revenue and local rates—nearly 15½ lakhs more than in the previous year. The number of such orders rose by over 50,000, and the total exceeded 303,000. No doubt the convenience of remitting through the post office is more and more appreciated. In the present year the increase may be attributed in part to the free use of citations which involve either attendance at the tahsil, or prompt payment, lest a prosecution follow. In many districts, however, the absence of remissions and the collection of suspended arrears made the demand larger, and the use of money-orders grew with the demand. The Gorakhpur division, with an average of over 4 lakhs per district, is more remarkable than any other, but in the Bundelkhand districts too (except Banda) a large share of the land revenue is paid in this way. Miscellaneous revenue to the amount of 16½ lakhs was similarly paid, the number of money-orders rising by 44,000. All divisions except Gorakhpur and Kumaun show an increase. The large demand for repayments of takavi loans is assigned, probably with truth, as the chief cause.

99. With the exception of Dehra Dun, Almora and Unao all districts show an increase in the total amount of rent remitted by tenants to landlords by money-orders of the special form provided by the Post Office. The gross amount of remittances of this kind was Rs. 17,87,722, being more than 5 lakhs in excess of the total of the previous year, and higher than any figure hitherto recorded. There is no doubt that the system continues to grow in popularity, but part of the recent increase may be attributed to the accumulation of arrears of rent in the previous year. Remittances are most common in Rohilkhand (specially in Bijnor and Moradabad) and in the Meerut and Agra divisions, less common in the other divisions of the plains, and least of all in Oudh and the hills.

100. At the close of the last revenue year the Thomason College Press had on hand for reproduction three maps. Six tahsili maps of the Allahabad district were taken in hand during the year, and of the total number five tahsili maps, with a revised index-map of the United Provinces, were printed and issued, leaving three maps in hand.

101. The dominant note of the reports of district officers and Commissioners is a return to comparative prosperity after the disastrous famine of 1907-8. A few tracts, unfortunately, did not share in the general recovery and direct measures of famine relief were renewed. A few others, again, though in slightly better case, still suffered after irregular and scanty rain in 1908 but fared so far well that actual distress did not appear. Generally, the crops were fairly good, rice being the prominent exception, the export trade revived, and, as prices continued to be unusually high, the surplus produce commanded good returns in cash, the cultivators being thus enabled generally to pay their current rents and a considerable amount of arrears, and to repay in a large measure the vast number of loans issued by Government in the previous year. The landlords, with exceptions in the tracts which were still depressed, were able in turn to pay the current land revenue and local rates, and about 50½ lakhs of the suspended arrears of the famine. The collection of the various advances dealt with in this report was on the whole as satisfactory as could be wished, and the outstanding debt was reduced from nearly 286 lakhs at the beginning of the year to less than 184 lakhs at its close, in spite of the fact that 31 lakhs were newly advanced during the year. The great rise in suits for arrears of rent may be taken as a further indication of returning prosperity, for, although large numbers of suits may have been instituted to secure decrees for claims which might otherwise have become time-barred, many must have been encouraged by the prospect of early recovery; and a still stronger indication is the renewal of the campaign of ejectment and enhancement, for the lull in the previous year is attributable chiefly to the necessity for relaxing the effort to secure increased rents in order to safeguard existing arrears. The statistics of transfers of property recorded in the revenue registers are also satisfactory in that they indicate no exceptional indebtedness as a consequence of the strain of the previous year: indirectly they are evidence of the adequacy of the measures taken to relax the revenue demand during that period. The monsoon of 1909 was generally satisfactory: the kharif harvest has been, on the whole, good and in places excellent, and, so far as the Board know, the promise of the rabi is everywhere very good. It is to be hoped therefore that the present year may restore normal conditions even in those districts which have suffered most severely of late. Bundelkhand is now, on the whole, prosperous, though in Jalaun the officiating Collector was inclined to take a gloomy view of the situation. The strain upon the staff of all but a few districts was relieved by the cessation of direct famine work, but the ordinary duties falling to their lot in 1908-9 were undoubtedly heavy, and many complaints of overwork are recorded. Nevertheless, there is no inordinate accumulation of arrears. A special officer is now engaged in examining the needs of districts in respect of gazetted staff: and it is hoped that similar inquiries will be undertaken next cold weather with reference to ministerial establishments.

102. The development of irrigation in Basti is still under consideration, but some important minor extensions of the canals were made in the precarious tracts of Cawnpore. Land in the neighbourhood of the Ken canal is reported to be rising in value in Banda: and the Dhasan canal, which is nearing completion, may be expected to have a similar effect in Hamirpur. Further progress was made in many districts in the construction of wells. The great demand for advances for this purpose has now slackened, however, and the allotment made by the Government at the beginning of the year, which in the autumn promised to be too small to meet the demand in full, has ultimately proved sufficient.

103. In Azamgarh the recent ill-success of sugarcane has led to the partial abandonment of that crop and the substitution of rabi cereals, and in Kheri one effect of drought has been the abandonment of unirrigated upland cultivation and extensions of cultivation in areas which were, till recently, too swampy. At the same time the net cropped area in Kheri is maintained. Ten years ago it was less than 717,000 acres: it rose steadily to nearly 880,000 acres in 1903-4: in 1904-5 and 1905-6 there was a slight check, but again a great rise in 1906-7: and in 1908-9 there was a great recovery after the famine year from 818,000 to nearly 874,000 acres, an area only twice exceeded in the last ten years. The area has been maintained in the last two years, however, by a substitution of kharif crops to a large extent for rabi crops. In 1906-7 the proportion of area under the two harvests was roughly as 5 to 4, but in 1908-9 it was more nearly as 5 to 2. It will be interesting to compare the figures of the present year, when available, with those of recent years, to see if the change promises to be permanent.

104. A few other matters indirectly connected with the agricultural prosperity of the general population may be noticed. There are still complaints of the road communications, chiefly in Rohilkhand and the adjoining districts of Oudh. Railway projects, however, continue their advance, various lines having been sanctioned, and some actually commenced, which will further develop Oudh and Rohilkhand and eastern Kumaun and the country north of the Ganges from Allahabad to Benares. The year was not encouraging to new ventures in sugar manufacture or cotton gins and presses, and these industries were not generally as successful as usual. Nevertheless a few enterprises of this kind were undertaken, the most notable being, perhaps, the establishment of the first steam cotton gin and press in Hardoi, where cotton-growing is extending. Trade shows signs of reviving in Hathras, one of the great cotton centres; on the other hand the new electric mill at Aligarh was temporarily closed for want of capital. The village banks are reported to be doing good work generally, those in Unao, Mainpuri, Moradabad and Bulandshahr in particular. Weaving schools are springing up in several places, with the promise of important developments, great progress having been made already in Bara Banki. Altogether, therefore, the outlook is encouraging and further progress may be looked for, both in agriculture and in industrial enterprise.

I have the honour to be,

SIR,

Your most obedient servant,

P. HARRISON,

Secretary.

NOTE —(a) All the above grants except those shown against Gorakhpur (which represent the remission of revenue on Gorait's jagirs created in jungle grant Keotli and come under the class —“ For the maintenance of public servants”) were made “On other grounds.”

(b) Difference in figures shown both against “Totals” and against most districts (except Bareilly and Shah-jahanpur in which the alienations cannot be differentiated) is mainly due to the exclusion of “Muafi” grants made by Native Governments and recognized by the British Government. In previous statements they were included under a misapprehension.

ORDERS OF GOVERNMENT.

No. $\frac{789}{I-262}$ OF 1910.

RESOLUTION.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Dated Allahabad, the 18th April 1910.

READ—

Letter from the Secretary to the Board of Revenue, United Provinces, no. $\frac{911}{XII-163A(6)}$, dated the 15th March 1910, being the Board's report on the revenue administration of the United Provinces for the year ending 30th September 1909.

OBSERVATIONS.—The Board's report is a very full and detailed review of the history of the year which closed on the 30th September 1909 in all matters which relate to the revenue administration, the course of the seasons and of agriculture, and agrarian tenures and litigation, and in the subjects of public health, trade and prices so far as they concern those matters. There is no large question to be restated, and no need to advert in detail to the various returns. A brief reference to the contents of the report is all that is called for from the Government.

2. The year was one of steady though chequered recovery from the famine of 1907-8. In only six districts were any measures necessary for the relief of distress, though in several others a temporary reduction of the land revenue demand was required which involved a final remission of nearly $12\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs. Cultivation extended and the kharif harvest of 1908 was a large one, though the erratic monsoon denied a full crop to many of the rice areas. The early stoppage of the rains and the severity of the outbreak of malaria in the last quarter of 1908 diminished the area under cultivation in the rabi, and the spring crop of 1909 was not entirely satisfactory. But the year was redeemed by the good rains with which it closed, and its character of prosperity is displayed in the large recoveries by landowners of their rents and by the Government of its various demands. In the collection of land revenue severe processes were not unduly numerous, and a full measure of relief by remissions or suspensions was allowed in all cases of hardship. Against an effective land revenue demand, including arrears, of 737 lakhs only Rs. 87,000 really remained uncollected at the close of the year; and the receipts of canal rates local rates and the smaller demands were also good. Repayments of agricultural loans were very large and the failures by borrowers to meet their obligations were unimportant except in a few districts. The Board have explained these cases in detail and expressed their dissatisfaction in some of them. The Lieutenant Governor will leave it to the Board to give such directions as are needed to impress upon the Collectors concerned their further duties in this respect. He has read with much interest the analysis which the Board have made of the processes used for collections of the government demand and trusts that the reforms in procedure that have been directed will be continued.

3. The comparative prosperity of the year and the possibility of collecting suspended rents caused an increase of 21·5 per cent. in the rent litigation in Agra and one of 72 per cent. in that in Oudh. The increases were mainly in suits for arrears, in suits and applications for ejectment, in enhancement cases and in notices to surrender or relinquish holdings. In Gorakhpur the operations to improve the patwaris' records are put down as part of the cause of an enormous increase in ejectment suits. But the area from which ejectment was ordered and that from which actual ejectment took place have both diminished in Agra, and most suits to eject after a decree for arrears at all events are apparently only methods of executing the decree; moreover the area in which tenants are protected in that province continues to grow. In Oudh the area from which ejectment was ordered was very much higher than in the previous year and considerably higher than in 1906-7, even after allowing for exceptional figures (presumably relating to ejectment of large lessees) in the Bahraich district. But there does not appear to be any new lesson to be drawn from the returns of the year.

4. It is satisfactory that in spite of the large growth of the work disposals were generally prompt and the work stood the test of appeal fairly well. But in the appeals to Judges from Collectors and first class assistant collectors the Lieutenant Governor notices that for some years the appellate courts have had much occasion to vary the orders, as the following table shows :—

		(1) Confirmed.	(2) Modified.	(3) Reversed.	(4) Remanded.	Total of (2), (3) and (4).
1908-9	...	813	371	288	119	778

The Board point out that as most appeals from the courts named go to Commissioners the result in Judges' courts does not give the true value of the work done. But the Lieutenant Governor thinks that a further examination of the nature of the cases and the reasons for the largely unfavourable character of Judges' orders would be desirable, so that the appearance of unsatisfactory work might be better explained.

5. The Board refer to the fact that an officer has recently been on special duty to inquire into the number of sub-divisional officers needed for the proper performance of the work of the province, and say that an examination of the sufficiency of establishments is also needed. As a preliminary to such an inquiry the Lieutenant Governor would be glad if the Board would invite the attention of Commissioners and Collectors to statement XXXII appended to the report. It seems clear that the procedure needs to be systematized, unless the figures are prepared on varying lines. Meerut has 82,027 cases disposed of, and receives 4,629 letters, but issues only 2,994. Ghazipur has only 22,024 cases, and receives 4,548 letters, but issues 4,771. Jaunpur receives more letters than any district in the province except Lucknow, and more than twice as many as Saharanpur, Moradabad or Azamgarh. Some reduction of the statistics to common terms is desirable.

6. The Lieutenant Governor joins with the Members of the Board in regret at the death of Mr. Darrah while on leave from the Board, and concurs in their appreciation of the industry and capability with which the revenue officers of the province have carried on the work in a year which made unusual demands upon their energies. To the Members themselves he is obliged for their excellent administration and for a very complete report.
